TRANSIT PLANS HINGE ON DRIFT OF POPULATION

Must Divine Where People Will Build.

MAKE CHICAGO THE FIRST CITY IN THE WORLD

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

One of Chicago's absorbing questions concerns the drift of population as the region grows and where the localities are in which houses, apartments, stores, factories are most likely to be built as the people stream in. It involves the matter of improved and faster suburban trains, faster street cars, extensions of bus lines, street car lines, and the elevated railways, and the construction of high-speed elevated highways to escape trafic congestion.

By 1960 the Chicago region, according to estimates of the Chicago Regional Planning association, probably will have a population of about 8½ million people. The region embraced in the studies covers an area of 15 counties—three in Wisconsin, 3 in Indiana, 9 in Illinois. In 1930 the region contained about 5 million people. It covers some 5 million acres, but the population is largely concentrated on about 200,000 acres.

More Populous Than 42 of States.

Only six of the 48 states exceed the region in population, and only ten states have more inhabitants than Chicago itself.

For years, as business has grown, people have been moving away from districts near the downtown center —36 square miles inside Chicago had a smaller population in 1930 than in 1920. Automobiles, hard roads took people farther out and built up new residential sections, especially in the northwest and southwest. Tremendous gains were made by the country towns, Chicago's suburbs.

For the next 30 years, when business gets good, the regional planning association figures that on an average about 9,000 acres a year will be developed with residences. There's plenty of room and to spare. Within one mile of suburban railroads and inside the 60 minute rail commuting zone are 444,000 acres, more than half of which is vacant. In Chicago over 200,000 building lots still are vacant.

Foresee Industrial Expansion.

Of the 3,500,000 which may be added to the population of the Chicago region between 1930 and 1960, the association estimates about 550,000 will be industrial employes. About 12,000 acres of new industry, according to the planners, will be developed, principally along the railroads. Industrial growth, of course, is expected to be greatest in the South Chicago-Calumet-Gary sector of Illinois and Indiana.

In normal times about 700,000 people in the Chicago region are engaged in industries in 12,000 plants, averaging 55 employés and covering 1½ acres.

About 60,000 acres have been zoned for industry, but less than one-third is so used and there is tremendous room for factory expansion. The commission computes that each 100 new industrial workers increase the population by 600, including workers in complementary services.

Maps of population density prepared by the commission are of great interest. They show the bulk of population follows the rails. By "rails" are meant steam railroads, the street car and elevated lines, the buses, the transportation lines.

How Population Spreads.

From the central district black fingers spread out on the map, the black indicating where population is most congested and where the suburban settlement has been largest. The fingers follow rails into the suburbs.

As the trafic experts view it, the transit problem is a most vital one. Inside the 45 minute zone of railroad trains live 4 million people. About 75,000 suburbanites commute normally to the central business area. Inside the 60 minute zone and within one mile of the railroads lie 450,000 acres, less than one-half of which is occupied by urban development.

Faster suburban trains will fill up the suburbs, and faster street transit by cars or trolley buses will build up residential sections inside the city not reached by suburban trains, so the experts reason. In other words, the drift of new population will depend most largely upon transit facilities.

All these factors are to be weighed in framing the next street car ordinance. Mayor Kelly says the city must insist upon protection of the riding public through extensions of service as fast as needed and by quieter and faster transit. One of his suggestions is that the elevated lines might be linked with suburban tracks on some of the railroads to speed up service.

BRITAIN TO TRY HITLER'S CASE BEFORE ALLIES

Reports Progress in Peace Talks.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 26.—The Anglo-German conversations on Reichsfuehrer Hitler's rearmament in defiance of the terms of the Versailles treaty ended tonight. Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, will return to England tomorrow. Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, left tonight for Moscow, where he will discuss the European situation with Dictator Stalin.

The net result of the Anglo-German conversations is that when Great Britain, France and Italy meet at Stresa, Italy, on April 11 Germany will have provided Great Britain's greatest lawyer—Simon—with a brief of its case to present to the other powers, who are frightened and suspicious of Germany's grab for power.

Talks Called "Friendly."

Whether it will be presented with all the fire of counsel for the defense is not yet clear, but it is certain that Germany's case will not suffer from an unfriendly interpretation.

At the close of the conversations shortly after 7 o'clock this evening, the usual uninformative communique was issued which, however, contained some significant phrases.

One was that the conversations were carried on "in the frankest and friendliest spirit," and a British spokesman, explaining the terms, said later that those words meant all that could be read into them. This statement was made despite great excitement in Berlin over the sentencing to death of four Germans by a Lithuanian court for plotting to seize Memel.

Text of Communique.

The text of the communique follows:

"The Anglo-German conversations conducted between Sir John Simon, Capt. Anthony Eden, Reichsfuehrer Hitler, and Baron von Neurath [German foreign minister] were concluded tonight.

"The subjects under discussion were the matters set out in the London communique of Feb. 3. The conversations were carried on in the frankest and friendliest spirit and resulted in a complete clarification of each other's viewpoints.

"Both sides agreed that they were pursuing the goal of securing and consolidating the peace of Europe by promoting international coöperation.

"Both the German and British ministers are satisfied of the usefulness of these direct conversations.

"Simon returns to London by air tomorrow, while Eden proceeds to Moscow, Warsaw, and Prague tonight."

Important Progress Made.

From other sources, it was learned that while no decisions were taken, important progress was made toward clarifying the situation and getting matters in shape for an eventual settlement in Europe.

Yesterday was devoted to discussion of the proposed eastern security pact, for which the French are pressing. Hitler made it clear that in no circumstances could Germany agree to a pact of mutual assistance which might force it to fight on the side of communist Russia against France or England.

At the same time, Hitler saw no obstacles in a series of bilateral pacts which would preserve peace in the east, and the subject was closed by a request from the British that he produce a sample of the pact.

Cites Arms of Neighbors.

Today was devoted mainly to the subject of armament restrictions. This was disposed of in the same way. Hitler and his military experts laid before the visiting ministers detailed figures of the armed strength of Germany's neighbors—what it had to face on the French, Polish, and Czech frontiers and from Russia—and justified his decision that the German army should have thirty-six divisions so that each frontier could be adequately protected.

Hitler also indicated, however, that a reduction in strength of the divisions and in armaments is possible. He repeated that Germany is willing to abolish any type of armaments if all other powers do likewise.

After listening to this exposition, Simon again asked Hitler to submit a detailed plan of what he proposed. Armed with these two documents, and with Hitler's verbal clarification, Simon will go to the Stresa meeting, where he will present Germany's case fully and fairly to France and Italy.

Deny "Big Navy" Report.

The matter of an air pact was hardly touched on today because it presents no difficulties. Germany already has expressed a willingness to enter

THE SURRENDER OF CORN WALLACE

CALIFORNIANS TALK OF PUTTING A $1 TAX ON DRINKERS

Sacramento, Cal., March 26.—(AP)—A proposal to tax liquor drinkers $1 per head for a quaffing license was made today to the state board of equalization.

"Well, why not," commented Mrs. Orfa Jean Shontz, Los Angeles member of the board which enforces California's liquor laws. "We license people to fish, don't we?"

The drinkers license idea was presented by Merle L. Templeton, San Diego enforcement officer, in a letter to George Stout, chief liquor control administrator of the state.

Richard Collins, board member, said he thought licensing drinkers would be "a very good idea."

CALL CHILD LABOR LAW DEAD; 16TH "NO" VOTE IS CAST

Washington, D. C., March 26.—(AP)—Rejection of the child labor amendment by the Connecticut house today caused its friends to concede it would take another two years to put it over, and its foes to call it definitly dead.

Connecticut was the sixteenth state to reject the amendment this year, the eleventh year it has been making the rounds of state legislatures.

Four states ratified this year, bringing the number of approvals up to 24, with ratification by 36 necessary to add the amendment to the constitution.

"It is clear that the fight will have to continue another two years," said Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the children's bureau.

Representative Henry Ellenbogen [Dem., Pa.] today introduced a bill which would deny use of the mails to business concerns employing child labor.

Frank Peckham, vice president of the Sentinels of the Republic, said:

"We feel that the failure of legislatures to ratify this year, in spite of the pressure brought upon them, means that the amendment is dead, and will never be enacted."

Scottish Commoner to Be Made Governor of Canada

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 26.—For the first time in history a "commoner" will be appointed governor general of Canada. Col. John Buchan, author and Conservative member of parliament for the Scottish universities since 1927, is to succeed the earl of Bessborough, who has held the post since February, 1931. Formal announcement of the appointment is expected shortly. Buchan is 59 and has written nearly fifty books.

President Goes to Sea; to Fish Off Bahamas

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jacksonville, Fla., March 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt left on the destroyer Farragut this afternoon for his vacation. Tomorrow he will board Vincent Astor's yacht off the Florida coast. Astor's yacht, the Nourmahal, left Miami today for the rendezvous off the Florida coast. The President will fish off the Bahamas Islands.

As his special train sped southward to this city today the President conferred with Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins on some of the details of the 4 billion 800 million dollar work relief program.

The President took his plans aboard the Farragut. He plans to make them public when congress completes the passage of the bill. That measure now is in the house again. If the bill is passed while the President is casting for game fish it will be brought by plane to him for signature.

Hopkins Appears Pleased.

Hopkins emerged from the conference beaming. The fact that he had been singled out from the New Deal hierarchy for the conference indicated he will have a leading rôle in spending the money.

Although the President has said he will personally direct the program through a board, it is believed one man will have charge of the program. Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who is PWA administrator, is a contender for such a post, has lost favor among New Dealers. He is disliked by congress.

Ickes was given three billion to spend through the PWA two years ago. He still has about a billion left. The advocates of planned economy favor Hopkins, who has spent three billion and is asking for more.

"Sure we can spend four billion in a year," Hopkins said. "I can't say when the program will get under way, but we will put 3,500,000 men to work and get moving. Obviously the projects will have to be undertaken where the unemployed are. They should be such as to provide chief expenditure for labor and as little as possible for material. We ought to be out of relief pretty well by next November."

Denies Tugwell Will Lead.

Hopkins declined to comment on the possibility of his assuming the direction of the program. He did, however, deny reports that Rexford Guy Tugwell, No. 1 brain truster, would get the job of No. 1 spender.

The President arrived at Jacksonville at 3:30 in the afternoon, having left Washington at 11 last night with the assurance his secretary, Col. Louis McHenry Howe, who has been ill in the White House, was improving.

YOUTH MAKES SKETCH OF HIS OPERATION AS SURGEONS PERFORM IT

Berkeley, Cal., March 26.—(AP)—Ted Key, 22 year old cartoonist, today displayed a full series of pencil sketches of his own operation, drawn while under surgeons' knives.

About to undergo an abdominal operation under a local anaesthetic, Key, formerly art editor of the University of California student newspaper, demanded permission to have his arms left free and to be given pencil and paper.

While surgeons worked, Key made a group of drawings by means of the reflections in an arc reflector overhead.

DUCE "DOLLS UP" TOWN FOR "BIG 3" PARLEY ON ARMS

STRESA, Italy, March 26.—(AP)—A brand new town renovated under Il Duce's orders will greet Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, when they arrive here on April 11 for their tripartite conversations with Premier Mussolini.

Hundreds of workmen invaded the railroad station today and began "virtually to tear it down" to the consternation of the townspeople. Inquiry established that the workmen proposed to face the station inside and out with Italian marble so as to make it more fitting for the visiting statesmen.

Other hundreds of workmen busied themselves pulling to pieces the main street of the town. They, likewise, told questioners they were doing so under orders from above to make it spick and span and smooth with glistening asphalt before the conferences begin.

TELEPHONE MAN MEETS UP WITH A "CONTINGENCY"

Topeka, Kas., March 26.—(AP)—L. H. Schultz of Kansas City, Southwestern Bell Telephone company engineer, was explaining to the Kansas corporation commission today, at a phone rate hearing, what entered into an item he had listed as "contingency cost." Here was his example:

While making a telephone installation, an employé of the company had occasion to go to the attic. In the attic he stepped through the plaster.

"Well," said Schultz, "he crashed through the floor and fell into the bathroom below—and the mistress of the house was taking a bath. It cost us a lot to straighten that out—that was a 'contingency cost.'"

Buy Artillery Horses for Boy in Army Drama

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Fort Sheridan's military routine was broken yesterday by the stir of dramatic events as two bewildered artillery horses, Buffalo and Reno, were sold at auction before moving picture and newspaper cameras, given a rousing farewell and started in an army truck on a 550 mile journey to Volin, S. D.

There they will begin a post-army career before the plow as the gift from the entire United States field artillery to Leroy Johnson, 12 years old, a South Dakota farm boy. They will pull up before the Johnson farmhouse some time tomorrow, entirely to the surprise of Leroy.

Tries To Help Father.

On March 1 Leroy wrote a letter from Volin, addressed it to "U. S. War Department [Artillery]" and posted it to Washington. Beginning "Dear Sirs," he said in the letter:

"I am writing to you to see if you might have an old team of artillery horses that are too old to be of any use, that you could give away. You see my dad has a farm here of 300 acres, with a big mortgage on, and we . . . have only one team of old mares, one gray and one black.

"I am 13 years this coming June and my brother Roger will be 11 this spring and us boys would like to help our dad do some farm work this year. We have about 40 head of cattle and some pigs and sheep. My dad says he cannot afford to buy any horses so I thought I would try and see if I could not help him some way.

"We will have about 150 acres to plow this spring and will have about 90 acres in small grain."

Impossible to Comply.

He ended with the words, "Hoping to hear from you, I remain yours truly, Leroy Johnson," and added a postscript: "My dad's name—Charley J. Johnson."

About a week later he received a letter from Maj. Gen. Upton Birnie Jr., chief of field artillery, U. S. Army, dated March 6. It began, "Dear Leroy," and read in part:

". . . I believe also if artillery horses could read letters and could talk, all those that have grown too old for further duty in their country's services would be asking me for the privilege of working for you and Roger. . . . Unfortunately, however, the government requires that these devoted and loyal old veterans of the artillery be sold, and for that reason none can be given you. . . ."

Leroy has not been informed that, despite the discouraging recital of army regulations in his letter, Maj. Gen. Birnie and members of the Field Artillery association found a way to comply with all the numerous military requirements and yet fulfill his desire.

Army Men to Give.

An appeal is being sent out by the association to raise an average of 3 cents each from officers and enlisted men in the field artillery, of whom there are about 12,000 here and stationed in Hawaii, the Philippines, and Panama. The money will cover the cost of buying two condemned horses and taking them to South Dakota. Any surplus will go toward harness.

For the sake of Leroy considerable maneuvering was done to conform to all the rules. Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, commanding the 6th corps area here, ordered the condemnation and sale of "old and unserviceable horses belonging to the 2d battalion, 3d field artillery," that Judge, nicknamed Buffalo, and Reno might go to

VERDICT CLEARS HER OF HUSBAND KILLING CHARGE

Decision Is Reached After Long Debate.

Mrs. Anna Ericksen, 40 years old, mother of six children, was acquitted by a jury last night of responsibility for the murder of her husband, George, a tavern keeper. The jury returned its verdict before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court at 11 p. m. after almost seven hours of deliberation.

The jurors stood 11 to 1 for acquittal for more than an hour. One juror steadfastly refused for that period to retreat from his stand for the minimum penalty of 14 years in prison. When the deliberations began he was in favor of a life sentence.

Members of the jury said they took seven ballots before reaching a verdict. On the first ballot they stood 6 to 5 for acquittal, with one man not voting. The vote then went to 7-5, 8-4, 10-2, 10-2, and 11-1, before the final acquittal ballot.

Ericksen Slain by Senese.

Ericksen was shot down early in the morning of last Dec. 22, at the back door of his home at 6221 South Keating avenue. The state charged that he was murdered by James Senese, 20 years old, neighborhood hoodlum.

Senese took the witness stand for the state and testified that he committed the crime for a promised fee of $500. He declared that Mrs. Ericksen had told him she would pay him this amount from $6,100 of insurance which she expected to collect.

Elmer Krueger, 22 years old, also testified for the state that he was a participant in the murder plot. He said he watched Senese fire the first shot and then fled. Senese admitted that he fired five shots into Ericksen.

Senese and Krueger were indicted with Mrs. Ericksen for the murder, but were granted a separate trial so they could become state witnesses.

Another Motive Is Charged.

In addition to the alleged insurance plot their story was that Mrs. Ericksen wanted her husband slain so that she could marry George Collard, a former radio operator at the Chicago airport and a patron of the Airport grill operated by the Ericksens at 6001 South Cicero avenue. Collard committed suicide in Milwaukee on March 8 while the state's attorney's office was seeking him as a witness.

Mrs. Ericksen denied all the charges of Senese and Krueger on the witness stand.

"We will try Senese and Krueger," was the only comment which Assistant State's Attorneys John P. Boyle and Emmet Moynihan had to make last night on the outcome of the trial. No date has been set for their trial, however.

Widow Embraces Her Lawyers.

The acquittal verdict was received in an almost hysterical scene. Mrs. Ericksen embraced Defense Attorneys Harold Levy and Emmet Byrne. Then tears streamed down her face as she threw her arms about Roy, 6 years old, her youngest son.

"I have nothing to say," she told an interviewer. "I want to thank my lawyers. I want to get home to my children."

Friends who had stayed with her to hear the verdict patted her on the back as she talked.

Mrs. Ericksen's other five children, Geraldine, 20 years old; George, 18; Florence, 13; Lorraine, 12, and June, 11, got to their mother as soon as they could shoulder their way through the crowd. Ericksen's mother, Mrs. Julia Ericksen Nolan, and Mrs. Ericksen's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Rice, also joined in the jubilation.

Day of Fainting and Tears.

The final day of the trial was marked by the collapse of the defendant while Prosecutor Moynihan was demanding the death penalty for her in his closing address to the jury. Collard's sister, Myrtle, also fainted at one point in the defense lawyers' final pleas. Mrs. Ericksen and her children wept intermittently throughout the day.

Defense Attorneys Levy and Byrne staked their case almost entirely on their closing argument. They apparently succeeded in convincing the jury that Senese had robbed Ericksen and was trying to escape responsibility for his act by concocting the murder plot story. They first developed this idea during the cross examination of Senese earlier in the trial and kept pounding it home at every opportunity.

The prosecutors charged during their closing pleas that the defense had engineered a masterful piece of showmanship for the last day of the trial by displaying Mrs. Ericksen and all her children in tears.

After the verdict the jurors said they could not put enough reliance in the story of Senese to return a conviction. Several admitted they had closed their minds to his testimony several days ago. Some of them showed this during the closing session, when they swung their swivel chairs in such a position that they had their backs to the rest of the courtroom while the closing arguments were being made.

Mrs. Ericksen was hurried out of the county jail after the verdict and rejoined her family, who waited in front of the institution for her. They were all sent home in an automobile by the defense attorneys.

SISTERS, PARTED SINCE INFANCY, MEET IN COURT

The reunion of two sisters who have been separated since their infancy took place in the Women's court yesterday. It had been delayed by the arrest of one of the women, but ended on a happy note.

The sisters are Mrs. Katherine Willison, 27 years old, of Beaver, Pa., wife of a Pittsburgh Steel company official, and Miss Josephine Moore, 25 years old, 212 North Hamlin avenue. Mrs. Willison arrived in Chicago to meet her sister Monday and learned that on Saturday Miss Moore was arrested with three other women in a loop store as a shoplifting suspect.

After Municipal Judge Edward S. Scheffler heard the story yesterday he fined Miss Moore $1 upon her promise to go to live with Mrs. Willison. The other prisoners were Marion Martin, Lucy Anne Ayotte, and Marion Pullman, all of the Hamlin avenue address. Miss Martin paid a $1 fine and Miss Ayotte and Miss Pullman were put on probation for a year.

Mrs. Willison and Miss Moore were separated in 1911 after the death of their father. Katherine remained with her mother in Massillion, O., while Josephine went to live with an aunt in Sycamore, Ill. Only recently they learned each other's whereabouts.

1,000 STUDENTS HEAR H. SCHOOL BOYS WHIPPED

Cleveland, O., March 26.—[Special.]—This comes to you direct from the principal's office at Schaaf Junior High school in Parma. Principal E. O. Bartlow speaking:

"I have here in my office five boys who have been caught smoking in the school building. They will be dealt with accordingly."

There is a harsh rasping in the loud speakers in the classrooms as Principal Bartlow turns a dial for more power on the public address system.

Activity—except in the principal's office—comes to a standstill. Students lay aside their books and wait for further word from the speakers all over the building.

Then suddenly—"Wham! O-o-o-o! Wham! Bam! O!" A thousand students hear the resounding blows of Mr. Bartlow's paddle and the wails of the victims.

Thus Principal Bartlow has solved to his own satisfaction the problem of "to spank or not to spank"—a question arousing much comment in Cleveland.

"I tried it merely for effect," Principal Bartlow said. "I wanted to make an impression on the rest of the student body—and I think I did."

Rush Forstmann to Doctor After Mishap in South Seas

San Pedro, Cal., March 26.—[Special.]—Carl Julius Forstmann, Passaic, N. J., industrialist, is being rushed here from the south seas for treatment of a broken arm suffered a week ago. The accident occurred off Tahiti, where Forstmann was cruising in his 333 foot yacht Orion. He will arrive here tomorrow aboard the yacht.

Robin Still Fighting Its Reflection After 5 Days

Dover, O., March 26.—(AP)—A robin has been fighting its own reflection in a filling station window in Strasburg, north of here, since Friday. The bird returns to the window early each day and starts pecking vigorously. Attendants in the filling station said they may board up the window if the bird does not admit defeat soon.

HUNT GUNMEN IN LAKE RESORTS; SHUT HANDBOOKS

Secret Search for Gang in Courtney Shooting.

Behind a cloak of secrecy the search for the men who fired eight pistol shots at State's Attorney Courtney early Sunday spread into Lake county and other nearby territory yesterday.

Investigators from the prosecutor's office went into the resort country west of Waukegan, concentrating especially in the Fox lake region. They gave no hint of the object of their search beyond indicating that it was a part of the general hunt for the assassins.

The same sort of secrecy clothed the activities of police here. Acting under orders of Commissioner James P. Allman policemen closed many handbook gambling places, but made no arrests. Here again the police would not say that the raids were directly concerned with the attempt to kill the prosecutor.

Undesirables Leave City.

Although arrests of police characters continued throughout the day the exodus of undesirables because of the "heat" that followed the attempted murder apparently had cleared the city of all except the small fry. Several persons arrested on suspicion were released after questioning. One of these was Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, who spent the night in a detective bureau cell after his arrest in the loop Monday.

Commissioner Allman, reiterated instructions to the police yesterday to detain for questioning any person found driving a licenseless automobile. It was recalled that the gunmen who fired on Courtney were in a car without license plates when they drove up beside Courtney's automobile in which he and Ald. Harry E. Perry [18th] were riding in Normal boulevard between 70th and 71st streets.

Governor Voices Support.

"This attack on a fearless law enforcer, is an assault on public security," said Gov. Horner, who was in Chicago yesterday. "It is a challenge to every decent effort toward upholding the law in Chicago, and throughout the country. I know it will not deter Mr. Courtney in his able fight in driving organized criminals from Cook county."

The prosecutor continued to exhibit the same calm purposefulness he has shown since the attack. He let it be known that he was proceeding without fanfare, but with renewed determination. "They tried to get me without warning, and that's the way I'm going after them," he explained.

INFRA-RED RAYS SHED LIGHT ON 'TORSO MURDER'

LONDON, March 27.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—Infra-red rays in Scotland Yard's modern science laboratory have shed new light, it was disclosed today, on England's baffling "torso murder" mystery. Examination of the brown paper used to wrap a pair of severed legs found in a railway coach at Waterloo station resulted in tracing it to the Hanwell mental hospital.

Chief Inspector Donaldson of Scotland yard announced the red ray camera had revealed that the paper bore the erased words "Harry," "Hanwell" and "ward 14."

The handwriting was identified by the Hanwell hospital postal clerk, but the clerk could not remember to whom he had delivered the original package on which the brown paper was used. Dragging operations at the Grand Junction canal, from which a torso sewed into a gunny sack was hauled up, was shifted closer to the hospital in the hope of uncovering further clews. The hospital is located on the bank of the canal.

Nazi Economic Dictator Hits at Increased Wages

LEIPZIG, Germany, March 26.—(AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economic dictator of the reich, warned several thousand workers today that their demands for better wages and hours would not be fulfilled if they are in disregard of economic possibilities.

STREET REPAIRS CUT AUTO DEATH TOLL, DATA SHOW

Four in 986 Occur on Faulty Pavements.

Only four of the 986 automobile deaths in Chicago last year occurred in accidents on pavements that were not in good condition, according to a report made yesterday to Mayor Kelly by the police accident prevention bureau. Two of these four deaths, the report states, could be charged to a disregard of warning signs.

Last year, the total number of automobile accidents, fatal and nonfatal, was 16,872, of which only 34 were ascribed to defects in pavements, the report shows. In contrast with the 34 accidents on poor pavements during 1934, the corresponding figure in 1928 was 116.

Credits Mayor's Repair Program.

In a supplementary report issued by Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt, credit is given to the mayor's street repair program for the fact that poor pavements constituted such a minor factor in Chicago auto accidents. In 1934, Hewitt said, more streets were repaired than in any of the 27 years since the vehicle tax fund was established.

"There is a wide difference between the amount of street repairs in 1928 and 1934," Commissioner Hewitt reported to the mayor. "Under your program last year 1,696,718 square yards of asphalt pavement were repaired as compared with 738,145 square yards in 1928.

Work Shows Statistical Results.

"Last year when more than twice as many holes were repaired as in 1928, the auto accidents due to defective pavements were less than one-third of the number in 1928.

"In 1929 the asphalt repairs totaled 980,097 square yards as compared with 1,696,718 in 1934. The auto accidents due to defective pavements in 1929 totaled 91 as compared with 34 last year.

"In addition to doing more roadway work last year than in previous years, the cost per square yard was $1.43. Only two years since 1918 have registered a lower figure."

U. S. Fatalities Fall Off.

Motor vehicle accidents caused 2,070 deaths in the United States during February, according to figures made public yesterday by the national safety council. The February total represented a decrease of 7 per cent from January and a decrease of 4 per cent from February, 1934.

I. Chinsky, a Chicago automobile dealer, was fatally injured yesterday when his automobile struck a cinder pile at a highway junction near Flora, Ill.

There were no deaths yesterday in Cook county and the motor toll for 1935 remained at 210. At 4 p. m. yesterday 172 had been killed this year in automobile accidents within the city limits, while the number of injured totaled 3,310.

Jury Frees Lawyer-Autoist.

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Attorney Meyer M. Gilbert, 24 years old, 1524 South Lawndale avenue, in the death of Mrs. Mildred Issen, 48 years old, 1315 South Avers avenue, who was struck Sunday night by Gilbert's automobile at Independence boulevard and 14th street.

GIRL, 14, GUARDED AFTER HER STORY CONVICTS RAPIST

Defendant's Kin Accused of Threatening Her.

After testifying yesterday in the trial of an ex-convict who had raped her, a 14 year old high school girl was guarded by a police squad as she left the Criminal court building because of alleged threats made against her by members of the defendant's family.

The ex-convict is Frank Ross, 23 years old, member of a gang of five hoodlums who held the girl captive in an apartment at 1307 West Adams street for two days last December.

Gets Three Years in Prison.

Ross was found guilty by Judge Michael Feinberg in a trial without a jury. The judge immediately sentenced him to three years in prison, the same punishment given last Jan. 4 to Ross' four confederates.

As the girl witness started to leave the court building several members of the Ross family crowded around her in the sixth floor corridor outside the courtroom. A policeman who saw the incident said later that he heard muttered threats against the girl. A police squad then was assigned to escort her home.

Four Previously Sentenced.

The four members of the gang sentenced in January are Joseph Custo, 44 years old, Roy Costa, 23 years old, Christy Dattalo, 22 years old, and Sam Castagnino, 25 years old.

During their trial before Judge Cornelius Harrington the girl witness disrupted the hearing by charging that a member of the jury had been in the apartment at the time she was raped. This identification was disproved, but a mistrial was declared, the four rapists consented to plead guilty, and were sentenced.

CHASE EXPECTED TO DO TIME ON ALCATRAZ ISLAND

John Paul Chase, who was convicted by a federal jury Monday night of the murder of Samuel P. Cowley, a department of justice agent, will serve his life imprisonment term in the government fortress on Alcatraz Island in San Francisco bay, according to reports current yesterday in the United States courthouse.

The choice of a prison is up to the United States attorney general. By finding Chase guilty and recommending mercy the jury in Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan's court automatically decreed his punishment at life imprisonment.

Chase's attorneys will appear before Judge Sullivan tomorrow morning to argue on a motion for a new trial. If this is denied the judge will sentence Chase in accordance with the verdict and he will be remanded to the custody of the United States marshal. It was indicated that even if the defense attorneys appeal, Chase will be taken immediately to Leavenworth penitentiary and transferred within a few weeks to Alcatraz, where such desperadoes as Al Capone and George [Machine Gun] Kelly are confined.

Chase, who is 33 years old and an ex-California bootlegger, was the companion of "Baby Face" Nelson in the gun battle at Barrington last Nov. 27 which resulted in the deaths of Nelson, Cowley, and Herman Hollis, another government agent.

Tourists in Canada Spend $131,000,000 During 1934

OTTAWA, Ont., March 26.—(AP)—Tourists in Canada last year spent $131,000,000, $14,000,000 more than in 1933, and Canadians abroad spent $61,000,000, the dominion bureau of statistics reported today in giving its preliminary estimates of the tourist industry for 1934.

FRECHETTE GIVES HIS VERSION OF BROWN SLAYING

Howell, Mich., March 26.—[Special.]—Clarence Frechette, 35 year old ex-convict, on trial here for the murder of his young employer, Robert Brown, Kalamazooe truck line operator, reënacted from the witness stand today his version of the fatal night in which he contends Brown was accidentally killed.

Frechette was assisted in his demonstration by his counsel, Jay P. Sweeney, who assumed the rôle of the slain Brown. The jury was shown how the two men, according to defense claims, struggled for possession of a gun after Frechette knocked Brown down because he had made a remark derogatory to Frechette's sweetheart, Grace Curran.

Frechette said Brown produced a pistol and that they fell into a clinch as Frechette tried to knock the weapon from his employer's hands. The pistol was discharged twice in the struggle, Frechette said, the bullets entering Brown's head.

Frechette told of his early marriage to a Mrs. Katherine Stephens, wealthy wife of one of his former employers and ten years his senior. He took flying lessons and became a fairly proficient pilot. After his separation from his wife he hired a plane, he said, to take a Mother's day gift to his parent, living near Pontiac. He said the pilot became panic stricken and froze to the controls. Frechette said that, to avoid a crash, he struck the pilot with a hammer, stunning him. Both men were hurt as the ship cracked up. Frechette served a five year prison term for criminal assault.

RENTS FLAT TO 15, TAKING DEPOSITS; IS GIVEN 30 DAYS

This being the moving season, Joseph H. Marshall, 4545 Beacon street, was reading the want ad columns of THE TRIBUNE last week, looking for an apartment to rent. He came upon the notice of Mrs. Sally Birch Scheafer, 41 years old, who desired to sublease her flat at 4455 Magnolia avenue.

Marshall found the premises satisfactory and gave Mrs. Scheafer $25 as a deposit. But when he appeared to take possession of his new quarters a few days later the apartment resembled the Union station.

Fourteen other "tenants" were moving into the same flat at the same time and the congestion was terrific. Marshall took the problem to the police, who arrested Mrs. Scheafer for obtaining money under false pretenses. It was charged she had taken similar deposits from each of the "tenants."

Judge Edward S. Scheffler in the Women's court yesterday sentenced her to thirty days in the Bridewell. Mrs. Scheafer promised that, after serving her sentence, she would try to make restitution of the funds.

NEXT SATURDAY WILL BE SAFETY DAY IN CHICAGO

Next Saturday has been designated Safety Saturday in the Keep Chicago Safe campaign of Mayor Kelly. Ceremonies designed to bring home to the citizen the need for caution have been arranged for the loop and community centers through the cooperation of American Legion posts.

At State and Madison streets at noon a Legion drum and bugle corps will play. Then the Chicago Safety Pledge will be read over a public address system. As trafic halts for one minute a bugler will sound taps in memory of the many trafic victims. Similar ceremonies will be held at street intersections in community centers.

PIECE OF GIRL'S LEG GRAFTED INTO SPINE; CORRECT DEFORMITY

Philadelphia, Pa., March 26.—(AP)—A piece of her leg was in her back, but a broad smile lit the freckled face of Constance Koons, 15, tonight.

The piece of leg—a 12 inch blade of shin bone—was grafted into her spine by Dr. Paul N. Jepson at the University of Pennsylvania graduate hospital.

The graft was made to correct a spinal curvature extending from the nape of the girl's neck almost to her waist. The shin bone, strong and straight, flattened out the deformity.

Constance, a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. O. Koons of Shickshinny, Pa., was first placed in a plaster cast with a turnbuckle, Dr. Jepson explained. This straightened her back.

Then the spinous processes—the little ridges you feel in your back when you lean back against a straight backed chair—were split, and in this raw bony channel the piece of shin bone was placed.

Constance is "fine," Dr. Jepson said.

ATLANTIC FLYERS FOUND GUILTY IN MOONSHINE TRIAL

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—Joseph and Benjamin Adamowicz, aviators who flew the Atlantic on a trip to Poland last year, and their brother, Bonislaw, were found guilty today in United States court, Brooklyn, of conspiracy to operate an unregistered still. They were remanded to jail for sentence on Thursday.

The three had been on trial since Wednesday before Judge Grover M. Moscowitz. Testimony showed that the still was located in the rear of a soda water plant operated by the brothers in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn.

Federal agents who raided the place last Sept. 18 said that they found the still, of 1,800 gallons capacity, and a number of large tanks of mash in process of fermentation.

ACCUSED PASTOR BLAMES WIFE'S LEAPS IN CHURCH

Robert Young, 41 years old, who says he is a preacher in the Holy Roller church, was arrested last night in his home, 2641 Crystal street, on a warant charging him with abandoning his wife and two children in Marinette, Wis. According to Sergt. John Payton, his wife learned of Young's whereabouts when he applied for a passport to England two weeks ago.

"It's true I left my family," said Young, who is now working as a restaurant chef, "but I had a reason.

"When I married my wife at Mena, Ark., I was the pastor of a Holy Roller church and she played the organ, guitar, and piano. During the course of preaching in Palestine, Elgin, and Marinette I grew away from the old idea of the roller religion, but my wife continued to jump about at the services. This violent leaping on her part drove away the quieter members of my congregation, so I finally left."

Young said he would return to face the charges, but that he would not return to his wife. They have a boy, 15, and a girl, 12 years old.

CONG. GASSAWAY GOOD IN FIGHT AND ADMITS IT

But Cong. Hook, a Loser, Threatens Reprisal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—Congressman P. L. Gassaway [Dem., Okla.], ex-cowboy and ex-judge who wears a four gallon hat and high heel boots on Capitol hill, was badgered into a full confession tonight regarding the details of a free-for-all fist fight at the Mayflower hotel last Thursday night.

The occasion was a convivial little banquet for some 100 new members of the house.

Two Take Four to Cleaners.

"Yes, there was a little scrap, but it didn't amount to much. They didn't know how to fight," said Congressman Gassaway. "Congressman Hook [Frank E., Dem., Ironwood, Mich.] and three other men who were not congressmen were bothering my friend, Jack Nichols, and I just went over and helped him out.

"It didn't take Jack and me long to clean up all four of them."

This was the substance, but not by any means all, of Mr. Gassaway's story.

Congressman Hook Protests.

Congressman Hook, however, protested with considerable feeling that it was all "a pack of lies."

"Gassaway is just trying to get some Huey Long publicity," Mr. Hook said. "There is absolutely nothing to that story. I am warning you that there will be trouble if you print it. There is already considerable talk about putting a bill through congress to curb these newspapers that print wild stories like that."

Upon hearing these diametrically opposite stories, a reporter made inquiries among various noncombatant guests and it would seem from the evidence adduced that one of them is perhaps a slight exaggeration.

Now a Third Version.

"Yes, Congressman Hook had a black eye the next day," said a colleague who saw the windup of the fight. "And Gassaway had a gash over his lip. Furthermore, there were no three men with Hook. There was nobody with him. There was no guest there, except congressmen. Mr. Hook got the best of both Mr. Gassaway and Mr. Nichols."

Congressman Gassaway is the solon who raised Senator Huey Long's every-card-a-king ante recently. He said the government should give every citizen $30,000 a year, doubling the Louisianan's measly five.

Raps Down Hook's Speech.

Mr. Nichols, another Democratic member from Oklahoma, acted as toastmaster at the banquet, and, according to Gassaway, offended Hook when the latter got up to make a speech on the soldiers' bonus. The Patman bonus bill was to be voted upon in the house the next day and it was understood that there would be no political speeches, this being a friendly little get-together for freshman members. So, when Hook began making a political speech, Nichols "rapped him down."

It was after the banquet, according to Gassaway's story, that he saw Hook and the "three other men" gathering menacingly around Nichols.

Find He's Not Too Old.

"I went over there," he said, "and they told me I was just a gray haired old man who couldn't fight, so I'd better keep out of it. But I guess they soon found out that I'm not too old to fight."

Impartial observers said the scrap lasted about ten minutes, the statesmen having been parted finally by neutral guests who thought the dignity of the house might become involved.

Australia-London Flyer, Feared Lost, Lands Safely

CALCUTTA, India, March 27 (Wednesday).—(AP)—H. L. Brook, the English flyer who was thought to have met disaster on a flight between Rangoon and Calcutta en route to London for a new Australia record, arrived safely at the Dumdum airport today and took off for Jodhpur. ILLINOIS GROUP FAILS TO OBTAIN TALK ON RELIEF

Hopkins Away as Five Reach Capital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—The so-called "cherry blossom junket" of five members of the Illinois legislature arrived in this city today to confer with Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins only to discover that he had departed with President Roosevelt for Florida last night.

Representative Benjamin Adamowski, chairman of the group, obtained an interview for tomorrow morning with Hopkins' assistants.

According to Adamowski, the legislators want to cut down, if possible, the 3 million dollars a month Illinois has been asked to contribute toward relief by an order from Hopkins. Another subject to be discussed in conference is a proposed reorganization of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which Hopkins would not consent to recently.

Two other Democrats besides Adamowski in the delegation are Representatives Thomas Sinnett and Lawrence Arnold. The Republicans are Representatives Leroy Green and David Swanson.

Arriving on the "cherry blossom special," the party probably will return tomorrow afternoon. According to local botanists, Washington's famed cherry blossoms will not officially appear until Sunday.

Sinnett said the cost of the junket "should not amount to more than $350."

YALE TEACHER, SHOT IN MOUTH, FOUND IN ROOM

New Haven, Conn., March 26.—(AP)—Prof. Frederick Erastus Pierce, 57, associate professor of English at Yale university, was in a critical condition in a hospital tonight after what was described by Coroner James J. Corrigan as an "attempted suicide."

The coroner said he received a report from Dr. Frank Toole that Dr. Pierce had fired a .22 caliber bullet into his mouth.

Dr. Pierce was found by members of his family. He was lying unconscious on the floor of the bathroom at his home. The family broke down the door.

Coroner Corrigan said the professor had been melancholy for a year or more.

Prof. Pierce was a native of South Britain, Conn., and was graduated from Yale in 1904.

Find First Blossoms

The first crocuses and snowdrops to bloom in the Chicago park district outdoor gardens were discovered yesterday in Washington park by George Ehmann, landscape maintenance superintendent. Mr. Ehmann found Shirley Collins, 6109 Stewart avenue, remonstrating Bill Kearns, 6111 Stewart avenue, for having broken park rules and gathered some of the spring flowers.

MRS. DOUBLEDAY GIVEN A SETBACK IN SLANDER SUIT

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—Max C. Fleischmann, sportsman and executive of Standard Brands, Inc., won a point today in the $100,000 slander suit brought against him by Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday when Supreme Court Justice McCook set aside a warant of attachment which Mrs. Doubleday had obtained against $5,000 of the defendant's property in this state.

Mrs. Doubleday sued Mr. Fleischmann on the strength of an alleged slanderous remark he made about her in the presence of several persons on the golf course of the Valley club at Santa Barbara, Cal., on Nov. 3, 1933.

The plaintif, who is the former wife of Felix Doubleday, son of the book publisher, said that the remark attributed to the defendant was made soon after she had begun a suit in Chicago against Harold F. McCormick for $1,500,000, charging that he had failed to keep a promise to marry her.

The remarks complained of included an alleged reference to "blackmail" and when the plaintif's slander suit against Mr. Fleischmann was dismissed in California she instituted a similar action in the New York court.

Pope to Beseech the Lord to Grant Peace to World

VATICAN CITY, March 26.—(AP)—Pope Pius will officiate on April 7 at St. Peter's cathedral in a ceremony to beseech the Lord to grant peace to the world. At the conclusion of the ceremony relics of Christ's passion will be exposed for the adoration of the faithful. The ceremony will be attended by many cardinals and other high prelates and, it was estimated, by about 20,000 lay worshipers.

KING'S JUBILEE MEDAL 'SCANDAL' STIRS COMMONS

Foreigners Won't Flatter British Monarch.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 26. — A bit of "scandal" about the silver jubilee of King George V. flared up in the house of commons today.

Foreigners, it seems, are flooding the country with crude medals showing King George and Queen Mary in likenesses that could in no way be called flattering. What is almost as bad, some foreigners are shipping in tons of medals, brass buttons, and other souvenirs of the jubilee to the great detriment of British manufacturers, who feel they ought to have first call on so patriotic an occasion.

The medals are coming from Germany, Czechoslovakia, and points east, and selling for much below what the British medals cost. Flags made in Japan are being dumped on the unsuspecting country so that innocent school children will be betrayed into waving Japanese made flags when the king rides down the street next May.

What to Do About It.

Shocked, the house of commons heard Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, admit there is no existing power to prevent foreigners from making medals on which the likeness is not accurate. The British public, whose taste in art is notoriously low, will thus be left to shift for itself to decide which medals show the real king.

As for decreasing the importation of foreign souvenirs, the tarif advisory board at any time may take action by boosting tarifs if the protests grow, and if it is shown that British producers are suffering unduly.

Must Drive 3 Horses.

While this agitation was going on, the public learned with dismay that, though English girls are famed as horsewomen, they draw the line at chariots. Not even the inducement of playing the part of the British Queen Boadicea—the blonde with long hair who defied the Romans in the year 61—persuaded a single girl to come forward for that rôle in the jubilee pageant in Nottinghamshire planned for June.

One of the qualifications is that the modern Boadicea must be able to drive a chariot as the queen did and at full speed around the pageant grounds with three horses. Experts believe either that foreign charioteers will have to be imported or a British circus girl hired.

ROOSEVELT SON CALLS AIR LOBBY HINT BASELESS

Fort Worth, Tex., March 26.—[Special.]—Denying he had lobbied for the Mead air mail bill, Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, today termed such charges "misinformation and poor representation of the facts."

He said he knew little about the bill and asserted that his contract with the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce automatically would end if he should so much as be asked to make contacts on political matters.

"Certainly there is nothing to be covered up," he said. "In fact, that is the thing we are hopeful of getting away from in aviation in order that we may strengthen our position. As long as the government uses aviation for a political football we are not going to have much success getting the public to use our services.

"It is obvious that a great part of my work as consultant for the A. C. C. is being retarded now until we know just what the government intends doing about our situation, but as far as my taking any active part in legislative matters, it is entirely out of the question."

GABRILOWITSCH, PIANIST, ENTERS FORD HOSPITAL

Detroit, March 26.—(AP)—Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist and conductor of the Detroit Symphony orchestra, was in Henry Ford hospital tonight undergoing treatment for what was described as "acute intestinal complications."

Mr. Gabrilowitsch entered the hospital Monday, having become ill while fulfilling a concert engagement in New York. He has canceled all concert engagement for the next few weeks.

Mr. Gabrilowitsch has three concert engagements in New York, beginning next Tuesday. He has some Chicago engagements within the next few weeks, but no definite action was taken on canceling those. He is 57 years old.

Berkeley, Cal., March 26.—(AP)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins still is a "mere politician" to Miss Martha Ijams regardless of what Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, have to say about it.

Miss Ijams, prominent alumna of the university, declined to be a hostess at a banquet honoring Miss Perkins last Saturday because she didn't approve of having a "mere politician" be the first woman to address a Charter day celebration at Berkeley.

Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday questioned if Miss Ijams intended to snub the cabinet member and remarking, "A snub is the effort of a person who feels superior to make some one else feel inferior."

"She is presumptuous, as usual, in her assumption as to what I intended or did not intend relative to Miss Perkins," replied Miss Ijams. "Mrs. Roosevelt would do well to remember the people didn't elect her President. A little more retirement would be well on her part."

GIRL BABY BORN 10 MINUTES AFTER MOTHER'S DEATH

Baby Cynthia Mae Brewer, who was born through a Caesarian operation after the death of her mother Sunday morning, is a perfectly healthy and normal infant, physicians said at Francis Willard hospital yesterday. The baby's mother, Mrs. Edna L. Brewer, 26 years old, 510 Summit street, Barrington, was stricken Sunday morning in her home. Dr. B. P. Graber of Barrington, the attending physician, took her to the hospital, called Dr. Vaughn L. Sheets at his home and asked him to perform an emergency operation.

Mrs. Brewer died shortly after her arrival and Dr. Sheets delivered the baby, weighing 5 pounds 11 ounces, ten minutes after her death. For the next forty-five minutes artificial respiration was required to keep the baby alive.

Mrs. Brewer was the wife of Wilbur P. Brewer, owner of a motor car sales agency in Barrington.

LONG'S TIRADE BALKS SENATE PINK SLIP VOTE

Backs La Follette Measure for Full Publicity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—The fulminations of Senator Huey P. Long [Dem., La.] against the Rockefellers, the Morgans, and the Roosevelt administration this afternoon prevented a vote by the senate on the house bill repealing the pink slip, or publicity provision, of the income tax law.

Immediately after Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, called up the bill, Senator Robert La Follette [Radical, Wis.] introduced his amendment making tax returns public records and a prolonged debate ensued, with Long lining up with the La Follette-Norris full publicity group.

If this amendment is defeated tomorrow, La Follette is expected to introduce his amendment to increase the surtaxes on individual returns up to 70 per cent. Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], however, today said he would not press his excess profits tax for corporations until some revenue legislation came up for consideration.

Called "Kidnapers' Catalog."

The pink slip was denounced by Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] as providing "a catalog for kidnapers, blackmailers, thieves, race track touts, confidence men, and compilers of sucker lists."

"What business is it of my neighbor how much income tax I pay?" Copeland asked. "I am perfectly willing that those who are entitled to know, such as public officials, may examine my returns, but I am not willing to have some neighborhood gossip go and see them and then blab the information all over town."

Senator Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.] said he was opposed to the pink slip as a matter of principle and denied the contentions of La Follette and others that publicity prevents evasions.

"If a man is going to evade his income tax, no pink slip is going to stop him," Tydings declared.

Long Assails New Deal.

Long quoted Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins as saying 37 per cent of the population of New York was on the dole and then assailed the Roosevelt administration for "turning to the right—that is, right away from what I consider to be right." He said the reason all these people were on the dole was the failure of the President to keep his promises.

"Why, I am astonished," he bellowed, "that the President didn't interrupt his fishing trip long enough to send a message up here in support of this publicity amendment. He sent up a message last year against the bonus and he sent up a message saying the McCarran amendment would increase the cost of the work relief program 1 billion and wreck the credit of the United States.

"That's what the President said. An increase of 1 billion would mean the difference between solvency and chaos. Yet the President refuses to send up a message in support of this amendment that would bring thousands and maybe millions of dollars to the treasury."

Long "Made About $25,000."

When Long said it was only the "big money men" who objected to tax publicity, Tydings asked him how much he made last year.

"And what did he do with it?" interjected Senator Neely [Dem., W. Va.].

"I don't mind saying that I made about $25,000," said Long. "I will be glad to bring the senate a copy of my return. And in reply to the senator from West Virginia, I will say that I used the money to take students to football games, hire brass bands, and buy drinks for my friends. I got some good out of it."

REPAYING LOANS, FORGET TO TELL WHO THEY ARE

Washington, D. C., March 26.—(AP)—Holders of home owners' loans who make payments without identifying themselves have added to the difficulties of this government corporation.

"At one time last fall," Chairman John H. Fahey told a senate banking subcommittee today, "we had $2,000,000 in cash and checks that wasn't credited."

Preston Delano, general manager of the corporation, explained to reporters that this "floating" sum now has been reduced to $500,000.

He cited one occasion where a letter containing a $20 cash payment was received with no identification except the postmark on the envelope.

Financial distress in Ohio, due to unemployment and frozen bank and building and loan resources, today was said by Mr. Fahey to be responsible for that state leading all others in delinquent home owners' loan payments.

The HOLC chairman told a senate banking subcommittee that Ohio delinquencies amount to 34.8 per cent, compared with a national average of 20 per cent.

FARMERS RECALL OLD WARNING NOT TO PLOW LAND

Lamar, Colo., March 26.—(AP)—Fifty years ago resentful cattlemen told the southeastern Colorado homesteader: "This buffalo grass should never be plowed. The land will just dry up and the wind will blow it away, and you with it."

Farmers thought of that prediction today. The wind had blown part of the land away, but the homesteaders, many of them now substantial citizens, stood with their feet firmly planted on their wind battered property and prepared for rehabilitation.

Modern agricultural experts side with the old timers and agree much of the land never should have been plowed.

A. J. Hammond, county agent of Powers county, today described a complete "rest cure" for two or three years as the only hope for the dry farm lands of this region whose top soils have been hurled as high as three miles into the air by terrific winds for three weeks.

Runaway Horse Injures Bronx Child, 2 Policemen

New York, March 26.—(AP)—A runaway horse galloping through the Bronx today caused injuries to a 7 year old girl and two policemen before his capture at the end of a four mile chase. Ruth Pseiser, 7, received a possible fracture of the skull.

SENATE PASSES 905 MILLIONS TREASURY BILL

Ashurst, McKellar Clash in Bitter Debate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—This was a sad day in the United States senate for Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], whose famous rider to the deficiency appropriation bill last year resulted in a civil service test that stumped both Democrats and Republicans in the alcohol tax unit.

SENATOR McKELLAR.

SENATOR ASHURST.

First, Mr. McKellar was denounced as "ignorant" by a Democratic colleague which made him blubber and pout, and then the senate further humiliated him by rejecting his amendment to save the Democrats, but keep the Republicans out. This was the only debate that attended the passage of the 905 million dollar treasury-postoffice bill, but seldom has the senate produced such an exchange of personal invective.

Denounced by Ashurst.

"Either a willful, deliberate desire to injure the government or gross ignorance of what he was doing is the only excuse the senator has—and I stand on that statement," said Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.].

McKellar's rider last year was intended to apply only to some 700 members of the new alcohol tax unit who had acquired a civil service status under the Hoover régime. It provided for a new open and competitive examination before the agents could be paid out of the appropriation. The civil service commission, however, made the proviso applicable to all 1,300 members of the service and gave an examination that many of them refused to take

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau induced the 1,300 members to work without pay pending a new appropriation and recommended their full pay with reinstatement. The senate appropriations committee approved an item of $1,700,000 for their pay, but provided for a further examination by May 15, without passing which the 7000 Republicans would be dismissed.

Compromise Is Adopted.

McKellar sought to make this examination competitive, which would open it up to nonmembers of the service and give Democrats a chance to replace the Republicans, whose experience would not count in a freakish test such as that given last December.

The senate, however, adopted a compromise submitted by Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.] making the examination noncompetitive, over the violent protests of Senator McKellar.

"I believe in the civil service," said Senator Ashurst, "but when men are sent out to fight gangsters and the lives of our fellow citizens depend upon the ability of the officers to shoot straight I object to their being denied employment because they may not know who happened to be the last emperor of the western division of the Roman empire.

"For years I regarded the senator from Tennessee as safe to follow, and, without making a close examination, I voted for his so-called rider. I now apologize to the American people. It was unworthy of me. Therefore I believe I have the right to say to the senator from Tennessee that he himself did not know what he was doing. Only ignorance is his plea."

"Periled All Law Forces."

McKellar jumped up, complaining that Ashurst was doing him an injustice, and the latter continued:

"I have not done the senator an injustice. If he says he has done this willfully, then he has done himself an injustice, because his rider came very near disrupting the whole law enforcement program of the government."

Later Ashurst said certain senators had told him McKellar was complaining about his remarks. He said he would apologize if the remarks were construed as reflecting on the senator's mentality, but would not take back his statement that McKellar was ignorant of what he was doing.

McKellar refused to listen to Ashurst, indulging all the while in a conversation with Senator Huey Long, whom he loves about as much as Huey loves Postmaster General Farley.

"Outraged," Says McKellar.

"If the senator will deign to listen to me——" Ashurst began, repeating this remark several times. Finally McKellar jumped up and replied, so angry that his remarks were scarcely intelligible.

"The senator from Arizona has so outraged my sense of what is right and proper on the senate floor that I did not listen and I hope the country will not listen to him," he said.

"He has made very serious charges against me and if he is a gentleman, he will apologize; if he is not a gentleman, he will not."

"I have tried to make honorable amends," said Ashurst.

"He means to say that what he said in the first place was absolutely true and that if he hurt my feelings he apologizes," McKellar declared. "It is against the rules to impute unworthy motives to a senator. I think the senator ought to make up his mind whether he wants to apologize."

SILVER UPRISING IN HOUSE FALLS BY 263-108 VOTE

Five Billion Works Bill Goes to Conference.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—An uprising of the house silver bloc was quelled this afternoon when Republicans combined with anti-silver Democrats to send the 4 billion 880 million dollar "work-relief" bill to a house-senate conference.

The silverites fought stubbornly against the conference plan, but on a test roll call they were swamped by a vote of 263 to 108.

Representatives John Rankin [Dem., Miss.] and Martin Dies [Dem., Tex.], who led the silver forces, complained bitterly against the "gag" rule that permitted only one hour of debate on the conference proposal.

Will Remove Thomas Clause.

It is conceded as certain that the conferees of the two houses will extract from the bill all amendments odious to the administration, including the Thomas amendment providing for an inflation of the currency with silver as the medium. The bill is expected to emerge from conference in practically its original form, granting the President powers to spend the money as he sees fit with no strings attached.

To the obvious enjoyment of the Republicans, Rankin declared that it was not pleasant under the "gagging" of several months to fight against an organized machine.

"For a long time we have been legislating by delegating," contended Dies. "This house has too long sacrificed its dignity, power and prerogatives."

The Republicans, who had used similar arguments eight weeks ago when the bill was passed on 48 hours' notice, led in applauding Dies' remarks.

"This inflation amendment is bad," declared Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.]. "The whole bill is bad enough anyway, and we don't want to see it made worse."

"Isn't it the most atrocious and abominable measure ever presented to a legislative body—just a slush fund?" interrupted Representative Dewey Short [Rep., Mo.].

"It's not only ridiculous," shouted Taber, "but the terms of this bill constitute a fraud on the American people. Only a handful will be put to work and that will take a year and a half."

Fish Would Deport Authors.

Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.] proposed that the authors of the bill be deported to communist, Fascist, or Nazi countries across the sea. He said that passage of the bill made a mockery of our government.

The long drawn out struggle in the senate and the rapid acceptance of amendments in order to pass the bill in that body last Saturday before Senator Huey Long arrived by plane were referred to by Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the rules committee, who was handling the rule to send the bill to conference.

"You may well take pride in the fact that the house can legislate in a dignified fashion," asserted O'Connor. "We can go ahead without fear of a man coming by airplane. We do not intend to match demagogy with demagogy."

HOOVER TURNS BACK ON TALK OF NOMINATION

Landon's Presence Stirs Capital Politicians.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—Two incidents stirred no end of talk in political circles here today.

One was the disclosure of a recent letter in which former President Hoover disclaimed any intention of seeking the presidency again next year.

The other was the presence in Washington of Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas, who is already widely regarded as a certain contender for the Republican nomination.

A few weeks ago a friend of Mr. Hoover wrote to him suggesting that in his opinion the Republican party will in the end turn to the former President for its candidate in 1936.

"No Aspirations" That Way.

Replying under date of March 4, last, Mr. Hoover said:

"I have no aspirations in the direction you mention, but I intend to take a shot at what is going on when I think the right moments have arrived."

Republican politicians, not without evincing a good deal of wishful thinking, divided in their interpretation of this utterance. Some asserted that Mr. Hoover in his disclaimer of aspirations had definitly removed himself from consideration for the nomination. Those holding to this view were notably of the persuasion that Mr. Hoover is a distinct liability to the party and that the party could not more surely write its own death warant than by nominating him for president next year.

Friends Still Back Him.

Others, notably former associates who are still on friendly terms with him, were not less certain that Mr. Hoover in this letter does not in any sense foreclose the future. He merely says he has no aspirations to return to the presidency. A candidate for the presidency, even a first term incumbent thereof, it was pointed out, never confesses aspirations to the office, particularly more than a year in advance of the nominating convention.

Mr. Hoover, it was suggested, leaves the way open to be drafted; in fact, leaves it open more widely than did President Coolidge with his "I do not choose to run."

Evidence is not wanting that even Mr. Coolidge harbored an expectation of being drafted by the Kansas City convention. The only really positive refusal of the honor ever recorded was made by Gen. Sherman when he said: "I will not run, if nominated, and will not serve, if elected."

There is no doubt, however, that Mr. Hoover intends to take an active part in the election. He has already begun "taking a shot at what is going on."

Elected Despite Landslide.

The Republican governor of Kansas, Mr. Landon, has been a star in the political firmament for a couple of years by virtue of the fact that he was elected in the Roosevelt landslide of 1932 and reëlected in the Roosevelt landslide of 1934. With Pennsylvania going Democratic, Kansas has begun to look like a Republican Gibraltar.

Most Republican leaders agree that the G. O. P. must recapture the west next year if it expects to get within gunshot of victory and are consequently scanning the western horizon for presidential timber. Gov. Landon is prominent among those whose qualifications are being canvassed.

His presence in Washington at this time is generally considered to be not without political significance. He came ostensibly to obtain federal aid for a project to stop the dust storms. He got a promise of $250,000 of government money for plowing furrows across western Kansas to impede the winds and cause precipitation of the dust.

Under Capper's Guidance.

The governor, however, has devoted a good deal of time under the guidance of Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.] to rubbing elbows with Republican leaders and discussing Republican programs and prospects. The general testimony is that he has made a favorable impression. Although he declined to talk for publication he is known to have expressed himself vigorously in several groups on the shortcomings of the New Deal and on the question of Republican party reorganization.

Gov. Landon will be an important figure in the meeting of western Republicans that is to be held in Kansas City in May to focus attention on the 1936 campaign. The leader of this movement is John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national committeeman for Kansas.

DIVIDEND CUT STIRS PROTEST FROM VETERANS

U. S. Insurance Table Explained.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—Sweeping revision by the veterans' administration of the dividends which veterans have been receiving on their war risk insurance is beginning to bring in a harvest of protests, inquiry disclosed today.

Older veterans have been hardest hit by reductions in their insurance dividends along with those who took out their insurance most recently, the veterans' administration explained. Some of the veterans who took out their insurance while they were comparatively young, on the other hand, have been awarded increased dividends.

Dividends Below 1932 Level.

As a result of the changes about 6¾ million dollars in dividends will be paid out to veterans with government insurance policies this year, compared with 7 million dollars in 1932.

Revision of the dividend schedule was necessitated by the fact that the insurance payments and receipts had strayed from a sound actuarial basis and by the fact, in part, that the insurance fund's earnings have been depleted by congressional tampering during the depression, the veterans' administration said.

Veterans who took out their insurance at comparatively advanced ages were actually paying less in premiums, minus their old dividends, than was necessary to keep their insurance on a sound basis, according to an actuarial investigation conducted by veterans' administration is said to show. On the other hand, some of the younger veterans were paying much more in premiums, even with the old dividends deducted, than was necessary to carry the risk.

Rates Called Maladjusted.

"The actuarial tables compiled, based on the experience of the last several years, indicate very clearly that veterans possessed of policies acquired at early entrance ages are paying not only adequate premiums but premiums sufficient in amount to warant, according to present experience, reasonably liberal dividends, whereas those policyholders who took out insurance during the more advanced years of life are not only paying premiums too small in relationship to the value of their contract to justify the return of any portion of the premiums paid, but in many cases the premiums paid were insufficient to pay for the actual cost of the benefits assured," an official explanation said.

NEW DEAL DROPS NRA LEGAL TEST; RULE NOT EASED

President Urges Drive on Violators.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—Although the New Deal ran away from what was to have been the first Supreme court test of NRA's power to control wages and hours, President Roosevelt today issued a new demand for code enforcement.

FRANCIS CURLEE.

The President's demand, made public shortly after the government had dodged a court test of NRA's constitutionality, was expressed in a letter to Donald R. Richberg, new NRA chairman.

Mr. Roosevelt told the NRA to "insist upon and to obtain compliance" with the codes despite legislative and judicial questioning of the recovery machinery.

Seeking to spur congress into "accelerating action to extend the NRA" for two years, the President told Richberg to point out to congress that NRA enforcement is bogging down in uncertainty over the future. He lashed as "bad faith" any movement in business at this time to cut wages or increase hours.

Will Drop Court Test.

Just prior to the President's statement Attorney General Homer S. Cummings had announced that the New Deal will duck out of the case it now has pending before the Supreme court against the Belcher Lumber company of Alabama.

The Belcher case, first NRA labor case to reach the final court, was to have been the initial test of the government's right to control wages and hours. Abandonment of the case, which the government now seeks, will mean continued uncertainty over the legality of the NRA and of any recovery act which congress may draft to replace it after June 16, its expiration date.

This retreat of the New Deal was announced a few hours after Francis M. Curlee, St. Louis clothing manufacturer, had told the senate finance committee, which is considering revision of the NRA, that the recovery administration was a government of men, not laws, that it used "economic lynch law" to obtain compliance, and that the blustering tones and dictatorial powers of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, first NRA administrator, had frightened business. NRA should be junked, he said.

Let NRA Lapse, He Urges.

"If the NRA is allowed to lapse and if industry is allowed to go ahead, you will find business and production expanding, and wages will be higher. I believe the lot of the worker will be better if business is allowed to go ahead," he told the senators.

Curlee objected to the power of NRA administrators to suspend parts of the law and inferred that this power was used to make manufacturers opposed to the NRA suffer.

"I want to object to any system which gives to any bureau or any official the power to make, break, or suspend the law at will," Curlee protested. "It is a question of whether we are going to have a government of laws or of men.

"We have come to a parting of the ways, whether our rights shall be adjudicated by the courts or by a bureaucracy. There is a bureaucratic finger in every pie," he added later.

Says Johnson Scared Business.

Gen. Johnson by flaunting words like "sentence of economic death" and building up the Blue Eagle "boycott" frightened business, Curlee charged. He quoted flaming excerpts from a speech made in St. Louis by the general, saying it had "terrorized the population."

"Why, St. Louis was almost deserted the next day," he said in disgust. "There was a man from across the river in Illinois who had come over, hearing Gen. Johnson was to speak, to discuss his problems with him. After he heard the speech, he was so terrorized he went home without seeing him."

FOUR YOUTHS FACE DEATH FOR SLAYING OF N. Y. POLICEMAN

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—A General Sessions jury tonight found four youths guilty of first degree murder in the holdup shooting of a policeman on Jan. 18 in a Fifth avenue luggage shop. After the verdict had been delivered Judge Otto A. Rosalsky denounced the youths as "cowardly, desperate assassins."

The four youthful slayers, Ray K. Orley, 21; Amerigo Angelini, 21; Thomas Gilbride, 20, and Raymond H. Newman, took the verdict so coolly that the court commented to the jurors on their attitude. The youths will get the death sentence.

BILLY'S A FIRE HORSE AND HE REMEMBERS IT!

Even at 20 Hauling Milk Gets Tiresome.

BY GUY MURCHIE.

Billy is a fire horse. The fact that he now has to pull a milk cart for the Wencel dairy at 2380 Blue Island avenue makes no difference. He is a fire horse just the same.

Any one who doubts this should talk to Anthony Wencel, his owner, who has had him for a dozen years and would not part with him for five times the purchase price. Four ordinary horses have been worn out by Billy trying to keep pace with him on the daily milk rounds. Nellie, Jack, Tom, and Amos were their names—good horses all—but beside Billy, now going on 20, they were weaklings.

Billy Has His Moments.

It is naturally somewhat irritating to Billy to have to stop every few doors while his driver steps across the sidewalk with the milk bottles, and every now and then Billy gets so fidgety he can stand it no longer. Twice in recent years he has wrecked a milk wagon by letting his desires get the better of his judgment.

One day his master was foolish enough to hitch Billy to an express wagon. Something about the express wagon must have reminded the old horse of a fire engine, for again he lost his head. Around a corner he dashed, the wagon careening wildly behind him until came the inevitable crash.

"Every now an' then Billy just has to go on a rampage," said Mr. Wencel, "and when he once gets loose we have a hell of a time catching him. Usually we have to wait till he gets tired, because then he always comes home of his own accord."

Always Up to His Work.

"Billy has never missed a day's work since I bought him—I think it was in 1923," Wencel went on. "I bought him when the fire department decided to use nothing but motor trucks and sold all the horses. I believe I paid $185 for him. He's been worth ten times that much. He never gets sick. He can eat anything, and he makes two trips a day, working from seven in the morning to noon—seven days a week."

Billy, a light gray, heavily built animal, was having a lunch of oats at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in a comfortable steam heated stable.

"He eats eight pounds of oats a day," confided his groom, "and plenty of alfalfa. I give him several loaves of bread each week too, and sugar, cake, biscuits, and cookies don't make him mad a bit. Of course he has to go to the dentist once a year—not for fillings, O no, just for a general examination.

SALVATION ARMY WILL CELEBRATE CHICAGO JUBILEE

Plans for a golden jubilee celebrating the founding of the Salvation Army in Chicago were announced yesterday from the central states territorial headquarters at 719 North State street. The ceremonies will be held on May 4 and 5, culminating in an outdoor gathering in Lincoln park.

The festivities will open at 2 p. m., the first day at the site of the first territorial meeting held during the month of February, 1885. This was in the old Bush temple on the north side of Chicago avenue just west of Clark street. A bronze plate in the sidewalk now marks the spot.

A parade of Salvation Army officers and workers and members led by their bands will follow the Chicago avenue ceremony. In the line of march will be floats portraying the social service work of the Salvation Army and its growth and progress in the last 50 years.

Aiding in forming the general plans is Commissioner Edward J. Parker of New York, national secretary of the Salvation Army in the United States. Commissioner Parker became a member during the first year of the Salvation Army in Chicago. His home was then in Elgin. Commissioner W. A. McIntyre of the central states territory will be aided in the celebration details by Col. Fletcher Agnew, chief secretary.

W. E. Trautmann Quits as Attorney General's Aid

Springfield, Ill., March 26.—(AP)—William E. Trautmann of East St. Louis today resigned as first assistant attorney general. During more than 35 years in public life he has been a Republican member of the legislature, United States district attorney and a member of the state court of claims. Attorney General Otto Kerner announced that Manford E. Cox of Robinson has been promoted to the position of first assistant. Trautmann's resignation, effective April 1, was ascribed to poor health.

HELD IN COIN BOX THEFTS.

Walter Steiner, 27 years old, 628 North Parkside avenue, who confessed to stealing the coin boxes from "pay-as-you-use" washing machines in Oak Park apartment buildings, was held to the grand jury on $20,000 bonds on two burglary charges by Police Magistrate Gibson yesterday.

ARTILLERY TEAM BOUGHT FOR BOY IN ARMY DRAMA

Lad's Plea Topples Regulations.

Dakota. They were then surveyed by Lieut. D. V. Johnson, commanding Battery D, 3d F. A., and branded with the letters "IC," meaning "inspected and condemned."

Get Around the Regulations.

No person in the military service can buy a condemned army horse. They must be sold at public auction. Therefore, an auction was held for Buffalo and Reno, and a representative of THE TRIBUNE, Capt. Max Corpening, bought them.

"Going at $35 once, going at $35 twice, going at $35 three times, going, going, gone, and sold to Capt. Corpening," the veteran auctioneer attached to the quartermaster corps, Sergt. Frank A. Fink, a former mule pack master, shouted in the wind which swept up from the lake as cameras ground.

The black gelding, Buffalo, whinnied. Reno, a chestnut gelding, who is frisky for his 1,150 pounds, stamped about. The sale was over. Capt. Corpening handed the money to Lieut. Col. Charles Carter Reynolds, quartermaster, and received a receipt. He was then reimbursed with money advanced for the purpose by the Field Artillery Journal of Washington. When the 3 cent collections are made the latter will be repaid.

Up the Gangplank.

Private John Nelson, who with a truck driver is now bound for Dakota with them, then buckled blankets and protecting headgear around the horses and they walked gingerly over a gangplank and into the truck equipped for them. Near their heads were wooden troughs from which they can nibble hay as they roll along.

Commanded by Maj. A. M. Goldman, the men in D battery, 3d field artillery, to which the horses were attached, lined the gangplank to watch their progress. Reno had balked and kicked on being asked to enter the truck the day before, but behaved well in front of the cameras.

Reno and Buffalo have both been working as gun wheel horses. Neither ever has seen a plow. The men gave them affectionate slaps as they passed by, bound for an easy life before a plow after years in front of guns.

Award Prizes Tomorrow in Homeworkshop Contest

Prize winners in the National Homeworkshop Guild exhibition at the Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett building, 211 East North Water street, will be announced tomorrow night at a dinner at the Hotel Sherman. Officials of the exhibition said yesterday that the exhibits attracting most attention from visitors include miniature working models of toy villages, airplanes, automobiles, locomotives, and marine motors.

FOUR INDICTED AS SWINDLERS IN KANE COUNTY

Four men three of whom are under arrest, were named in indictments returned by the Kane county grand jury before Circuit Judge Frank W. Shepherd in Geneva yesterday. They are charged with taking $37,200 from the two Elgin women by means of confidence games.

Those indicted are George M. Lindsay, 60 years old, a Kansas City attorney; Ralph Becker, 36, and Herbert Swaggerty, 47, both of Chicago, and Joseph Barth, alias T. B. Muth, whose address is not known and who is a fugitive. Becker lives at 1232 Jarvis avenue and Swaggerty at 1020 Lawrence avenue.

The men's accusers are Miss Laura Penney, 214 Academy place, Elgin, a cousin of Judge Shepherd, who charges she gave the men $33,000 in good bonds for securities worth little or nothing; and Mrs. Elsie Lovejoy, 360 North Spring street, Elgin, a beauty parlor operator, who alleges she lost $4,200.

Swaggerty has promised to testify against the others, declaring that he was drawn into the plot unwillingly, according to State's Attorney George Carbary of Kane county. Lindsay, Becker, and Swaggerty are to be arraigned before Judge Shepherd on April 5. Kendall Cowger, 26 years old, 5559 Magnolia avenue, who was arrested with Becker last January, has been cleared of complicity.

Basement Blast Startles Canterbury Court Tenants

Tenants were startled last night by an explosion in the incinerator shaft in the basement of Canterbury court, fashionable apartment building at 1220 North State street. The only damage was to the interior of the five foot brick lined shaft, the chimney on the roof, and the bottom of the incinerator furnace which was blown out. An examination by firemen failed to determine the cause of the explosion which piled two tons of brick at the bottom of the shaft.

WOMAN IN COURT AFTER WARNING NOT TO TESTIFY

Mrs. Pauline Planowski, and her daughter, Irene, were on hand yesterday in the Criminal court to testify in a robbery case, despite an attempt made Monday night to intimidate them. They testified Monday against three young men charged with robbing the tavern at 5217 Archer avenue, owned by Mrs. Planowski's husband, Anthony.

Policeman Stephen Plozaj went to the tavern Monday night to notify Mrs. Planowski and her daughter to appear again yesterday in the court of Judge Cornelius Harrington, where the state might need them as rebuttal witnesses. A stranger appeared in the tavern and Plozaj overheard him warn Mrs. Planowski not to appear. He pursued the newcomer, fired at him, but the man escaped in an automobile with two companions.

The three on trial are John Petrzak, 22 years old, 5057 West 32d street, his brother, Frank, 20 years old, and Harold Jankowski, 21 years old, 5217 West 30th street, Cicero. Their case is expected to go to the jury today. The rebuttal testimony of Mrs. Planowski and her daughter was not needed.

Mother and Invalid Son Die in Gas Filled Kitchen

The bodies of Mrs. Anna Dannemark, 63 years old, and of her son, John, 23 years old, a paralytic, were found yesterday in the gas filled kitchen of their home at 3652 Nottingham avenue. They had apparently been dead since Sunday. Six burners of the stove were open, and Mrs. Dannemark lay over it, her head covered by a blanket. The son was in a chair.

INSPECT 24 INNS IN COUNTY; FIND MUCH FIRE PERIL

State and County Push Safety Campaign.

State and county officers pressed yesterday their campaign to free roadhouses of fire peril. State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas, by direction of Gov. Horner, visited the Club Rendezvous, a Morton Grove establishment in which six persons burned to death Sunday morning, and questioned the owner, Al Cowdrey.

At the instance of Sherif Toman, an inspection party scrutinized two dozen inns and night clubs. The sherif, who declared that every roadhouse owner would have to correct faulty fire conditions or close up, plans to investigate all such places in Cook county outside Chicago. The party yesterday included John Plant, fire prevention engineer of the Chicago fire department; Chief Joseph Sullivan of the 15th battalion, and county highway police. The sherif will get its report today.

Note Dangerous Conditions.

The investigators revealed that they found serious fire hazards in several of the roadhouses, particularly in some of the Tessville establishments.

One of these places, for instance, had accommodations for 200 guests in a structure with a single door. Near the only door in another club stood a large hot water heater, and the windows were small and high. A third Tessville roadhouse boasted generous decorations of the highly inflamable sort that carried the blaze so quickly through the Club Rendezvous Sunday.

According to one of the investigators, Lieut. Joseph Welsh of the Morton Grove county highway police, every owner professed a desire to cooperate with authorities and to make his building safe.

Hold Funerals for Two.

Funeral services were held yesterday for two of the six victims who lost their lives in the fire. Services for Miss Ruth Arline Pearsall, check girl, who had worked at the club under the name of Arlene Harvey, were held yesterday morning in St. Peter's church in Niles Center. Her fiancé, Clifford Peterson of Morton Grove, whom she was to wed in June, attended.

The body of Miss Helen O. Johnson, 835 Cass street, Milwaukee, Wis., was cremated following services at the Graceland cemetery. Today rites for Robert R. Wolf will be held in the chapel at 5525 North Clark street and services for James Hronek will take place in the chapel at 2056 Belmont avenue.

Bodies of the two other victims, Fred R. Anderson of Eau Claire, Wis., and John Cocker of Cedar Rapids, Ia., students at the Northwestern university, were shipped to their homes for burial.

Morton Grove Board Acts.

The Morton Grove village board voted unanimously last night to instruct Building Commissioner Adolph Poehner to inspect all public buildings for violations of the state fire laws and to close any structures whose owners refused to comply.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Frank E. Doherty yesterday announced that he was investigating the burning of a two story frame house at 113 25th avenue, Bellwood. The fire started a few hours after Charles Malone, operator of a Bellwood tavern, had moved out. Neighbors reported a loud explosion preceded the blaze and Mr. Doherty discovered that glass from the windows had been hurled across the street. The witnesses are to be questioned in the deputy fire marshal's office today.

FALL OUT WINDOW FATAL.

Mrs. Kaspara Iverson, 74 years old, 2328 Cromwell street, died yesterday in the County hospital of injuries incurred on March 3 in a fall from a second story window of her home.

PULL CLOTHING OFF 6 GIRL WORKERS IN RIOT AT CINCINNATI PLANT

Cincinnati, March 26.—(AP)—Shouting crowds pulled clothing from six girl workers and attacked men leaving the plant of the Crosley Radio corporation late today.

Rallying fifty extra policemen to aid forces already on duty, Chief of Police Eugene L. Weatherly estimated a growing throng of 7,000 strikers, sympathizers, and onlookers had gathered at the plant as workers who refused to strike began to leave for their homes.

Police reported frequent blows struck between workers and strikers but reported only four arrests.

Street cars were stopped directly in front of the plant so that workers could reach shelter quickly. Scuffles broke out here and there for blocks around, however, as police and fifty men delegated as "union police" by the strikers themselves struggled to hold the crowd back and escort workers to safety.

SEEK LIBRARY'S REPLENISHMENT WITH U. S. LOAN

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that he would ask that part of the proposed 4 billion 880 million federal work relief funds be allotted to Chicago to make up the current deficiency of more than a half million books in the Chicago public library.

Officials of the library plan to seek authority to issue tax anticipation warants against the uncollected portion of its levies for the years 1928 to 1932, inclusive, to offer as security for the federal loan. Since the library has already issued such warants up to the 75 per cent of the total levy, which is the legal limit, it will be necessary to ask the legislature to authorize further borrowing.

Harry Wilson, secretary of the library board, said it is planned to ask permission to borrow on tax warants up to 90 per cent of its tax levy ordinances for the five years. This would provide estimated security for a loan of $1,544,000, which, according to Wilson, would be sufficient for the purchase of from 750,000 to 1,000,000 books.

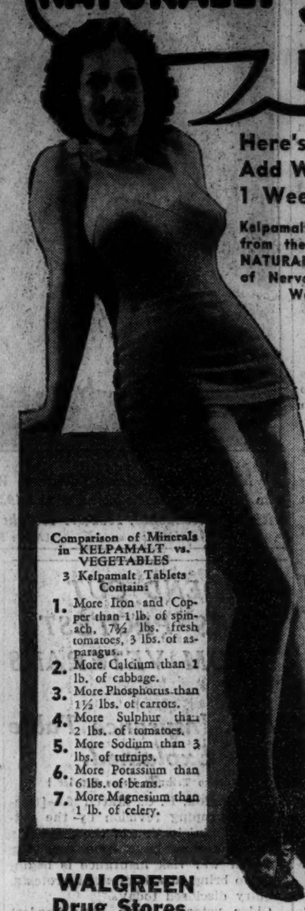
GOOD NEWS FOR NATURALLY SKINNY FOLKS!

Here's a New "2 in 1" Way to Add Weight Quick—5 Lbs. in 1 Week . . . OR NO COST!

Kelpamalt, the New Mineral Concentrate from the sea—Rich in Newer Form of NATURAL IODINE—Building up Thousands of Nervous, Skinny, Rundown Men and Women Where all Else Fails.



Comparison of Minerals in KELPAMALT vs. VEGETABLES

3 Kelpamalt Tablets Contain:

1. More Iron and Copper than 1 lb. of spinach, 7½ lbs. fresh tomatoes, 3 lbs. of asparagus.
2. More Calcium than 1 lb. of cabbage.
3. More Phosphorus than 1½ lbs. of carrots.
4. More Sulphur than 2 lbs. of tomatoes.
5. More Sodium than 3 lbs. of turnips.
6. More Potassium than 6 lbs. of beans.
7. More Magnesium than 1 lb. of celery.

Here is good news now for "Naturally Skinny" folks who can't seem to add an ounce no matter what they eat. A new way has been found to add flattering pounds of good, solid flesh and fill out those ugly, scrawny hollows even on men and women who have been underweight for years; 5 pounds in 1 week guaranteed—15 to 20 pounds in a few weeks not uncommon.

Kelpamalt, the new mineral concentrate from the sea, gets right down to the cause of thin, underweight conditions and adds pounds of solid flesh by a "2 ways in 1" natural process.

First, its rich supply of easily assimilable minerals stimulates the digestive glands which produce the juices that alone enable you to digest fats and starches, the weight-making elements in your daily diet. And these minerals are needed by virtually every organ and for every function of the body. Second, Kelpamalt is rich in NATURAL IODINE—a mineral needed by the vital organ which regulates metabolism—the process through which the body is constantly building firm, solid flesh, new strength and energy. 6 Kelpamalt tablets contain more NATURAL IODINE than 486 lbs. of spinach or 1660 lbs. of beef. More iron and copper than 2 lbs. of spinach or 15 lbs. of fresh tomatoes. More calcium than 1 doz. eggs. More phosphorus than 3 lbs of carrots.

Try Kelpamalt for a single week and notice the difference—how much better you sleep, how ordinary stomach distress vanishes, how firm flesh appears in place of scrawny hollows—and the new energy and strength it brings you.

Kelpamalt is prescribed and used by physicians. Fine for children, too. Remember the name, Kelpamalt, the original kelp and malt tablets. Nothing like them, so don't accept imitations. Start Kelpamalt today. If you don't gain at least 5 lbs. in 1 week the trial is free.

100 jumbo size Kelpamalt tablets—four to five times the size of ordinary tablets—cost but a few cents a day to use. Get Kelpamalt today.

SHOW 1ST PROFIT FOR LUNCHROOMS AT HIGH SCHOOLS

$3,000 Realized Despite Rising Food Prices.

Despite rising food prices and increased wages, the bureau of high school lunch rooms has maintained a low menu cost and has shown a profit of $3,000 to date as against a deficit of $6,000 last June, it was reported at the annual meeting of lunch room managers last night at the Hotel Harding by F. O. Washam, director of the bureau. Mr. Washam made his financial report to Howard P. Savage, business manager of the school board. Ninety managers attended the meeting.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, present at the meeting and James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, praised the work of Mr. Washam in taking over the management of the lunch rooms, which had formerly been managed by separate school heads, and putting them on a separate self-supporting basis. Mr. Washam took charge of the lunchrooms in May, 1934.

Set Aside Equipment Fund.

Mr. Washam showed in his report that the lunchroom bureau not only pays its own salaries but sets aside a fund of $2,500 each month for equipment maintenance. He said that while the lunchrooms are not intended to operate for profit he hopes to show a profit at the end of this school term. He said that any profit shown will be returned to the students in reduced prices.

"Food which today costs $100 could have been bought a year ago for $80.32," he added. "Our expenditures for food this year amount to $252,827. This same amount of food could have been purchased last year for $203,070. In other words, the rising cost of foodstuffs, as compared to a year ago, has added to our operating expense by $49,737."

He showed further that when the lunchrooms were placed under centralized control it was found that some lunchrooms employés had been paid as low as 21 cents per hour. After centralized control went into effect the minimum schedule was 35 cents per hour.

Operate with Efficiency.

"All of this boiled down simply means that we have been able to institute efficiency through centralized control which has absorbed the increased cost of food and labor to the extent of $75,313 and still break even," Mr. Washam continued. "With the consideration of our March operation we are now able to say to you that our operation for the year shows a net profit slightly more than $3,000."

Mr. Washam was named head of the high school lunchroom last year by Mr. McCahey upon the recommendation of the Chicago Association of Restaurateurs. The board of education had previously come to the conclusion that the centralized buying power of the high school lunchrooms would be more effective than the buying power of individual school lunchrooms.

SETS SCHOOL MARK

Miss Christine Smith and horse she used to set attendance mark.

Versailles, Ill., March 26.—[Special.]—Miss Christine Smith, 13, who established the record of having attended school for 11 years five months and 14 days without being tardy or absent, will be graduated from the Versailles High school this spring.

Credit for her remarkable attendance record, Miss Smith said, should go to her riding horse, which is three years her senior. She has ridden the horse to school throughout her scholastic life.

The perfect attendance record was broken Feb. 21 of this year. Then Miss Smith was forced to remain out of school for ten days while ill with measles. She is the daughter of Homer and Ella Smith of Versailles.

CAMPUS INQUIRY FINDS ALL U. OF C. SOCIETIES LEGAL

All organizations on the University of Chicago campus have been investigated and found to be conducted legitimately, according to an announcement yesterday by Dean of Students George A. Works.

The investigation was announced after the disclosure of the radical activities of Miss Virginia Ballance Bash, 22 years old, co-ed at the university, who is the daughter of Maj. Gen. Louis H. Bash of Washington, D. C., quartermaster general of the United States army.

Miss Bash testified as a defense witness for Jack Kling, 22 years old, secretary of the Young Communist league, who was convicted of unlawful assembly last May at 50th and State streets. Dean Works announced that the investigation of all fraternities and other campus organizations is a regular quarterly procedure.

FRANK L. WRIGHT DESIGNS MODERN TYPE COMMUNITY

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—Frank Lloyd Wright, distinguished Chicago architect and one of the originators of the "modern" movement in architecture, has planned a new type of community which is to be shown to New Yorkers for the first time next month, in model form, at the industrial arts exposition in Rockefeller Center under auspices of the National Alliance of Art and Industry.

This new visualization of the technically self contained community, is called by its creator "broadacre city," and described as "a general decentralization of an applied principle and architectural reintegration of all units into one fabric."

Planned generally in horizontal rather than vertical planes, the community is self contained.

TROUBLE TAKES AFTER RADICALS AND A RECEIVER

Friends of Soviet Still Think They'll Mass.

The Friends of the Soviet union, who had been denied the use of the Coliseum after entering into a contract with the tax receiver, are now going ahead with their plans for a big "mass rally" there Sunday afternoon at which Congressman Ernest Lundeen [Radical, Minn.] is to speak.

Several weeks ago the contract for use of the building was signed by Charles R. Hall, who is agent of the county treasurer to collect delinquent taxes under receivership. A deposit of $25 was made.

Later, however, after consulting Judge Benjamin P. Epstein, Hall sent a letter to Eugene Bechtold, local secretary of the "Friends," informing him that the contract was canceled.

The C. L. U. Enters the Scene.

Bechtold appealed to the American Civil Liberties union, of which he is a member. Judge Epstein received a long distance telephone call from Corliss W. Lamont, son of Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. Young Lamont, an eastern university professor, is a director of the Civil Liberties union and national chairman of the "Friends." Judge Epstein told Lamont he had merely advised the receiver to investigate, then to use his own judgment.

Hall, who is Coliseum receiver by appointment of Circuit Judge Stanley Klarkowski, thereupon wrote to Bechtold that there had been a misunderstanding, and that the meeting could be held. Plans for the "mass rally" to "defend the soviet union" progressed.

Another Angle on the Problem.

It happens, though, that Circuit Judge Denis J. Normoyle has jurisdiction over the Coliseum annex in the tax receivership, to which he, too, appointed Hall as the county representative. Judge Normoyle announced that no public building under his jurisdiction would be permitted to house a communist gathering.

"If any of the Reds at this mass rally enter the Coliseum annex," Judge Normoyle declared, "I shall dismiss Hall as receiver."

Notwithstanding the peril to the agreeable Mr. Hall, the Friends of the Soviet are resolved to mass. They advertise as speakers, besides Lundeen, J. B. Matthews of New York; Thyra Edwards, writer and lecturer; Harry Shaw, editor of the Railroad Unity News, and Prof. Frederick L. Schuman of the University of Chicago.

URGES PHYSICAL EXAMINATION FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Regular physical examination for all Chicago school children is included in the public health program advocated yesterday by Dr. Henry C. Niblack, chief of the bureau of child welfare of the Chicago board of health, at a luncheon of the City club in the Hotel Sherman.

"If we examined all children we would find that 89 per cent have one or more physical defects, and 79 per cent need care at once," Dr. Niblack said. "Such examinations are especially needful in school years. I don't see why parents are willing to spend money on their children's education and be indifferent to their physical fitness."

Examinations could be handled in the schools, Dr. Niblack said, with a staf of fifty physicians and 100 nurses.

Miss Mary Murphy, head of the Elisabeth McCormick fund, urged a health program in the schools which would stress an interest in personal and community health.

HERE'S ONE THING THAT CAN HAPPEN TO A KEG OF BEER

Joseph Angelo, 5704 Emerald avenue, driver of a beer truck, was greatly pleased yesterday when an accommodating stranger offered to help him roll his barrels of brew into the rear basement door of the Carpenter's hall at 6420 South Halsted street.

But when the truck was empty Angelo discovered that the number of barrels in the basement was one less than he had had on the truck when he started unloading. The volunteer helper said that this was funny and went away, and Angelo, intrigued by the arithmetical mystery, started an investigation.

He noted that the kind helper had gone into a yard just across the alley. By slipping into the yard and up to a basement window, into which he peered, the driver saw his barrel of beer surrounded by three men. He summoned the Englewood police and the trio was arrested. They are Charles Ahlrep, 35 years old, 6421 South Green street, the helper; Herbert Burke, 30 years old, and James Murray, 34 years old, both of 6420 South Green street. Angelo, claiming that Burke and Murray rolled the barrel away while Ahlrep kept him under watch, signed complaints charging larceny against all three.

Opposes Soil Erosion Work; Ends Own Life

Muskogee, Okla., March 26.—(AP)—Will Tune, a farmer who opposed federal soil erosion control work, shot himself to death, County Attorney A. Camp Bonds said, after a terracing party visited his property today. "I hope you get things straightened out to suit yourselves," Tune told the workers, then committed suicide with a pistol. He had just broken ground to plant his spring crops.

BRITAIN TO PLEAD HITLER'S CASE TO FRANCE AND ITALY

such a pact and the details are merely a matter for experts.

There was also an unconfirmed report tonight that the fuehrer expressed the view that Germany would not need a fleet larger than one-third the size of the British fleet. Reports that he had demanded naval control of the Baltic were denied.

There was also a report that Hitler had suggested that armies might be rationed on the quota system, something like naval arrangements under the Washington treaty.

Expect Progress to Be Slow.

Any one who expects, however, that a new series of peace treaties is likely to be signed in a week or two is mistaken. This is only one in a series of bilateral conversations in which the powers will be in touch with each other, trying to figure out what can be done to insure peace.

The French and Italians have talked, the British and French have talked, the British and Italians have talked, and now the British and Germans have talked.

Now Capt. Eden has gone to Russia to complete the series of bilateral conversations, and when he returns and the Stresa meeting is held it will be the task of the powers to fit the jigsaw puzzle together and work out a plan for a general conference of all the powers, including Germany. When and if that comes, the world may then look for a concrete agreement which will replace the Varsailles treaty.

British Glad They Visited Berlin.

It was also disclosed tonight from a course so high as to be all but official that the British came to Berlin after much misgiving over events of the last ten days and the unilateral announcement of the decision which destroyed the military clauses of the Versailles treaty.

From the same source, however, it was learned they are glad they came and that they believe the conversations marked a long step on the road to permanent peace. At the same time it is emphasized that they have not changed their opinion about the gravity of the unilateral denunciation of the treaty. They have only recognized the fact that it has been done.

In this connection it is interesting to note that after the opening speech by Simon, in which he mentioned, but did not stress, this point of view, the conversations continued on the assumption of a complete new deal, in which Germany acted as a sovereign power entirely free from compulsion.

Tonight's atmosphere in Berlin, on both the German and British side, is one of complete optimism that in time a settlement will be reached. One British statesman said:

"God Almighty took six days to make the world. We are only poor human beings and cannot remake it in two days."

The news of the death sentences pronounced on four Nazis in Memel, charged with plotting to seize the former German district, caused much excitement in Berlin officialdom and the press, but as far as can be ascertained it helped the German case in the conversations.

It was reported that Great Britain and the league of nations will slap the Lithuanians on the wrist for trying to throw a monkey wrench into the works at this time and that it is unlikely the death sentences will be carried out.

There is some fear that the Germans might attempt a rescue from East Prussia of the four condemned Nazis, but the disposition now is to sit tight and give the Lithuanians enough rope to hang themselves in the certainty that Memel will come back to the German homeland sooner or later.

Similarly, the slight alarm has subsided over the result of the Danzig elections. A Nazi victory was a foregone conclusion, and it was feared it might be treated by the Germans as a plebiscite and that the administration would be taken over by Berlin.

I am assured there is no possibility of such a move and that any change in relationship of such areas as Memel and Danzig will be arranged according to international comity and practice.

Sentence 4 Memel Nazis to Death; 77 Sent to Prison

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, March 26.—Four Memel Nazis today were sentenced to die before a firing squad by a Kaunas court martial which tried 126 Nazi leaders accused of plotting an uprising to restore the Memel territory to Germany.

One of the men sentenced, Ewald Boll, confessed he was in a party which murdered a Memel police official, George Jesuttis, suspected of revealing Nazi secrets. The other three men, Walter Preiss, Heinrich Wannagat, and Emil Lepa, failed in an attempt to prove alibis.

Although they are supposed to die in three days, it is believed the sentences of the four will be commuted to life imprisonment by President Antanas Smetona. At least they are likely to win a respite until the proceedings of the court martial are published April 3 and after that may appeal to the Court of Cassation and ultimately to the Supreme court.

Rivals Sent to Prison.

Severe sentences were imposed upon leaders of Memel's two rival Nazi parties, two getting life imprisonment. Dr. Ernest Neumann, leader of the People's Socialist party, was sentenced to twelve years and confiscation of property, and the Rev. Barton Theodore von Sass, leader of the Christian Socialist Workers' party, was sentenced to ten years, together with Baron von der Ropp. Local leaders of the Sass group received eight year sentences and those of the Neumann group got ten year sentences. Of the remaining defendants forty-five were freed and the others received mild sentences.

The trial, which began Dec. 15, was held in the Lithuanian parliament building—completed after the 1926 putsch which made President Smetona dictator and which has never seen a parliamentary session.

Onlookers started in surprise when they heard the death sentences, for government officials freely predicted the court would impose mild sentences. The prosecution, it was declared, was unable to prove the defendants actually plotted an uprising and cases of confiscated weapons offered in evidence were shown to be ancient shotguns and revolvers.

See Moscow's Hand.

Foreign observers, too, were amazed and expressed belief outside influence was brought to bear. Moscow's influence in Kaunas is exceptionally strong and it is believed here the soviets have promised to defend Lithuania against possible aggression by Poland and Germany.

Since the death sentences came at the present critical moment, Kaunas diplomats hint they may be for provocation, seeking to inflame Germany to commit action which would imperil European peace. They also point out the coincidence that Lithuania's attempts to assimilate Memel land Germans began with the rise of Nazi power in Germany.

Besides assurances of Moscow's protection Lithuania has received economic assistance from the soviet government.

Much of eastern Europe's unrest is due to Lithuania, which has maintained an unofficial state of war with Poland since 1920. Both the Polish and German objections to the proposed eastern security pact are due to the fact that it would guarantee Lithuania's status quo. Both Estonia and Latvia, which recently joined Lithuania in a platonic entente, refuse to become involved in Lithuania's quarrels with Poland and Germany.

BRITAIN TO PROBE SINKING OF SHIPS; LAXITY CHARGED

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 26.—Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, told the house of commons today an official inquiry would be begun immediately into the loss of six or more British freighters in Atlantic gales during the past winter. Lord Merrivale will conduct the inquiry, which will be held in public.

Announcement of the inquiry followed an angry speech by Arthur Greenwood, former Labor minister of health, who charged that British ships are being allowed to sail with "rotten lifeboats", that had not been inspected in twenty years. He cited the La Crescenta, Saxiby, Millpool, Usworth, and Blairgowrie, all of which recently were lost in storms. He produced a sheaf of incriminating letters written by a seaman who had perished with his vessel.

He also alleged that many British ships were "slums of the sea" in their inadequate and unsanitary living quarters and charged that the board of trade was "more interested in ships than seamen."

Runciman denied that British inspection was slipshod.

CAMBRIDGE MOVES TO CURB BIG STUDENT HARD LIQUOR PARTIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 26.—Cambridge undergraduates who wish to stage a booze party to celebrate a boat race victory over Oxford or even to invite a bunch of fellow students to their rooms for a quick one before dinner, will have to watch their steps carefully in the future. All large scale cocktail parties are to be strictly controled by the university authorities.

This is the effect of a recommendation presented to the university heads by the proctorial syndicate, which is responsible for maintaining the discipline of students. There is little doubt that the recommendation will be accepted.

It is understood that cocktail parties at which sometimes forty or fifty undergraduates were present recently attracted the attention of university authorities.

NAMED AS BANK ROBBER.

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 26.—[Special.]—Ernest Verheul, 31, alias Ernest Van Camp, arrested on request of federal authorities, today was identified by Jessie Boyd, assistant cashier of First National Bank of Hudson, S. D., as one of three men who robbed the bank of $1,400 Jan. 2.

PREDICT BELGIAN RECOGNITION OF REDS, MANCHUKUO

BRUSSELS, March 26.—(AP)—Probable devaluation of the Belgian currency and possible recognition of soviet Russia and the Japanese advised state of Manchukuo were forecast in informed circles tonight while the new cabinet was taking the oath of office before King Leopold.

Premier Paul van Zeeland was regarded as almost certain to call for devaluation of the belga in announcing the program of his government before the Belgian parliament.

A suggestion to the premier for an international currency stabilization conference was expected to be a part of the new government's program. There was wide conjecture in financial circles whether the weakness of the belga abroad following the institution of control measures might not force Belgium to cut loose from the gold bloc entirely, possibly to tie up with sterling.

"Sure, enjoy yourself," said Jim. "It's a ding good cigarette."

I was working way late at the office one night and ran out of cigarettes. When Jim the watchman came through I tackled him for a smoke.

"Sure," says Jim, and he handed over a pack of Chesterfields. "Go ahead, Mr. Kent, take three or four."

Jim said he'd smoked a lot of cigarettes in his time, but he'd put Chesterfield up in front of any of 'em when it came to taste.

. . . "and they ain't a bit strong either," is the way Jim put it.

FRANCE STOPS EXPORT OF WAR RAW MATERIALS

Acts to Keep Germany from Stocking Up.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 26.—A decree prohibiting the exportation of raw materials necessary in war was adopted by the French cabinet today.

The decree, which constitutes one of the most striking manifestations of the wartime psychology into which Europe has fallen, was inspired by alarm at Germany's rearming program and her allegedly frantic efforts to stock up on war supplies.

The full list of forbidden exports was not given, but cotton waste, wood for gunstocks, and magnesium were mentioned. It is likely that products not usually associated with wartime uses will also be on the list, thus virtually breaking off normal trade relations between France and Germany.

Suspects German Purchases.

In support of this it is known that the French general staf is suspicious of recent massive German purchases of wool products in Roubaix and industrial alcohol—used in the manufacture of powder—and particularly of the recent attempt of German agents to buy up a two or three year output of ferrocerium in Grenoble.

Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin staked the life of his ministry tonight in opposing a demand in the chamber for an investigation of the arms trafic similar to that made in the American senate.

The motion for investigation, made by Deputy Camille Planche, Socialist, was finally defeated 374 to 210 after Flandin had made the issue a question of confidence. Flandin opposed the investigation largely on the ground that it might furnish information to potential enemies detrimental to France's defenses.

Flandin's Objections.

"The proposed investigation commission would have to examine contracts concluded since the war between the state and private industry," Flandin said. "This is useless because the army, air and navy committees are competent to exercise supervision over these contracts.

"But there is a still graver objection. The commission would also be charged to investigate conditions under which military supplies are furnished by the French government to the various allied countries. In a moment like this I cannot allow a public investigation of exportations made with the full knowledge of the government because such an investigation might furnish information contrary to the interests of the national defense."

It was reported meanwhile that urgent defense expenditures threaten completely to exhaust the French treasury, and it is believed the government will shortly be forced to take measures to replenish it. Government bonds dropped sharply on the hourse today after unconfirmed rumors that the government would seek an important advance from the Bank of France for defense expenditures.

Still another sign of the times was a bill filed in the chamber of deputies by Deputy Reibel instituting the death penalty for spies instead of the five year prison term which is now the French maximum in time of peace.

Laval Lauds Mussolini.

During ratification of the Rome accords with Italy in the senate today Pierre Laval, foreign minister, paid tribute to Premier Mussolini and Italy which "helped support international solidarity at the moment when Germany violated the Versailles treaty." He said Germany would have only herself to blame if she did not participate in accords arranged and being arranged by France in behalf of peace.

"The question is not whether Germany will return to the league under certain conditions," he said. "The question is whether she intends to participate in the organization of peace."

Falls in Guiana Named 'Marina' for New Duchess

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, March 26.—(AP)—"Marina Falls" is now the official name of the great waterfall in British Guiana's hinterland, discovered the day Princess Marina of Greece was married to the duke of Kent. The colony's government named it last fall, and today announcement was made that the secretary of state for colonies, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, had informed the government the duchess had consented to have the falls named in her honor.

GRASS GROWS 10 FEET TALL IN THE STREETS OF AUSTRALIAN CITY

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 26.—While parts of the United States are suffering from appalling dust storms, north Australia is being visited by phenomenal rainstorms.

These rains, marking the end of the wet season and called by the natives "knock them down" rains, are the most intense in years. They are knocking flat all vegetation throughout the territory.

In Darwin hot sunshine between rains has caused grass to grow ten feet high in the gutters. Householders are hiring aborigines at a dollar a day to pull up grass from their yards, where it is growing almost as high as the houses with jungle rankness.

U. S. COAST GUARD RUSHES TO AID OF BELGIAN SHIP

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, March 26.—(AP)—The Belgian freighter Jean Jadot awaited help on the Atlantic tonight, 450 miles east of Halifax, with a broken rudder while the United States coast guard cutter Pontchartrain sped to its assistance. The Jean Jadot and its crew, believed to number about 30, were in no immediate danger. The weather was moderating.

The 5,858 ton cargo vessel figured prominently in the attempt to rescue the crew of the British freighter Usworth last December.

The 636 ton Bermuda steamship Longbird was being towed toward Halifax meanwhile, after flying a distress signal which the Royal Canadian mounted police cutter Preventor sighted last night. The Longbird had been blown off its course and tossed around for nearly three weeks. Provisions and fuel were running short.

JAPAN FORMALLY OUT OF LEAGUE; SHOWS NO REGRET

Turns Attention to Asia; Avoids Europe.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 27.—[Wednesday.]—Japan's resignation from the league of nations, notice of which was given two years ago as a result of the league's critical attitude toward Japan's occupation of Manchuria, became officially effective today. The Nipponese had been members for 15 years.

No tinge of sorrow is evident either on the part of the Japanese people or the government at the withdrawal. The only word of regret uttered is that Nippon ever was in the league at all.

Will Avoid Europe.

The government, which has become more and more convinced that the league is a tool of dominant European powers, means to keep out of European entanglements. This was made plain recently by Koki Hirota, foreign minister, in a declaration that all foreign policy must now be concentrated on eastern Asia.

Hirota mentioned specifically the development of closer ties with China, Manchukuo and soviet Russia.

Efforts are understood to be under way behind the scenes by France and Great Britain to persuade Japan to reenter the league so as to bolster its prestige, but with public sentiment as strong against the league as it is now, it is held highly unlikely that Japan will entertain any such notion.

On the question of the league mandated islands in the western Pacific, the government adheres to the policy that no matter what the league may say or do, they belong to Japan and will not be given up. The foreign office announced recently that German assurance has been given that the Nazi government will make no attempt to bring the matter up.

Yosuke Matsuoka, chief delegate to the league meeting which resulted in Japan's withdrawal, said today:

"It is a mistake to think that because Japan is out of the league, the country will be isolated internationally. Look at the United States. The world is too small for any one country to be isolated."

[Matsayuki Yokoyama, Japanese consul general at Geneva, announced that Japan will keep in touch with the league through membership in the world court, the international labor organization, and certain league committees. He also promised that Japan would continue to present annual reports to the league on the mandated islands.]

TWO KNIFE TOTERS GET YEAR.

CANADA GETS U. S. KIDNAP SUSPECT IN COURT TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Ont., March 26.—Protesting his innocence at every foot of the journey from his home town, Peter [Piccolo Pete] Murray of Covington, Ky., reached London jail tonight to be tried on a charge of participating in the kidnaping of John S. Labatt, wealthy brewer, last Aug. 14.

Defeated in the battle he waged in Cincinnati and Washington against extradition, Murray was handed over in Covington this morning to Inspectors Albert Boyd and Albert Ward of the secret service wing of the Ontario provincial police. He claimed that until the officers brought him across the border in custody tonight, he had never set foot on Canadian soil. He denied that he "even knows—the gentleman" when asked how he stood with David Meisner, the Kentucky gambler, who was sent to Kingston penitentiary to serve fifteen years for his part in the kidnaping.

Murray will have a formal hearing in Middlesex county police court tomorrow morning, but is expected to be sent back to jail on a week's remand to await arrangements for his trial.

ITALY CHARGES ETHIOPIA WITH TERRITORY THEFT

ROME, March 26.—(AP)—Ethiopia is illegally occupying 175 square miles of territory rightfully belonging to the Italian colony of Eritrea, the newspaper La Tribuna charged editorially today. The territory which was granted to Italy by the treaty of Aug. 10, 1900, contains 30 villages and population of more than 3,000, the newspaper said.

LONDON, March 26.—Authentic information was received here tonight that Germany had offered Abyssinia a mission of military and air force experts.

This overture from Reichsfuehrer Hitler was made on March 19, when Dr. Kischsimens, the new German minister, arrived in Addis Ababa. He had no sooner presented his credentials than he made his offer of military advice personally to Emperor Haile Selassie. It is not known in London whether the offer has been accepted.

PARALYZED PROSPERITY.

Two leaders of American industry, Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, and Mr. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad system, reporting to the stockholders of their respective companies, have protested against the destructive policies and threatening legislation with which politics is now obstructing the progress and imperiling the vitality of their enterprises. Mr. Sloan was addressing 350,160 investors, Mr. Atterbury as many. Dr. Hugh Magill, head of the Utilities Investors association, has been speaking to the same effect on behalf of another great body of citizens.

All these investors, men, women and children who have invested savings or had savings invested for them in the shares of these great enterprises, and the millions of other citizens whose investments in insurance or in trusts or savings accounts have been embarked in these and other like major American enterprises, are to be congratulated at least upon the fact that the defense of their rights and interests is being organized and that they have spokesmen who can place their cause before the nation.

But what of the millions and tens of millions of Americans whose savings and whose livelihood are being impaired and endangered by the political forces of demoralization but who are without organization and leadership for their defense? The employés of surviving business, large and small, wage earner and so-called white collar worker, the farmer whose property and solvency depend upon the purchasing ability of the workers of all classes, the men and women in every occupation who have put their savings in a home or in other investments or, lacking these, draw their livelihood and that of their families day by day from such earnings as the enterprises which employ them are able to make—where are their defenders, where is their defense?

Certainly not where it ought to be, either in the administration or in the majority of congress subservient to its will.

Yet these forgotten millions still hold their destiny in their own hands. They must defend it now before it is destroyed. Their government under pretense of attack upon great and oppressive wealth is undermining the structure of private enterprise in which their savings are embarked and from which their livelihood is gained. It is shackling and strangling the productive forces which alone are capable of conserving the savings of the people, giving employment to the unemployed and maintaining the employed in their employment. It is absorbing the capital essential to the production of the national wealth and pouring it into the bottomless pit of political waste and futile experiment. It is piling up recklessly a burden of public indebtedness which must be borne by young and old for generations.

This process has been supported by a propaganda without precedent in American history, which has attempted to discredit the achievements of the American people, their character and their institutions in order to justify invasions of their liberty, the confiscation of their wealth and the creation of a centralized political regulation of all their activities. It has stimulated among millions of our people blind and destructive bitterness and fostered unreasonable demands and impossible expectations, ammunition for the demagog and the crank.

Propaganda and performance have vitiated the American morale, penalized thrift and industry, the foundations of prosperity, and are paralyzing throughout the nation the free enterprise upon which depends the recovery of the nation, the reemployment of its people, and the renewal of its progress. Recovery is on a dead center because of the ruthless exactions of government and the threat of worse from the ambitions of demagogs and irresponsibles. Fear, uncertainty, discouragement and despair assail people to whom they have been strangers. Only the thriftless and unthinking are content and those who find personal profit and power in the exploitation of ignorance and passion. The men and women who have worked and saved are being told that capital must be at the disposal of the politician and the burocrat to distribute in the high sounding name of social justice, that their profit motive is wrong, and their self-discipline and foresighted selfishness to be overruled by their superiors. The managers of enterprise are confronted with schemes of government control the limits of which they cannot foresee and with increasing tax burdens and costs imposed without respect for economic necessity. No man knows what will come from the government and its allies tomorrow. The only certainty is that uncertainty will continue until respect for the forces of American prosperity is restored.

R. O. T. C.—CITIZEN BUILDER.

Any one who has any doubt of the value of the Reserve Officers' Training corps units in our Chicago high schools as builders of character and citizenship will do well to dig up last Sunday's TRIBUNE and look again at the picture of the nine youngsters who won the R. O. T. C. drill competition. The intelligence and alertness shown there are as effective a testimonial to their training as a column of type could be.

HANDLE WITH CARE.

Abuses in the granting of habeas corpus writs in Illinois have resulted in a bill to amend the habeas corpus act now pending in the assembly. We suggest that extreme caution be exercised by our legislature in any proposal for the modification of procedure under this civil guaranty. The present tendency to expand the powers of government over the individual does not encourage new restrictions upon his means of protection from unlawful arrest and imprisonment. We have but lately escaped from an experiment which in many flagrant instances revealed how readily authority in the guise of noble motive can find occasion for persecution and the invasion of constitutional liberties. The federal administration, with the compliance of congress, is now engaged in various experiments in the regulation of our lives and activities. We can be certain that the new powers granted will often be abused.

Our study of the proposed bill does not satisfy us of either its expediency or its consistency with constitutional safeguards.

The state constitution specifically gives the Supreme court original jurisdiction of writs of habeas corpus. Its jurisdiction in this respect is concurrent with that of other courts. The amendment to section 2 of the act—which requires that the petition be filed in the judicial circuit in which the petitioner is imprisoned—looks like an attempt to oust the jurisdiction of the Supreme court.

The proposed amendment to section 3, consisting of an additional subparagraph No. 4—requiring the petitioner to swear that the legality of his imprisonment was not previously determined and that no application on his part had been previously refused—would have the effect of preventing a prisoner from contesting an imprisonment which at one time was lawful but at a later time became unlawful, if he made the mistake of suing out a writ during the period of lawful imprisonment. Numerous cases may be envisaged, such as the unlawful retention of a prisoner in confinement after the expiration of the term for which he was committed. Such an amendment would seem to be of doubtful constitutionality.

Section 3 is further amended by a subparagraph No. 5, which requires the petitioner to state in what particular the imprisonment is illegal. Presumably the drafter of this amendment had in mind imprisonments based upon legal process of some sort, but this section becomes absurd when applied to a case of false imprisonment by a private individual, which is prima facie illegal without any reasons having to be given therefor.

The new section, No. 3-A, which is proposed to be added to the act, seems objectionable upon two grounds. It would prevent a hearing on the petition for two days and would open the door to all manner of abuses. Not only would it prevent an immediate hearing on such emergency cases as might frequently arise, but an unscrupulous executive could use this section to imprison an individual for two days and discharge him and reimprison and discharge him every two days. The section is further objectionable because it requires the state's attorney to defend against the petition in all cases except those listed in which the attorney general is to defend. It is difficult to see what possible interest the state's attorney could have in defending every individual in the county who sees fit falsely to imprison somebody else, or what good could come from having such a person protected by a public defender.

The new section, No. 37, permitting appeals and writs of error, would probably be constitutional, but its expediency may well be questioned. The legislature should seriously consider whether it is not more desirable to let the prisoner have full latitude in seeking successive writs rather than to tie him down to a single proceeding where instances of judicial abuse could not be remedied for a considerable period of time, pending the outcome of the appellate proceedings.

We think the legislature in its consideration of this or any other measure for modifying procedure in habeas corpus applications would do well to examine the source of the evils it is expected to correct. We think if it does it will find it not in the law but in the judicial personnel. We suggest that there is little or nothing in the law as it now stands which justifies a judge in exercising his authority so as to embarrass the administration, or defeat the ends, of justice. If this is true the remedy lies in the discipline or removal of the offending official, not in attempts to limit the rights of the citizen.

Editorial of the Day

THE NORRIS POSTOFFICE BILL.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Members of congress, we are told, are disposed to favor Senator George Norris' bill for removing the government's postoffice business from the realm of politics. Congressmen are represented as anxious to be rid of the responsibility for postoffice patronage. The place seekers take too much of their time. Norris' bill has in mind a civil service system in which congressional recommendations for positions would not figure.

Any report that congressmen want to be divested of patronage can be taken with a grain of salt. It is true that they complain of place seekers and the annoyance attending job distribution, but they are forever voting for the creation of more patronage. In recent months they have killed off various proposals which would have prevented an increase in places at their disposal. The chances are that they will do the same thing with respect to the Norris bill, if that measure can be depended on to accomplish what Senator Norris has in mind.

The average congressman favors a "flexible" civil service system. He wants a law that can be used as an alibi when he desires to be rid of an applicant for office, but which will not be a bar to appointment of his relatives and political friends. If Senator Norris' bill can be so framed that congressmen can slip their political supporters and economic dependents under the tent, it may get by. Otherwise there will be no vote on it.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Flew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND NOW, AFTER OUR MAD FRENZY to put up skyscrapers in every city, town, and village, here comes France and votes a 112 million dollar program to dig living quarters for the civilian population deep down in the ground. It's expected that in the next war airplanes will darken the sky and rain down five hundred and a thousand pound bombs on the cities below them. And suppose you were living on the thirty-eighth or the seventy-fifth floor of a skyscraper at the time. And maybe the elevator men had heard the bombs before you did and scampered down the street. It would be most embarrassing, to say the least.

SINCE FRANCE has started the thing and pointed out the need of a home underground there's no doubt the idea will be taken up in every country. And what a help it will be to the New Deal, to be sure. They've dammed every river they could find on the map and double damned the hogs and excess cotton, wheat and corn, but they never thought of digging beautiful homes and villas down deep in the earth for us to hide in when war comes. It looks like one of the easiest ways of spending money that could possibly be thought of. There's no limit. If digging bungalows and apartment buildings a half mile deep in the earth doesn't cost as much money as it was hoped it would then they dig a mile deeper. Or two miles deeper. Or ten miles. The center of the earth is the only limit.

LIVING DEEP DOWN UNDERGROUND instead of up in a tall building will be a little hard to get used to at first, but we'll probably like it very much after a while. I don't see where we're going to put the window boxes for the geraniums or hang out the wash in the back yard on Monday, but those problems will settle themselves in time. We'll have to give up the idea of having a vegetable garden and there'll be no keeping a cow. We'll have to park the car at the top of the shaft and, instead of saying "Fifth floor, please," to the elevator man, we'll say, "The nine hundred and seventy-five foot level, please," or "Put me off at the sixteen hundred foot level, please." Well, well, what a changing world it is, to be sure.

TABOO.

Who would have freedom, can never have love.
Love is a millstone, a master, a cage!
Wings that would soar to the reaches above
Are not content in a heart anchorage.
So you must choose when the choosing is given—
Would you be free? Would you rove where you will?
Or would you bide in a wee bit of heaven—
Safe from the loneliness that lingers still
In the infinite skies where the free souls are winging—
Far from the hearth where two true hearts are singing!

A HOLLYWOOD CINEMA QUEEN throws a party that costs her $4,500. Hooray, the depression is over or people couldn't spend money like that on a party. But wait! Maybe the depression is getting worse! $4,500 is just street car fare or small change out in Hollywood. If that's all a cinema queen will spend for a party it may be that she sees dark days ahead and is cutting down expenses.

AND I KNOW a woman who has been so frightened by all this anti-communist agitation that she won't even say out loud: "Yes, I've read that book." She says, "Yes, I have perused that book." Safety first!

GOSH, FELLOWS! we men don't know what trouble is. All right, read this caption in the papers last Sunday morning, "Waist Long Hair Now Required for Hollywood Show Girls." Think of it; the gals have been shearing their hair off close up behind the ears for years and years and now when there's hardly a single unbobbed female left Hollywood demands the gals have hair down to the waist. And Dave Gould out there says, "The bob is as passe, from a style standpoint, as short skirts and curveless figures." Think of that! And suppose you were a gal and had had your head shingled for years and then suddenly you look around and find out you're as extinct as the dodo. And what to do? Long hair can be cut off down to the roots in ten minutes, but you can't grow hair down to the waist in no ten minutes. I'm telling you. Us bald headed gents will say you can't grow hair a half inch long in twenty years and not even then. It's a tough break, gals; a tough break!

CHRISTO Y SANTIAGO!

(Of one of Montezuma's blood and a dead Spaniard.)

Royal-green is the jewel-sewn canopy.
More red than the crimson blood of cochineal is the plumage couch of the princess.

Tawny the maid as sands in the sunrise—still, still in her floating garden, deaf to the clip of gold sandals on the white shell paths of her fathers.

The distant tambour in the temple
shudders, making a chord with smoke from the altar—from a Spanish soldier's heart on the altar of stone Huitzel.

Above the white city in the lake,
haven of Aztec souls, sinks the Aztec sun.
Wet with her tears are the wristlets of humming bird plumage adorning the infidel princess.

Hot blood more than tears on the shield of scarred silver burnished in Spain,
now abandoned forever.

Like an ocelot plunges the tropical night, perpetual fires from the temple urn dust with rust the stone flesh

BEDSORES.

LONG illnesses are tedious; they tax the patience of the one who is ill and of all those about him. If marked weakness or emaciation is present, unless precautions are observed by nurses and attendants, bedsores may develop. They are painful, cause much discomfort, and occasionally usher in severe complications. Prevention is of prime importance.

As a rule, every one associated with illness will be alert to the prevention of irritation and friction on all parts of the body where pressure may occur or where the very weight of the body may lead to a slowing or blocking of the circulation and hence decreased nourishment of the skin. Ankles, knees, elbows, the buttocks, the shoulder blades, and sides of the hips are all possible sites of bedsores. Every precaution must be taken to protect these parts by soft cotton or rubber rings held in place by bandages. The weight of bed clothes may be relieved by the use of the well known hoop cradle, made by cutting barrel hoops in half and joining them about 18 inches apart by means of two connecting strips of wood. The feet should be particularly well protected, especially when the patient complains that his feet are cold.

Common irritations in the bed are crumbs, wrinkles in the lower sheet, or moisture. Sometimes bad laundry work is responsible. If a chemical bleach is used, even though the sheet is perfectly clean and sterile, some substance may remain in the fabric that will prove destructive to the skin of an invalid.

Bedsores are caused usually by pressure. Blood is driven out of the skin, the capillaries are only partially filled, and the area is deprived of needed nutrition. Eventually the skin breaks down and partially digests or dissolves away, leaving a red weeping surface. Anything that interferes with circulation or nutrition of the part, particularly if the nerve supply is deficient, may bring about this condition. Bedsores are particularly common in elderly persons, in certain forms of heart disease, in kidney disease, in anemia, in cancer, and in long continued illnesses such as tuberculosis, paralysis, and diabetes.

Practical means of prevention include the use of rubber or soft cotton rings, at the same time keeping the skin of the patient clean and dry. After every bath, rubbing the skin with a 25 per cent solution of alcohol is of value. This may be followed by the use of a very fine, soft talcum powder.

If symptoms are recognized early, prompt measures should be taken. If the skin appears slightly reddened, is sensitive to touch, and feels hot, we may know that something has gone wrong. Healing may occur through the relief of pressure, but in some cases additional treatment will be required.

A recent plan of treatment is that suggested by T. J. A. Carty in the use of elastic adhesive plaster. He reports ten cases in which the treatment consisted in covering the area of the sore after thorough cleansing with two layers of elastic plaster, the material extending over the healthy skin for at least one inch. The plaster is left in position as long as it will adhere. If the sore is discharging it will require replacement in from 12 to 48 hours. Applications are continued until healing is complete. On removing the plaster no attempt is made to cleanse the surface of the wounded area. The edges are merely cleaned so as to give the plaster a firm sticking surface.

After the first or second application, Carty noted that the ulcer was invariably clean and healthy in appearance. He suggests that the retained discharges have in themselves considerable power in dissolving dead tissue, thus automatically cleansing the wound. Fifteen days was the longest time required for healing.

THERE IS DANGER.

A. S. writes: I have an impacted wisdom tooth from which there is a continuous discharge of pus. Is there any danger from this tooth? As one of the teeth in front of it has been filled several times and continues to decay I should like to keep it if it will move forward in case that tooth should have to be taken out.

REPLY.

Yes, there is danger. If the pus is being discharged into the mouth some of it is swallowed. In addition, a certain amount is being absorbed by the blood and lymph channels. This cannot fail to affect your general health sooner or later and possibly damage the heart and kidneys. If it is not within the scope of good dentistry to remove this infection the tooth should be extracted.

FLYING STORIES

[Collins was killed last week while making his "good-by" test flight.]

REMINISCENCE.

I taxi out and turn my ship into the wind at the end of the snow plowed runway at Hagerstown airport, Maryland. The white hangar looms too close. Deep snow on the rest of the field prohibits its use. Can I get over the hangar? I give it the gun and try. Just miss the hangar. Too close!

Head off on a compass course for New York. Strong drift to the right from northwest wind. Head a little more to left.

Blue Ridge mountains pass under me. On into the friendly undulating valley country beyond, snow covered.

Gettysburg under my left wing. They were fighting down there once. Hard to believe, looking down on the peaceful fields now. Wonder what they would have done if they could have looked up and seen me and my airplane?

Low hills before the Susquehanna river. Their brown contours reach like dusky fingers out into the snow filled valleys.

Over the river, and Lancaster off to my left. Reform school there. That's where they were always going to send me when I was a bad little boy.

More valley country. Ridgelike hills. The Schuylkill river and Norristown. Philadelphia, blue laws and no movies on Sundays, far off to my right.

More valley. The Delaware river. Washington crossed the Delaware. I cross it in half a minute.

The Sourland mountains and Lindbergh's sad, white house. I see Flemington and know the trial is going on down there. I remember walking with Lindbergh, ten years ago, from San Antonio, Tex., to Kelly field, where we were both advanced flying students. "What are you going to do when you graduate?" he asked. "What are you going to do?" I asked him. Yes, what were we going to do? And now he was down there in that courtroom and the world stretching out around him as far as I could see, and much, much farther was a cocked ear listening again to his tragedy. And I was circling above in the clean, blue sky, remembering many things, and thinking.

I shuddered a last, long, unbelieving look at Lindbergh's empty, lonely house, perched up on its hill, circled and flew on. Half an hour later, in Long Island, I kissed the chubby cheek of my own first born son in greeting, and pitied Lindbergh somewhat for his fame.

FROM THE FORGOTTEN MAN.

Springfield, Tenn., March 19.—I am a common laborer. My father was a common laborer. Under the Coolidge administration I did well. Wages were good and I managed to furnish my house and live in a decent way. After about two years of the Hoover administration things started to the bad and have been growing worse ever since. Up to now I have managed to stay off the relief roll and the CWA.

One morning the past summer a man drove up to my house in a fine limousine and sounded his horn. He was a farmer whom I will call Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones employed me to help him cut his tobacco crop at $1.50 a day, ten hours a day.

I rode with him to his farm, consisting of about 700 acres of as fine land as a crow ever flew over, acres of fine corn, a herd of nice Jersey cows, a herd of fine beef cattle, droves of fat hogs, flocks of chickens, turkeys, guineas, ducks, and geese, and about 75 acres of fine tobacco. His cribs were full of corn and his smokehouse full of meat.

I worked several days for Mr. Jones. He treated me like a prince. From some of his hands I learned that he had sold his last crop of tobacco for about $12,000 and had on hand 3,000 bushels of wheat for which he refused $1 a bushel.

There was no mortgage on his farm. He did not owe a dollar and had mortgages on city property. I heard his son say his father would draw about $4,000 from the government for reducing crops and raising fewer hogs.

Lately I have found that I am paying a tax on meat, flour, and other farm products and this money is being turned over to Mr. Jones and other farmers to pay them for raising less to reduce the amount of food so that food will cost me more.

There is a surplus of labor and I am wondering if it would not be just as fair for the government to pay labor to sit in the shade as it is to pay Mr. Jones for raising less food and charging it to my account.

During the world war Mr. Jones sold his tobacco for 30 to 40 cents a pound, wheat for $3 a bushel, and his other products accordingly. My son was in the trenches. Now a way is found to pay Mr. Jones to raise less, but no way can be found to pay my son his bonus.

My wages are no higher, the cost of living mounts, I am not as well off as I have been. I must be the Forgotten Man.

PHARMACY UNDER NRA.

Chicago, March 20.—I wonder how many people really understand the situation of the registered pharmacist in Chicago today. The NRA has not only wreaked havoc with the retail independent druggist but also with his help. It has cheapened the retail trade to such an extent and ruined prices so that the average drug store owner can hardly make his overhead expense, let alone his daily bread. As far as his clerk is concerned, he is lucky if he can afford one. The pay of a registered pharmacist, according to the code, in cities of 500,000 or more is a minimum of $15 per week for a sixty-one hour week. This is the same as is paid for any clerk in a retail establishment where no professional skill or responsibility is required. Even at this price there is no job to be had. Instead of being a help to the independent druggist, the code has made life miserable for him, and not only for him alone but his help also.

DISGUSTED PHARMACIST.

WHY MEAT IS HIGH.

Fairfield, Ia., March 20.—A year ago farmers were forced to sell hogs at about $2.50 per hundredweight at the farm because of overproduction. The administration's production control program, had we not had the terrific drouth, would likely have reduced the supply enough so that farmers might have received as much as $4 to $4.50 at the farm. No one foresaw the drouth. The shortage in pork is due to the need to reduce herds in line with the feed supply, even after the government's reduction program had taken the number that it did.

You and your writers of course know that, but you continually try to put out a different impression. I am a commercial traveler in a dairy line and come in contact with farmers. I have just returned from Nebraska, where the great majority of farmers are finding it difficult indeed to get the money to buy feed to bring what live stock they did keep through until spring. Many farmers told me the only way they have to keep their cows alive is to sell such little cream as they can get from them and use the entire proceeds to buy a few bales of hay to keep the cows alive until another can of cream is ready, and if spring is not reasonably early to bring on the pastures they will lose cows at that. Many stated they had not had a penny for weeks out of cream sales to use for their families.

I find right here in southeastern Iowa the same conditions are in effect. I just came in off the street after interviewing a farmer who had three bales of common prairie hay strapped on his old decrepit auto and he said that was exactly his condition. I challenge you to put some of your men out in the territory I have mentioned and see if such is not the truth.

RELEASE PAPERS.

Evanston, Ill., March 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Six years ago I obtained a loan on some vacant property, the loan running for two years. At the end of the two years, not being in a position to pay it off, I was able to get it extended. 1. Now when it was extended a new trustee was named, and I would like to know [2] what papers ought to be turned over to me when the loan is paid off. I received a release deed from the original trustee, which has been recorded. 3. Should I not also have received a release deed from the second trustee? 4. All papers I received from this second trustee consisted of trust deeds, an interest note, and the extension agreement.

C. N.

1. It is not clear that you mean that the original papers were canceled and others were substituted, or that other steps were taken.

2. It is not clear whether you mean the old transaction as amounting to a paying off or a proposed paying off now. In general the party who pays an ordinary debt secured by a trust deed in the nature of a mortgage should receive the canceled note, interest coupons, and the trust deed, insurance papers, and evidence of title. He should take the canceled notes and trust deed to the trustee and secure from him a release which should be recorded.

3. If the second trustee was named in an entirely new transaction and you have paid this up, you should take the new canceled note to the trustee and secure a release from him.

4. We cannot advise further without having the facts more fully before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INFERNAL EXPERIMENTATION.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 22.—Your views on "The President's Responsibility" accord with those of a growing army of American citizens who are sick and tired of the palaver from the federal government.

Huey Long may be a "mad man," but he's not without company at the seat of government. They seem to be money drunk at Washington and to have lost all sense of stability and poise.

I am an American back as far as I can trace my ancestry, and have lived here for more than fifty years, and I have never known this country to be in such a mess.

I still have faith in the good sense of the American people. This country has vast resources, but no land, however rich, can stand indefinitly the spending of twice its income. Unless a halt is called soon we are headed for irremediable disaster.

All America needs to recover speedily is to have confidence restored in the stability and soundness of its governmental policy. This administration has got the cart before the horse.

If the government would only use ordinary or even horse sense and make it possible for the wheels of industry to turn and for sound money to flow through normal channels, men would again be employed by the million and countless families would again have something to spend where they now have nothing.

Talk about raising prices and cheapening the dollar! Make it possible for people to have employment and therefore money and they will not mind higher prices, but in heaven's name how are people going to pay any price when they have no money? This dole business is a farce. No real American wants to eat out of the hands of the government; he wants a chance to earn his daily bread even by the sweat of his brow. Let's put an end to this infernal experimentation! WILLIAM FORNEY HOVIS.

H. C. OF L.

Chicago, March 21.—In a broadcast today which I suspect was meant to create optimism one man spoke of rents going up. In fact, he said there was to be a serious shortage of houses and apartments. Another spoke of rising food prices, and so on. Well, maybe those things sound optimistic to some people, and for that matter they may actually mean that things are getting better—for some people. But how many of us are there—clerks, stenographers, ordinary workaday people—to whom those things are not music to the ears?

We all know clothing and food have gone up—plenty—and some of us have already had our rents raised. Maybe it's all for the best eventually, but what about our salaries? These men and heads of concerns and businesses would do a great deal toward radiating optimism and better times if they would raise salaries a little.

BRANDING.

Chicago, March 23.—I have a much better suggestion to make to this magnanimous organization called "Just Taxpayers, Inc." Why not make all the poor unfortunate men and boys on the relief wear a queue and all the women and girls have their heads shaved? Then we would all know exactly just who was on the relief. You know those pins are rather small and might not be seen by every one. Or maybe this organization can think up a better plan to brand their less fortunate brothers.

FRANCE FORBIDS TALK OF SOVIET'S PART IN SPY RING

Insures Calm for Laval's Visit to Moscow.

PARIS, March 26.—(AP)—The soft pedal has been applied, it was reported today, to talk of a soviet spy ring at the trial of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz and 19 fellow suspects, after a hint from the foreign office.

Officials are understood to have cautioned the court against developing anything that might embarrass Foreign Minister Pierre Laval. He goes to Moscow next month to seal Franco-Russian friendship in view of the troubled European situation.

All of those arrested 15 months ago, and many others who are missing, are alleged to have sought French military secrets for the Russian government.

Mrs. Clara Levitan Bercowitz was released from prison on bail after Switz, whose home is in East Orange, N. J., testified she had nothing to do with the ring. Her husband, Benjamin, denied the Switzes' charges of participation in the ring. The prosecution contends he was the real chief. There was documentary evidence tending to show that Bercowitz, 42 year old Rumanian, paid other members of the group with soviet money.

Swiss Probe Jacob Case.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 26.—(AP)—The Swiss government today considered formally protesting to Germany the disappearance in Swiss territory March 9 of Berthold Jacob, refugee German journalist known as an anti-Nazi. Berlin yesterday notified this government that Berthold had been arrested on German soil and placed in prison.

A deputy in the Swiss national council today asked the government if the German secret service had abducted Jacob and if the government would make "strong representations" to the reich demanding his return.

The government was expected to reply later, meanwhile continuing its questioning of Hans Weseman, Nazi newspaper man arrested March 21, who, police say, talked with Jacob in Basel the last day the anti-Nazi was seen there.

Finland Tries Red General.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 26.—The trial began here today of the Russian major general, Tolvo Antikainen, who recently was arrested on suspicion of communist espionage.

The state prosecutor charged him with a murder in 1932 during the fighting in eastern Karelia between the soviet army and the Finnish volunteer corps. The murder victim was a young Finnish soldier, Antti Marjorniemi, who was taken prisoner and slowly burned to death on a pyre built by Red soldiers.

Gen. Antikainen pleaded not guilty and denied the Finnish court's right to try him because it was a capitalist institution. The arrest of Gen. Antikainen by the Finnish political police was notable because he was believed to be one of the foremost agents of soviet secret propaganda abroad.

MISER'S RECORDS TURNED OVER TO U. S. FOR TAX QUIZ

Investigators for the internal revenue bureau yesterday began a survey of bank accounts to determine whether James Thomas Kelly, West Madison street miser who died Feb. 26, leaving an estate of approximately $140,000, owed income taxes to the government.

Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the public administrator's office, turned over to Philip J. Godfrey, deputy collector of internal revenue, all records of Kelly's financial transactions which have been uncovered in the last few weeks. It was said that if the government should find Kelly owed income taxes an assessment would be made against his estate. The records show that he never filed a tax return.

Attorney Werner W. Schroeder, who is representing six claimants to Kelly's estate, filed birth and marriage certificates in the Probate court yesterday to substantiate their claims that they are cousins of the miser. All the claimants live in the east.

LABOR AGITATORS THREATEN U. S. FIRM IN JAPAN

YOKOHAMA, Japan, March 27.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—Japanese labor organizers visited the offices of the Standard-Vacuum Oil company here today with threats of violance unless the company abandons plans to form a company union among Japanese employés.

They threatened that the company's property might suffer "like the Singer Sewing Machine company's," officials said. The threat referred to a destructive raid headed by labor agitators upon the Singer company's Yokohama offices on Jan. 18, 1933.

Company officials, denying responsibility for the plans of their employés, reported the threat to the police and the United States embassy.

ONTARIO PLANS CARE FOR DIONNE PARENTS, OTHER FIVE CHILDREN

TORONTO, March 26.—(AP)—David A. Croll, Ontario minister of public welfare, today said the government has under consideration extensive plans looking toward the care of the entire family of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne as well as their quintuplet daughters.

The minister, who piloted the guardianship bill respecting the quintuplets through the legislature, plans much improvement on the present Dionne home. He said all wants of the family such as food and clothing would be provided and Dionne would receive a monthly allowance. The government also has under consideration means to extend educational facilities for the five older children. The children now speak only French and it is planned to teach them both English and French.

The government is also considering improvements to the Dafoe hospital that may include a large glass-covered solarium where tourists and visitors would be able to see the quintuplets.

SEIZE 70 IRISH REPUBLICANS TO NIP STRIKE CLASH

De Valera Acts After 'Civil War' Threat.

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 26.—The Irish Free State government swooped down upon the Irish Republican army today following an emergency meeting of the executive council last night. More than 70 arrests were made.

The government of President Eamon de Valera acted, presumably, as a result of the Republican army's threat to intervene in the paralyzing strike of Dublin bus and street car men. Such intervention, according to one newspaper, would amount to civil war.

Among those arrested was Editor Donal O'Donaghue of the Republican newspaper, Michael Price, organizer of the communistic "citizen's army," and Peter O'Donnell, novelist and declared communist. O'Donnell was subsequently released.

It is not known yet whether the prisoners will be tried by a military tribunal or a civil court.

Ominous Strike Developments.

Developments in the strike today were ominous. The Republican army headquarters announced that the strike committee had agreed to meet the army council, but leaders of the striking unions denied that the Republican offer had been considered.

This was interpreted as indicating that the strikers are ignoring their leaders and entering into negotiations irregularly. It is known that, within the ranks of the strikers, there is a wing with distinctly communist tendencies and if these get out of hand violence is believed inevitable.

Resent Use of Army Trucks.

These men resent the use of army trucks to carry workers to and from offices and workshops. Military guards on the trucks now carry arms in view of the Republican threat, apparently in fear of possible attack.

Today's searches and arrests were carried out, it is believed, in an effort to discover documents indicating the intentions of the Republicans. The government's action was generally approved by all other parties.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was reported Monday that Attorney Meyer M. Gilbert, 1524 South Lawndale avenue, was held by the police for the inquest after Mrs. Mildred Issen was struck and killed by his automobile. Gilbert was released after questioning. He appeared at the inquest yesterday and was exonerated. The erroneous information was supplied by the City News Bureau.

An item yesterday described John Carver Anderson as an instructor in psychology at the University of Chicago. Members of the university said he left there in 1933.

"TENANTS" ROB LANDLADY.

Two men, posing as prospective tenants, gained entrance yesterday to the apartment of Mrs. Elizabeth Schroeder, manager of a building at 4878 Magnolia avenue, and after locking her in a closet robbed her of $100.

22 CITIES OFFER FLORIDA SITES TO FILM MAKERS

Tampa, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—Officials of twenty-two cities and chambers of commerce from Tampa, St. Petersburg, Clearwater, Sarasota, Bradenton, and Fort Myers met today with Frederick Pelten, California moving picture executive, and Morris Halpern, personal representative of Joseph M. Schenck, and submitted locations for studio sites.

Pelten told the group the moving picture industry was "wide open" for offers to relocate in Florida, which, he declared, had numerous advantages over California, principal among them being its nearness to eastern manufacturing and population centers.

TRIES TO DEFRAUD 3 UNDERTAKERS; JAILED FOR FINE

Thomas Ryback, 58 years old, 2041 West 13th street, was fined $200 by Judge Justin McCarthy in the Fillmore street court yesterday for attempting to defraud three undertakers. Unable to pay his fine, Ryback was sent to jail. His method was to tell an undertaker that his son had been killed in Lake county and that he wished this undertaker to bring the body home. Ryback would then explain he had a $2,000 insurance policy on his son's life which would defray funeral expenses, but he needed an advance until the policy was paid. Bolin Lachawicz, 2314 West 23d place; Bernard Muth, 2110 West 22d place, and Nicholas Goettart, 2046 West 23d street, were all dealing with Ryback on this proposal when Lachawicz saw him enter Goettert's establishment and became suspicious. Policeman Bernard Smith, notified at the Marquette station, arrested Ryback, who confessed.

CUTTER LEAVES TODAY TO BREAK MACKINAC ICE

Fully equipped for its attempt to open navigation on the Great Lakes two weeks early this year, the United States coast guard cutter Escanaba will leave the pier this morning for the Straits of Mackinac. Captained by Lieutenant Commander Louis W. Perkins and carrying a crew of 6 officers and 58 men, the Escanaba is expected to begin tomorrow its assault on the ice barrier to open a lane for lake commerce. If successful, the Escanaba will make it possible for shippers to make at least one additional round trip by water this year. The venture is said to be the first of its kind. Navigation through the straits last year did not start until April 28.

TRAVELERS WILL BRING TALES OF STRANGE LANDS

Residents of Lake Forest See Lonely Isles.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott S. Durand of Lake Forest have traveled twice around the globe and visited many strange lands, but they've never experienced a welcome in a foreign port equal to the one they enjoyed last Friday when they called at Tristan da Cunha, one of the world's lonellest islands, aboard the Empress of Australia.

A cable relates the adventure and sets the last week in April as the time for their return home. Mr. and Mrs. Durand sailed the middle of January as members of a large cruise party to spend three months in and about Africa and South America.

The first ship to visit Tristan, a British group of three small islands, in 13 months, the Empress was wildly hailed from the shore as it approached. Residents in lifeboats made their way through the heavy surf and as the liner dropped anchor climbed aboard to bestow gifts on the passengers and crew in the name of King George and Queen Mary.

A Submarine, Too!

Then, to the surprise of all, a Dutch submarine pushed its head above the water, making it the first time, in memory of the inhabitants, that two vessels have appeared at once at Tristan da Cunha.

During the day 17 tons of supplies were taken on board, but several hundred pounds of coffee, sugar, and tobacco were delivered by the ship's chief steward, for it was learned that the islanders' supply of these commodities had been exhausted for some months. Also finding out that a number of Tristan da Cunha's residents were in need of clothing, the passengers generously contributed from their own wardrobes.

Because there is one Roman Catholic family among the 172 inhabitants of the island [only one of the three islands is inhabited], Msgr. Cherry, a passenger on the Empress of Australia, made the rough passage ashore to hear confessions and celebrate the first mass ever heard in the colony. The ship's medical staf, with three doctors who are passengers, also went ashore and made a thorough inspection. The report was that the islanders are enjoying good health.

Descendants of British Soldiers.

Most of the inhabitants of the island are descendants of the British soldiers who were stationed at St. Helena during Napoleon's captivity or settlers from whaling ships. Tristan da Cunha is 1,500 miles southwest of St. Helena in the Atlantic.

Other Chicagoans aboard the Empress of Australia, which will reach Buenos Aires tomorrow morning, are Robert Allerton and his foster son, John W. Gregg, and Col. and Mrs. Robert W. Stewart. The liner will be in dock in the South American city for two days that its passengers may see the handsome city and its spectacular race track, Palermo park; the government palace with its fine statuary and rich furnishings, and the cathedral famed for its murals and as the resting place of San Martin.

The latest world holiday plans have been made by Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Hodges, who are leaving for the west coast this week to sail next Monday from San Francisco on the President Cleveland. They will spend two weeks in Honolulu and then on April 24 aboard the new motorliner, President Hoover, for Yokohama. From this city on their vacation will be a leisurely journey with plenty of time for the Orient, India, and Egypt.

Moving out of the busy harbor of Hongkong this morning is the Empress of Britain with Mrs. Albert R. Withall and her son and daughter aboard. Although the Withalls have been away from home since the first part of January, they have been in close touch with Chicago. Almost every Sunday since their departure Mr. Withall, who had to forego the around the world trip for business, has communicated with them by telephone.

Party Visiting Manila Today.

Following close on the heels of the world travelers aboard the Empress of Britain are those on the Resolute. Miss Nell Donohue and Miss Charlotte Kramer and Miss Joyce Newbill of La Grange, who are some of those on this German cruise ship, will be visiting Manila today.

Disembarking early, they will see the city's fascinating gates, its modern buildings and broad streets, its houses built in trees, its rice fields, the Gaudaloupe ruins, and many a creaking carabao cart. They will have luncheon at the Manila hotel and then embark for Hongkong. Returning to New York May 26, the Resolute will make two short cruises to Bermuda and Vera Cruz and then leave June 29 on another globe circling journey.

Off for North Cape.

When the Stella Polaris reaches New York the beginning of May after a world cruise, its crew will be making preparations to set out for North cape.

Just now this boat, which is more of a glorified yacht than a ship, is on its way from Ceylon to Bombay, where the passengers will make an inland trip to the storied Vale of Cashmere, that serene valley in the shadow of the snowy Himalayas.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. McPherson and their daughter, Fanny, have been sending back postcards telling of the delights of the trip thus far. And so have Victor Elting and Mrs. John Everett and her daughter, Joan.

LOWDENS WILL SAIL SATURDAY TO VISIT SPA IN GERMANY

Germany, hot spot of Europe right now, is the destination of former Gov. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, who are embarking for Europe Saturday on the S. S. Bremen. They are going directly to Baden Baden, where they will take the famous cure for a month.

Americans constitute two-thirds of all the guests at Baden Baden, according to figures which show the 30,000 inhabitants of the resort are hosts to approximately 90,000 visitors annually.

Joseph T. Ryerson is also sailing on the Bremen Saturday for a visit to Baden Baden.

Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum, who returned to this country from Germany just before Christmas, is sailing on the Stuttgart Saturday to study in Germany and pay the visits she did not have time for on her previous trip.

PLAN CALIFORNIA TRIP BY WAY OF PANAMA CANAL

Elroy and Jane Bradford, nieces of Maj. and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, plan more than 10,000 miles of water travel during the next two months. Sailing April 6 on the S. S. Pennsylvania, they are going to California by way of the Panama canal and will return over the same route. Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Bliss left last Saturday on the Panama Pacific liner Virginia to make the same trip.

Returning from California by the water route Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Albert and their son, Arthur, arrived in New York yesterday on the Santa Elena. They visited Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Panama, Colombia, and Havana en route.

Interested in an early spring vacation in the West Indies and on the Caribbean, Mitchell D. Follansbee and his youngest daughter, Julia, are leaving Friday for a cruise on the Lafayette. Another passenger will be Miss Gertrude F. Jones, who has traveled extensively the last several years.

Aboard the Reliance Mrs. Henry W. Drucker and her daughter and son, Jane and Robert, and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fugard and their son, John R. Fugard Jr., are going on a similar West Indies cruise. They will sail Saturday.

Bermuda, first port of call on the itinerary of the Reliance, is the vacation choice of Mr. and Mrs. David Ingalls, who were aboard the Monarch of Bermuda when it left New York last Saturday. At Castle harbor in Bermuda now are Mr. and Mrs. Harrison James Bligh.

LEADER OF NOTED JEWISH LEGION WELCOMED HERE

Storm Center of Modern Zionism to Speak.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Vladimir Jabotinski, world militant leader of "Fascist" or revisionist Zionism, arrived in Chicago yesterday. He left London on Jan. 17 for a tour of this country in interests of the establishment of a Jewish national state in Palestine.

VLADIMIR JABOTINSKI.

Jabotinski, a colorful figure in modern Jewry and the organizer of the famous Jewish legion which helped Gen. Allenby sweep the Turk from the holy land in the world war, is known as a storm center of Zionism today. Controversy over his Palestine plans have filled the Jewish press in all nations. Last August the world Zionist congress at Prague, Czechoslavakia, was thrown into disorder as a result of Jabotinski's presence.

Palestine Jewry Disputes.

Right wing revisionist doctrins emanating from Jabotinski are said by some to have brought sharp controversy among Jews in Palestine. At present this controversy separates the Histraduth or majority labor group from the militant revisionists. The former represents the leadership of Chaim Weizmann and the present administration of the world Zionist organization. This administration is now under attack of Jabotinski and his revisionists.

Greatest strength of the revisionist group is said to be in Poland, where Jabotinski has organized an extensive Jewish youth movement similar to youth movements in Fascist and Nazi lands. He is circulating a petition throughout world-wide Jewry which is expected to include a sufficiently impressive number of names to wrest power from the Weizmann administration at the forthcoming world Zionist congress at Carlsbad, Czechoslavakia.

"New Deal for Palestine."

Among the points emphasized by Jabotinski is a New Deal for Palestine. "This is necessary," he said, "because the whole face of Zionism has radically changed. It is still a national enterprise backed by much idealism, but it now has added support of several million individual Jews who must personally go to Palestine or perish." His program calls for government revision, particularly in reference to immigration laws.

H. L. Meites, superintendent of the city water department, is chairman of the arrangements committee for Jabotinski's visit to Chicago. He will deliver his first Chicago address this noon at the Palmer house before the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations. Tonight he will speak at Orchestra hall.

PURSE SNATCHER SENT TO CELL.

Robert Popenga, 23 years old, 1440 Melrose street, was sentenced to one year in the Bridewell and fined $100 by Municipal Judge N. J. Bonelli yesterday after Mrs. Irma Jacobsen, 2231 Berwyn avenue, identified him as the man who snatched her purse last Friday.

Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, former commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, left Chicago last evening for San Pedro, Cal., where he will take command of the base force of the Pacific fleet. Admiral Cluverius was relieved of his command at Great Lakes at noon yesterday by Capt. E. A. Walleson, the change being in accordance with regular naval reassignments. Mrs. Cluverius and her daughter, Mrs. Martha Parsons, escorted the admiral to North Western station last evening. Today they leave for Annapolis, Md., where Mrs. Parsons' husband is stationed.

BERMUDA PORT CELEBRATES NEW DEEP SHIP LANE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 26.—A forecast of the recovery by St. George's harbor of its glory as Bermuda's chief port occurred when the liner Volendam, 15,434 ton Holland-American Line ship, steamed through the recently dredged channel today with 325 cruise passengers. It was the first vessel of its size to use the waterway.

The big liner navigated the mile long channel with ease, the dredgers having completed the work of deepening it to 30 feet and widening it to 250 feet. Capt. G. J. Barendse went ashore at Pennos wharf, where he was received with speeches by the acting mayor, E. P. T. Tucker, and members of the Corporation of St. George's. Capt. Barendse and his staf were guests of honor at an official dinner tonight.

Director Puts Great Faith in This Compliment

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 26.—[Special.]—Rouben Mamoulian, director, whose newest picture, "Becky Sharp," may cause almost as much shakeup in film technique as the first talkie did, because of the reported effectiveness of its success in unreeling a story in color instead of black and white, was telling what he really considered a high compliment.

"A film man who had just returned from China is the authority for it," Mamoulian said. "He said that in China two native movie directors are quite successful above all others. One of them, he said, has taken the name 'Lee Foo De Mille' and the other is 'Lee Foo Mamoulian.'"

Jan Kiepura, European singing actor who has been much sought by Hollywood for years, is due here next month and will be starred at Paramount in "I Sing of Love"

Joe Von Sternberg, who recently dissolved an association of years in which he directed the pictures and Marlene Dietrich acted in them, may shortly make his bid for still bigger things—as an independent film producer.

During the dinner party Constance Collier gave for Noel Coward, the actress had her dinner table conversation recorded on a machine so her guests could have a playback of their epigrams and repartee against each other.

Marlene Dietrich is taking violin lessons again in New York. As a girl she was educated to be a violinist but injured her right wrist ten years ago. She took treatments from a Hollywood surgeon to strengthen the wrist during the last two years.

Sarah Padden is the nineteenth player in a total cast of forty to be chosen for Greta Garbo's "Anna Karenina" production just started.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Bet you didn't know that there were fashions in silhouettes, did you? Never, in all the years and years that we've been keeping an ear to the ground for beauty news, have we found interest in figure beautification and figure preservation as intelligent as it is right now. This isn't a reducing craze, either—it's a perfectly sound desire to be lithe and youthful of movement.

And a lot of women who want to be limber and to cultivate the sure grace that is such a vital part of poise can now hie themselves to one of our beauty salons, where a competent dancing teacher holds forth, directing groups or individuals in the attainment of the "Hellenic" line. Under her direction the fat get thinner, the thin get plumper, and the in betweens are given infinite grace.

Her exercises are far removed from the "physical jerks" that make for bumpy muscles. They have a cultlike ease and grace of movement that make them a joy to watch and to do. Even we, who love our ease, wanted to pitch in and learn to stretch as she did when we saw her do them.

At our request she showed us some of her specific exercises for reducing—and if you're interested ask her to show you her unusual ones for thinning down of the thighs. We don't think we've ever seen better ones. The beauty of them is that they aren't too hard, either. When you master her trick of stretching and relaxing you can toss yourself around like a rubber band with the greatest of ease.

And for posture—those are marvelous. The secret lies in a certain adjustment of the hips and the simplest corrective movements do wonders for the silhouette. We want to recommend these especially to the mothers of daughters who're threatening to droop. For the good of their health, as well as their appearance, posture correction is absolutely invaluable.

The courses—and what you're given depends on what you need—are not expensive. ELEANOR NANGLE.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH spring just ushered into town, it may be slightly untimely to revert to the subject of ice, but it becomes necessary when an event as important as the international ice skating carnival is engrossing society's attention.

The carnival, to be held April 7 at the Chicago Stadium, under the sponsorship of the Chicago Figure Skating club, is going to bring to the city most of the world's finest skaters and ice performers featuring everything from colored ice effects to a comedy number that will be titled "The Girl on the Flying Trapeze."

The consuls of the various countries are to be present. Consul General Lewis Bernays is one of the most enthusiastic members of the club. Other members are Dr. and Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell, the Karl Eitels, and Harry E. Radix, the club president.

Dr. and Mrs. Mitchell are two of society's finest figure skaters. A year ago they practiced several times a week at the Coliseum with various of their friends and their two small daughters. This winter they spent evenings on the playground rink at Walton place and Lake Shore drive.

The Clay Judsons delight their friends every winter with curves and spirals and jumps on skates. They practice strenuously, and so do Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adams and the John Holabirds. In Lake Forest well known figure skaters are Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas, who spent the past few months in St. Moritz, Switzerland, where they were vacationing; Mrs. Philip D. Armour, and Mrs. Charles S. De Long.

Take Boxes for Hull House Benefit.

Another benefit scheduled for Easter Monday—bringing the total to four on that day—is a Hull house music school benefit concert to be given by the Woman's Symphony orchestra and Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, lifelong friend of Miss Jane Addams, whose name is synonymous with Hull house. The concert will be given in Orchestra hall, and it is the first benefit in the history of Hull house.

That the benefit will be a success there is no doubt, for already a great many boxes and seats have been spoken for. Among those who will be in the audience the evening of April 22 are Miss Addams, the Sewell L. Averys, the William McCormick Blairs, the Francis R. Dickinsons, the Theodore Robinsons, the Charles H. Schweppes, the junior Edward L. Ryersons, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Harold F. McCormick, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, and Edward A. Cudahy.

From the east comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Katharine Louise Atwater, daughter of Mrs. J. Charles Atwater of Upper Montclair, N. J., and the late Mr. Atwater, to Thomas McKey Folds, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Robert Folds of Evanston.

Miss Atwater, who has visited here a number of times, was graduated from Smith college and is now on the staf of the Yale Gallery of Fine Arts at New Haven, Conn. Mr. Folds is a graduate of Yale university and also received a degree from the Yale school of fine arts. He is a member of the faculty of Phillips Axeter academy, Exeter, N. H. The wedding will take place in June.

Polo Tourney Opens Tonight.

Polo enthusiasts will be at the 124th Field Artillery armory this evening for the opening of the western championships which will determine the teams that will go east in another fortnight to try in the national indoor championships in New York City.

It's hard to tell whether the audience or the players will have the better time this evening at the Fortnightly club when the seniors at the Uni-

IT was a small business meeting at the Hotel Sherman. The men had met to sign an agreement, according to Henrietta Singer, who reports the incident. The proposition was written and read to them and all of them agreed except one. He walked away, ostensibly thinking it over. The rest looked at him inquiringly, awaiting his answer. After a long pause he gave it.

THE arrival of a new teacher in the public school was the occasion for a number of questions put to a pupil by his mother. He answered to the best of his ability, but, feeling he was inadequate, he finally said:

"Mother, I just can't tell you any more about her except that she is one of those people who hasn't begun to live yet."

"What do you mean by that, child?" queried his mother.

"Well, I'm sure she isn't 40," answered the boy.

OUR Iowa mail yesterday contained a clipping from a Dubuque paper reading:

"Wanted—Young man and wife to take small interest in serving meals and lunches 40 miles out of city. Big contract . . ."

But that's just what tourists are complaining about—the small interest taken in serving meals by restaurant owners.

Jean explained to Yovonne how he got the $20 which he gave to her. "I was walking along the street and I came to a big office building. I thought I might be able to get a job, so I went in. In every office they didn't need me, but one man said he knew how it was when you were out of a job and gave me this money, so I brought it home for you." Yovonne was delighted to think that $20 was all for her. The next day she went down town she didn't spend it foolishly. This is her list:

Kitchen table and two chairs	$ 5
Pots and pans and kitchen things	5
Maple bed	10
Sheets and covers	1

The extra dollar she had been saving. When Yovonne got home that night she said: "The next time there is much money it's yours." Jean was looking very sad. "But cheer up," was Yovonne's greeting.

Good Morning!

"I WANT MY CUT!"

That's the slogan of "Gold Diggers of 1935."

According to the opus on the Chicago screen, the gold digger, male and female, like the brook, goes on forever. Styles in clothes, cinema and what have you may change, gangsters may vanish. But the cutter in—the lady who makes men pay and pay and pay and the men who fatten on the riches of others—are always with us.

The story is fairly overrun with gold diggers. Everybody wants his and hers—with the exception of an expert on snuff boxes and the two romantic leads who love nothing so much as each other and the great out of doors.

O well, there had to be some sort of a yarn on which to drape Busby Berkeley's rich and unbelievably fantastic—and, this trip too, too long ensemble numbers. So—I suppose the near-satire chosen serves as well as would anything else.

As revues go, the present "Gold Diggers" has considerable to offer. There is some bright patter and a number of really amusing situations. The music—"Lullabye of Broadway" is of course the featured song—is hummable, and all of the players are adept. Adolphe Menjou as a nutty and brilliant producer and Hugh Herbert as the befuddled snuff expert are the highlights of the cast. Gloria Stuart and Dick Powell team sweetly in the romantic leads. Glenda Farrell is clever.

The picture is skilfully directed in the main, but Mr. Berkeley should snap out of his ensembles before they set you dozing.

See you tomorrow.

Mrs. Hoover May Attend Girl Scout Meeting in City

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the former President, may attend the Great Lakes regional conference of the Girl Scouts of America, which will be held May 10 and 11 at the Palmer house, Mrs. Katie Lee Johnson, regional director, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Hoover has written that she hopes to be here. The former President's wife is honorary national vice president and an active member of the Palo Alto, Cal., Girl Scout council.

Nearly 2,000 sponsors, leaders, and staf members will attend the conference, the first regional one to be held in Chicago.

Movie Closeup

One of the most interesting fight reels ever made will be shown soon in neighborhood theaters. It is the round by round chronicle of the recent Golden Gloves Tournament, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The piece is presented by Eugene J. Cour.

With Bob Elson, W-G-N sports announcer, narrating, the film spiffily depicts each and every bout from the 118 pound title to the heavyweight crown that took place on the momentous occasion. It's a "short" that probably everybody who saw the fights will want to take in and one that those who were unable to attend, will not want to miss.

STRAVINSKY IS ILL

Igor Stravinsky is ill with a severe cold, and his joint recital at Orchestra hall with the violinist, Samuel Dushkin, has been postponed from Friday night until next season. He has been visiting the brother of his co-artist, David Dushkin, in Winnetka, from which place word of the cancellation went out last night.

TWO YOUNG ARTISTS

Recitals by two young artists last night displayed some interesting talent. Donald Frazier at Curtiss hall brought to his program not only a highly serviceable baritone voice, but a knowledge of how to sing the English language that ought to carry him far. Much of his program was by English speaking composers, and he made effective proof that they are both good music and the vehicle of good singing.

Helene Goldenberg, violinist, at Kimball hall was rather amazing in tone and technic. She was ready with two full length Dvoraks in A minor and Mozarts in D major, with Saint-Saëns Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso for extra concert display, and a group of short pieces for good measure. She played them with firm, full tone, the best of intonation, and the zeal of the earnest interpreter. The musical future would seem to be bright before her.

Horowitz Puts New Life Into Brahms Piece

Pianist Gives a Brilliant Performance.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

If faith in Brahms First Concerto for piano ever begins to droop the best way to make it bloom again is to have Vladimir Horowitz play the solo part. He is about the surest restorative on record and he staged a revival of the piece as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday that was worth going miles to hear.

He seems never to permit himself to be awed by coming into lofty surroundings. Brahms, like any other composer, is to be played in the now famous dashing, glowing Horowitz fashion. There was a thunderous technical display in the first and last movements of the work that was enough to lift you off your seat with sheer excitement. And yet with all his exuberance, all the uncanny ease with which he performs marvel after marvel on the keyboard, Mr. Horowitz has an infallible faculty for getting inside the essential character of the work and reproducing it.

He stressed the humanity of this concerto and at the same time he held himself within the barriers of its classicism. He makes the greatest possible point of warmth, but he never distorts form. Wherefore this would seem to be about the best time to remind every one that he will be with the orchestra again tomorrow night and Friday afternoon, at which times he will play Rachmaninoff's Third Concerto, the work that made him the hit of the season the first time that he came to Chicago.

Conductor Stock's share of the program had to do with music of a grave, not to say severe order. He repeated the Vincent d'Indy compositions, "Wallenstein's Camp" and the Second Symphony, which he presented to the Thursday and Friday audiences a few weeks ago. He is another interpretive musician who knows all about presenting the true character of the works before him.

Masculine Ideas on Feminine Shoes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

An assortment of determined males have prodded me into writing this. They insist upon airing their special dislikes and likes about feminine footwear this spring, the footgear that should be worn with the incoming new spring clothes.

For instance, they get so frenzied when they see high heeled sandals going around with a man tailored suit that proper words fail them and they trot out their best cuss words. What they lose their temper about in this instance is justifiable, for nothing looks better with a suit than swanky street oxfords or the old classic street pump as severely cut and as unadorned as the streamlined tailored suit.

They almost froth at the mouth when they see high heels trot out for active sports. These heel experts are most tolerant about wrong shades of lipsticks, and even shut their eyes chivalrously to such things as straggling hair, bobs, and the like, but how they rave and rant when a lady out to wham a golf ball from here to there teeters across the course making cute little excavations with the aforementioned heels. And they don't like the flapping fringed tongues that cross the instep of so many fashion sports shoes. They like sports shoes, neat not gawdy, practical, serviceable, and fitted.

After that these disgruntled gentlemen go into reverse and change their minds about the whole heel situation. Afternoon and dancing slippers they like with dizzy high heels, sandals with the minimum of straps and as flippantly gay as possible—the brighter, more feminine, and romantic the better. Whoever started this low heeled racket for brand new evening slippers is out of luck as far as these masculine critics are concerned. The critics hate them with their best adjectives. So unless you are independent and care not what your future dancing partners like, you better stay out of the "flats."

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts the hazardous though thrilling post as companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced, threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. Before leaving London Miss Venables' widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother, dies suddenly. She had been treated by Dr. Gilcrest, from Ste. Brigitte, who was visiting in London. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had had prosecuted. Miss Venables' particular friends in Ste. Brigitte, besides Dr. Gilcrest, are the Baron Henri de Bellesnaves and his beautiful wife; Beryl Tomlins, town librarian and harmless gossip, and a few old residents of the resort hotel. Sarah gathers that Dr. Gilcrest is in love with the baroness. Harry arrives. Beryl Tomlins, who had just had a prescription of Dr. Gilcrest's filled by his dispenser, Marjory Barrows, is taken suddenly ill and dies. Dr. Gilcrest states an intestinal hemorrhage caused her death. Miss Venables receives another threatening letter, telling her she has one more day to live. Harry is on a visit to Monte Carlo. The baroness has gone to Arles for the day. The fatal day passes safely. Miss Venables takes her medicine and retires. Shortly after Sarah is awakened by her agonized call. She dies within the hour, after declaring to Sarah that she was poisoned. Sarah tells Dr. Gilcrest, who has been left a substantial income by Miss Venables, that it is up to him to demand a post-mortem. Harry returns. He objects to the post-mortem.

INSTALMENT XXXIX.

PANGS OF CONSCIENCE.

In trepidation Sarah waited for the expected comment, but to her relief it did not come. She continued, thankful that Harry was too dulled by grief to catch her meaning. "Talk to Dr. Gilcrest, of course, get his own views, but unless you've some strong reason, I shouldn't advise your opposing him in this. You yourself might be harshly judged if you tried to hush matters up."

"Me?" He blinked at her in so startled a fashion that she had to stifle an hysterical desire to laugh. "My God! Would I be questioned, too?"

"That was a bad jolt, wasn't it? But you ought to face facts."

"Absolutely right," he murmured. "Hadn't looked at it in that light, but I quite see we're in for it. Yes, it'll have to be, and the sooner it's over the more comfortable for all concerned."

Harry sat hunched on the bed, looking wretchedly befogged and almost frightened by what his mental vision beheld. Like a lost child, she thought, her sympathy stirring anew. Suddenly he raised his bloodshot eyes to hers.

"You'll stay, I suppose? Till the thing's cleared up, I mean. You won't go running off, old thing, and leave me alone with these infernal old women?"

She told him the thoughtful provision his aunt had made, adding her intention to remain while she might be wanted. Probably, indeed, she would be expected to do so. His face smoothed, his hand straying absently toward his pocket only to withdraw with self-conscious compunction. She understood the abortive gesture and smiled.

When the doctor told her—I could hear—she went up in the air.

"Smoke, if you like. What's the harm?"

"None, really." Gratefully he lit a cigaret, puffed at it jerkily, and relaxed. "Odd how things come about," he meditated aloud. "But for this blasted legacy no one would have dreamed of making a rumpus. There's no more sense in it than there would have been if old Tom ——" He gave a violent start, his dismay verging on the comic, and once more ejaculated, "My God ——!"

Sarah's nerves were badly jangled. It seemed to her that if he said this once more she would scream . . .

"Why what's wrong?" she asked wearily.

"Nothing, except—did I hear you say Tomlins' body was being examined, too? Lord, what a mess! What's the idea? She wasn't murdered, whatever they may choose to say about poor Chrissie. No cash, no . . . Here, give me a line on this. I'm all at sea."

She explained as best she could, advising him to get in touch with the doctor.

"But not till you've had a bath and something to eat. I told the waiter to bring coffee to your room. Go and drink it."

He rubbed his hand ruefully over his unshaven chin.

"Good old Sarah! Right as usual. I must look a sweep."

She put her hand on his arm. "Harry," she said gently, "if you'd care to see her once more . . . It's not at all dreadful, you know . . ."

He drew back, shrinking like a child. "Need I? That is, do you think I ought —— ?"

"There's no ought about it, dear. Don't, if you'd rather remember her as she was. I was only thinking they'd be taking her away to the mortuary quite soon. Anyhow, the doors are locked, and the manager has the keys."

"I would rather hate it, you know. Any one as close as that . . . get how I feel about it?"

"Of course I do. Now run along."

Ashamed of his relief, he blundered out.

Several persons, their voices hushed were entering the death chamber. A pause, then some one tapped on her door. She called a nervous "Entrez!" and braced herself for the next dreaded encounter.

It was Marjory Barrows, come to tell her that the body was being removed and arrangements made to convey it to Nice, where the examination would be done

"Don't go in, it will only distress you. He's there, and Jolivet, the manager, overseeing things. It will be over in a moment."

She clasped Sarah's cold hand in a tense grip till the heavy footsteps had creaked to silence and in the distance was heard the faint ping of the lift doors. Then she turned a face flushed and tragic with sorrow and burst forth in a passionate lament.

"O, Miss MacNeil, why should this have happened? Two patients dying suddenly within a week, and now one of them—a darling, don't think I'm criticizing her!—declaring she's poisoned! It means absolute ruin for him. He'll never, never live it down!"

Marjory could not yet have learned of the legacy. Sarah, however, writhed inwardly as she asked, low voiced, "Has he told you it means ruin?"

"He? Never! He wouldn't want me or any one else to sympathize. I know, though. And to think the trouble he's taken over both these poor women! It's wicked—it's damnable!"

"I don't understand. Why, if he's proved right, should there be anything to live down?"

"O, my dear!"—with a despairing gesture. "Don't you see how it will be? Of course he's right. It's not that I'm worried about—but how will that fact help him? It's admitting doubt that's so fatal to a physician—and he's admitting it over two cases. Every patient he has will lose faith and boycott him—but that's not all."

Tears welling to her brown eyes, the dispenser continued, "You may not realize it, but people have a holy horror of the doctor who's once called in the police. They're terrified that the same thing may happen to them if one of their relations dies, in which case they'd be placed in a hateful position. In a big city it would cause talk enough. Here, where every human soul knows every one else, it's the finish. There'll be nothing for it but to throw up the sponge and start all over again, right at the bottom, far away from Ste. Brigitte.

Sarah experienced unreasoning pangs of conscience. She alone had forced this investigation. If she had done a terrible wrong, the consequences were on her head . . .

"Yet how could I have acted differently?" she murmured, hesitatingly. "I had to tell him what Miss Venables said."

"You?" cried Marjory, astonished. "But of course you had! He doesn't blame you. Considering the sort of place this is there'd always have been doubt in some minds, and I suppose he couldn't well have asked for one inquest without making certain about the other woman, too. Miss Tomlins' family have objected. Tell me this: Did Miss Venables strike you as at all hysterical?"

Sarah pondered the question. "No," she replied, "she didn't."

"Yes she must have been, or else why ever should she have jumped to so idiotic a conclusion? Even the baroness, who knew her better than any one, declares she was—well, a bit queer."

Sarah gripped the arms of her chair.

"The baroness! She's in Arles. How does she know?"

"Just now she rang up to inquire about her husband. When the doctor told her about this—he was bound to tell her for I could hear her frantically demanding details—she went up in the air. Of course, she knows how it will affect him, though I imagine in his state of mind her expostulations were just the last straw. She was still sobbing when he cut off."

Liking People Brings Reward in Popularity

BY DORIS BLAKE.

An interesting test was conducted a while ago, among a certain student group, which throws light on why some people are so generally liked and why others are not liked at all.

The student body was asked to write down the initials of all the people they could think of whom they disliked intensely. A brief period was given for the test. Some of the students could think of but one person for whom they felt strong dislike. Others thought of a number, and some of the students thought up names as fast as they could set the initials down.

The test showed that those who expressed their dislike for the largest number of persons were the individuals who themselves possessed the largest number of generally disliked traits. From which the conclusion is drawn that if you dislike many people you are disliked by many people. And, by the same token, if you like many people you are liked by many.

All of which may serve as good an answer to B. D.'s query as any we could think up. "Why don't people like me?" is the gist of B. D.'s letter. She never does anything to make people dislike her, she claims. She never goes out of her way to hurt anyone. In fact, she tells, she is not interested enough to bother. There are few people she likes enough to bother with.

versity School for Girls present Alfred Sangster's delightful play, "The Brontës." All of the mothers and fathers of the members of the cast and their friends are planning to be present, but the young Thespians themselves are so excited about their production they hardly can wait for the curtain to rise.

Arrange Exhibits for Flower Show.

Garden activities are occupying the attention and time of suburbanites these days when hardy scillae are making their appearance and crocuses bravely are pushing their way out of the earth. Out in Barrington members of the Garden club are working in their own gardens and also on their exhibit at the flower and garden show to be held at the Navy pier the week of April 6.

Mrs. E. Christian Kohlsaat is chairman of the committee appointed to arrange a dinner table with a shadow box. Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe and Mrs. Richmond Kenyon are arranging a terrace tea table and Mrs. Alfred L. Eustice is planning a terrarium.

Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mrs. Harold Stark, Mrs. Dallas B. Phemister, Mrs. Henry G. Gale, Mrs. William N. Eisendrath Jr., Mrs. Martin Ryerson, and Mrs. Paul Russell will pour this afternoon at the tea the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago is giving for Mrs. Rudyerd Boulton. The party will be from 3 to 6 o'clock in the society gallery.

The Arts club has issued invitations to its members to hear Mrs. Boulton speak in its gallery at 11:30 tomorrow morning. Mrs. Boulton will discuss "Rhythm in the Jungle: Art, Music and Dance in West Africa," with motion pictures for illustration. Mrs. Boulton visited Africa recently with a scientific expedition and brought back a number of primitive instruments that have been given to the Field museum.

Announce Tea for Two Couples.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fulmer Getz Jr., have issued invitations to a tea a week from Sunday in their Lake Shore drive apartment for Miss Betsy Needham and James R. Getz, and Miss Grace Fitzmorris and John W. Brittingham. Miss Needham and Mr. Getz, who is the junior Mr. Getz's brother, are to be married on May 4, and Miss Fitzmorris' and Mr. Brittingham's marriage wil ltake place this spring, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse of Lake Forest are leaving today for New York to sail Saturday for a visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Baron and Baroness Wolfgang von Peccoz, in Munich. The Morses will return in June, perhaps accompanied by their daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Morse had interesting guests from England recently, the Hon. Mrs. Clement Gethin, who was here just for the week-end en route from the west to Washington, and Miss Evelyn Walker, daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. E. Walker, who spent about ten days in Lake Forest. Miss Walker in sailing this week-end from New York for her home in London but Mrs. Gethin will not return to London until about May 1.

News of Chicagoans at California Resort.

From Del Monte, Cal., comes word of some of the Chicagoans who are spending the early spring there. Mrs. Columbus Healy and her mother, Mrs. Edward W. Pardridge are there for several weeks and so are Dr. Hugh T. Patrick and Dr. Robert B. Preble, who have joined Charles Knickerbocker for their annual spring get-together.

Mrs. C. Morse Ely, the Truman Redfields, the Charles Wrigleys, and the Edwin Shermans are other Chicagoans at the Pacific coast resort. The Shermans will go from there to Palo Alto to visit the Herbert Hoovers.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Adams of the Lake Shore drive hotel have left for five weeks at the Arkansas Hot Springs, where the weather is lovely and balmy and the racing season furnishing thrills a-plenty, so a recent letter from there reports.

Mrs. William Waller and her daughters, Miss Virginia Waller, and Julia, and her sister, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler all have gone to Pueblo, Colo., for the wedding today of their niece and cousin, Miss Helen Thatcher to Robert White.

The Chicago members of the Thatcher family will return next Sunday or Monday. Miss Virginia Waller is making plans to spend the coming summer in Colorado instead of in Harbor Point, Mich., where the Wheeler and Waller families usually pass the hot weather months.

BY MARY MEADE.

It would be selfishness, pure and simple, to withhold some of the grand recipes our readers have been sending in lately. And rather than crowd a mere mention of them into Saturday's regular conglomeration of questions and comments we've decided to turn over the whole column to them today.

One of them journeyed to us all the way from Kansas City, thanks to the generosity of Mrs. R. H. there. It's a Lenten favorite with her family, she says, and after an enthusiastic trial we can well agree that it should be—with anybody's family, Lent or no Lent. Here 'tis:

Meatless Roast.

1 cup ground nut meats
2 cups ground whole wheat toast
2 cups cooked rice
4 tablespoons chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons ground onion
2 tablespoons ground green pepper
2 cups canned tomatoes
4 beaten eggs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sage

Mix the ingredients thoroughly, form into a loaf, and bake for one hour in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve hot with this sauce:

1½ tablespoons fat
1 tablespoon ground onion
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup tomato juice
½ teaspoon salt

Melt the fat, add the onion, and cook gently for a few seconds. Then stir in the flour and continue stirring until the mixture is well browned. Pour in the tomato juice, cook until thick, and season with salt and pepper.

Another of these generous donations which especially caught our fancy is a recipe for "Scow" sent to us by Mrs. H. M. in expressing her thanks for an old fashioned pudding recipe we located for her. As she says, it's "utterly grand for those Sunday night 'gangs' . . . for sons and daughters who are always starved . . . for buffet entertaining in a small apartment." Moreover, it's such a meal in itself that all Mrs. M. serves with it is this:

Scow
Head Lettuce Salad
Tart French Dressing
Whole Wheat Bread
Whipped Lemon Gelatin Small Cakes
Coffee

Now for the recipe for this "utterly grand" dish. It is, as Mrs. M. tells us, the invention of a seagoing cook who ran out of regulation Sunday supplies:

Scow.

½ pound sliced bacon
2 medium onions
1 pound ground round steak
1 No. 2½ can tomatoes
1 package spaghetti
1 No. 2 can whole kernel corn
1 can tomato soup
Salt, pepper, paprika
3 ounces cheese, grated

Cut the bacon into small pieces and cook until crisp in a large, heavy iron skillet. Remove the bacon bits, brown the sliced onion in the hot fat, and finally take out the onion slices and use the remaining fat for browning the ground meat, breaking it into small bits as it cooks. Then pour in the canned tomatoes and allow the mixture to simmer until it is fairly thick. Next add the spaghetti, which has been broken into two inch lengths and cooked until tender in boiling salted water, then the can of corn, the browned onions, and crisp bacon bits, and the seasoning, and allow the mixture to simmer slowly for an hour. Finally pour in the can of soup, a dash of paprika, and the grated cheese, and continue cooking slowly for another half hour, covered.

As a final comment, Mrs. M. adds: "The next day and the day after if there's any left just reheat it and it seems to taste even better than it did the first time."

There isn't space for another of these recipes that have been engrossing us so lately, but here's a tip from an up to date reader: "For a special treat I've been adding the grated rind of an orange to a package of ready prepared ginger bread mix and using orange juice for the liquid. Then when the ginger bread is cool I frost it with an orange confectioner's sugar icing."

FURTHER DISCUSSION OF TREATMENTS.

In my recent articles in this series on the negative double I suggested that you vary your policy when playing for any length of time against the same opponents. This is not "system," but strategy. The system gives you the technique of the double—the method by which your partner, though completely in the dark on the first round, can learn on the next round whether your double was distributional or strategic. However, if you do make an unusually weak double of either kind, your partner cannot know that it was shaded [except perhaps by the firm tones of the opponent who now applies a "muscle double"]. He only knows whether you intend him to play the hand or must yourself play it in your long suit. You may say that I am injecting a dangerous doctrin here—introducing too much vagueness into defensive moves which are already potentially dangerous just because they are defensive. True. But strategy is necessarily linked with a measure of uncertainty—otherwise it would not be strategy, but definite method, the inevitable crushing of the weaker side by an impregnably stronger one. You will gain a distinct defensive advantage if the opponents learn that they cannot know everything about your doubles merely by refraining from action until they hear your next bid. A variation of treatment here is in itself a strategy within a strategic bid. Nevertheless, there is another factor to consider—your partner. Can he stand it if a shaded distributional double goes wrong and you take too heavy a loss? Will he be so upset that he will thenceforth underbid in response to everything you do, whether constructively or in defense? Will he assume that for some unknown reason you are launched on an overbidding jag, and by refusing to respond normally will he actually force you to overbid?

If you believe your partner to be of this type, give more consideration to his psychology than to that of the opponents, and keep him relaxed. Forego brilliance in defensive moves; give up the hope of attempting weak doubles to keep your opponents from bidding games or slams they can probably make; keep it in your mind that in return for whatever possible interference you may abandon at this point your partner—relaxed friendly toward you, not knowing that you have had to discard a weapon in order to "baby" him—may play very fine cards in defending the hand and puncture the weak spot in the declarer's panoply, if there be one. Substitute the "playing" treatment for the "interference" treatment. It may not produce anything on this hand, but on the next deal you may get to a slam which is hard to make unless perfectly played. If your partner's state of mind is right he may find the right plays, whereas if he is angered or bothered over the previous hand, resenting the fact that you have "put him on the spot" by an unsound move, as it seems to him, then he is likely to play the slam hand less carefully, with less concentration on its own problems, and muff it.

Another Situation Offering a Variety of Treatments.

No trump bidding offers great chances for delicate and imaginative choice of treatments from both sides of the table. The responding hand, for instance, replies to an opening no trump bid with two in a five or six card suit. The rebid of the opener is two no trumps. Now the responder is not obviously obliged to offer a sign-off by rebidding his suit; he has some justification for bidding three no trumps, having a good possibility of two entries for no trump play, though not a certainty. Which treatment shall he apply? Neither is obviously indicated; each can be defended with sound arguments. Which to choose?

I Cannot Tell You—I Do Not Know Your Partner as You Do.

When the cards do not prescribe their own treatment, try to decide in terms of your partner. If he is playing tough no trumpers badly, better give the weaker signoff response by rebidding your suit so that the contract will not be three no trumps unless he is the one who bids it because he has a very fine hand for the bidding he has given or fits your suit very neatly. If he is playing no trumpers well and has been giving good delivery on hard hands, bid three no trumps for him. He will appreciate the confidence you thereby show in his dummy play even if he cannot—or does not—actually make this particular contract. This is just one instance of the delicate question which is so often a matter of psychology no less than of bidding technique—"Should I take the strain off my partner by my next bid or should I leave a further decision to him?"

These popular flowers with a tantalizing fragrance are finding their way to favor in modern quilt patterns as well as for personal adornment. One of the newer quilt designs, "Carnations," is an applique pattern which demands care and attention to detail and is not recommended to the novice quiltmaker. Two shades of pink for the flowers, soft green for stems, and French blue for the bowl are the colors suggested.

Live Interests Keep Children from Mischief

Be Sure Their Time Is Filled with Sane Activities.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"She doesn't want to stay home," or, "He's crazy about the movies," or, "They're always in the street," are three complaints I receive from parents about their children. "He glues his ear to the radio for hours," or, "She's so aimless and discontented at home," or, "She doesn't seem to know what to do with herself," are a few more of the descriptions that the mothers of the 9's and 10's and 11's send us. These attitudes are not as a rule as true of the earlier years of what we call our "inbetweens"—because at 6 and 7 and 8 our boys and girls are still carrying over lots of the ways of little childhood. It's in the latter part of this transition period—at 9 and 10 and 11—that we find children acting in this way.

The reasons for it all are quite varied. One factor is sometimes this: That the mother is a "working mother," and until 5 or 6 o'clock the children are left to their own devices. Where this is unavoidable some arrangement should be made to provide occupation and interest for those afternoon hours.

A neighbor can be paid a small amount of money to open her home to the children, or classes [such as settlement groups in games, arts, and crafts, and dramatics], or club connections can be made for them. All big cities have splendid boys' clubs, and there are always the scout organizations as well as the Camp Fire Girls, and so forth. Children can't be turned loose.

Another reason for the behavior we're talking about today is sometimes found in unhappy or unfortunate home situations—like constant bickering and quarreling between parents—or lack of friendliness and unwise management of the children—or real harshness and suppression.

A third reason is that the child's interests and enthusiasms have not been stirred or aroused either by school or by family and general associations. The result is an emptiness that the boy or girl must fill somehow.

As to how to deal with these difficulties we might begin by saying that a large part of our answer would be found in last Sunday's article. The gist of that was "fill your child's time with interesting activities if you want to keep him 'out of mischief,' or if you want to get him out of unwholesome ways, once he has gotten into them."

Simple Exercise Slenderizes Hips for Spring Modes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Well, here we are right back where we started before Mae West launched her hip-hip-hooray drive.

Just try to get one of those Westian hips into the spring fashion parade!

Now, you don't want to go in for a hectic diet to slenderize the hips. You may lose those needed upper curves. Diet, yes. But keep to a maintenance diet, one that will preserve the curved contour of your cheek and the clear, firm line of chin and jaw.

Eat your three meals. For breakfast fruit juice, buttered toast, BUT only one slice, thinly cut and sparingly buttered. An egg, occasionally, in the mornings, and coffee half milk and half coffee. This will keep you going nicely until your noon hour, when you can partake generously of a vegetable plate or salad, a thin slice of toast, and a glass of milk, with stewed fruit for dessert. For dinner there are the lean meats, several green vegetables and, again, stewed or fresh fruit and a glass of milk.

Choose one good hip exercise. Don't try all the hip exercises you ever heard of, but do that one not less than 25 times morning and night. This is what brings them down and keeps them down to normal measurement. I just don't know a better hip reducing exercise than this one I have given before, and I have tried out a good many of them. Lie on the floor, on your back. Keep head and shoulders on the floor as you swing right leg over left, stretching, stretching it until you can get the toes up shoulder height. Then swing left leg over right and stretch the same way. Alternate—one leg, then the other. Twenty to 25 times.

Society Goes to Symphony and Two Teas

Unusually large as well as enthusiastic was the audience that assembled in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon for next to the last Tuesday concert of the season. Many who have missed the last concert or two because of vacations were there and during the intermission one heard on all sides "Did you have a good time? Your tan is most becoming . . ."

The beauty of the program and the wonderful playing of the soloist, Vladimir Horowitz, were other favorite topics of conversation, of course. Whenever this young man plays with the orchestra the hall is filled, for he is a favorite with the women who go to the Tuesday and Friday concerts. There were a few men there yesterday, one in particular who wasn't very popular with his neighbors, for he slumbered during most of Horowitz's playing of the Brahms concerto, and occasionally snored.

There were a great many young girls present, many of them at home from eastern schools and colleges for the spring vacation. A few of the many who enjoyed the program were Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. Stanley Keith and her daughter, Miss Patsy, who is to become Mrs. Robert Macdonald on April 27; Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Telfer MacArthur and her sub-deb daughter, Dorothy; Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin, Mrs. Arthur Meyer, Mrs. M. Paul Noyes and her daughter, Miss Catharine, who will be married to Roger Shaw this spring; Seymour Blair, Mrs. Lucius A. Crowell, Mrs. Frank B. Mulford, Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland and her daughter, Miss Eleanor, who is a student at Vassar; Mrs. John R. Hurley and three women from Janesville, Wis., who come to Chicago every fortnight for the Tuesday concerts; Mrs. Kenneth Parker, Mrs. Bruce Jeffris and Mrs. Pierpont Wood.

After the concert some went north and some went south, for there were two teas of interest to society, one in the Diana Court and the other in a studio on Hyde Park boulevard. The north side one was given to open an exhibition of paintings and sculpture owned by Adeline Atwater Pynchon and exhibited in the Century gallery for the benefit of the art department of Lincoln Center.

Mrs. Pynchon, the wife of Harold Pynchon, received with Mary Ware and Katherine Lewis, and pouring were Mrs. Pynchon's mother, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair and Mrs. Helen Walton.

The south side party was given by Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, who will give a Bach festival-concert at the Goodman theater on April 3. The four harpsichords that they will use in the concert were in the studio yesterday and were of great interest to the guests, for they are the only playable instruments of their kind in Chicago.

Old ones, in collections, cannot be kept tuned, so Mr. Manuel and Mr. Williamson have had modern reproductions made. Many of Bach's compositions were written for the harpsichord and some of them will be played at the April 3d concert, which will commemorate the 250th anniversary of the famous composer's birth. Mrs. Walter Paepcke and Mrs. Carl Bricken poured yesterday.

A Luxury
YOU CAN AFFORD

SWAVIS foundations are as extraordinary in value as they are in design. Any comparison with garments of similar quality will convince you of this.

Priced as low as four dollars and not higher than ten, each SWAVIS model offers luxuries that are usually found only in expensive foundations.

Here in profusion, are refinements of detail that charm the feminine soul: rich fabrics, lustrous and practically weightless; soft tops, variously tailored in delicate lace; cunning insets and panels of fine elastic; smart, streamline garters—even the luxury of plush-protected closing edges.

All in all, these SWAVIS foundations have an 'air'—a swanky, custom-tailored feel that belies the modest price tag. And what they do to your figure, in subtle unobtrusive fashion, is little short of wizardry.

Every SWAVIS foundation is individually fitted—at no extra cost. This assurance of thoughtful, personal attention, by expert Charis fitters, is final evidence of the unequalled satisfaction to be had from SWAVIS . . . Why not get full information about this real luxury which every woman can now afford? Just 'phone or write:

MAYOR PLAYS 'LONE HAND' IN HIS CAMPAIGN

Passes Up Electioneering by Party's Big Chiefs.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Gov. Henry Horner's arrival in Chicago yesterday with an offer to help in the reelection of Mayor Edward J. Kelly called attention to the fact that all of the big Democratic winners in recent elections are merely watchers this time. Accordingly, the governor was bowed with thanks into the sidelines.

This situation, it was learned, is the result of a clearly defined policy to leave Mayor Kelly and his administration the only issue presented by the party to the voters in the election next Tuesday. The Democratic leaders are so confident of an overwhelming vote of approval that they have opposed the injection of any other personalities or other questions into the quiet campaign.

Omits Heavy Artillery.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis, a noted speaker, preceded the governor into the city by a few days and proffered his services. He was told that there are to be no massmeetings, no championship of the city administration by prominent men no matter what the degree of their eagerness to help; that Mayor Kelly would stand alone.

In the Democratic ranks are a score of other powerful campaigners topped possibly by State's Attorney Courtney, Congressman Michael L. Igoe and Attorney General Kerner; but none of them is to appear on the platform during the few remaining days of the campaign.

So far has this policy been carried that Mayor Kelly, swamped with requests from ordinarily non-political organizations, has ceased appearing at ward meetings which are being held at the rate of seven or eight a night all this week. For once, at least, the party forces are completely harmonious and the mayor has an opportunity to present his cause briefly in all cases—to audiences outside the organization.

Plans Radio Speech Tomorrow.

His one radio talk before election day, which is to be made tomorrow night instead of Friday night as erroneously announced by his headquarters yesterday, will be devoted to up to the minute topics and not to a parade of his accomplishments. The speech will be over W-G-N, WMAQ, WCFL, WENR and WIND from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m.

While the Democratic program is progressing along this even tenor, things were no so peaceful in the other mayoral camps. But even there the activity was confined to statements for the newspapers.

The most extended effort of this sort was issued by R. M. Adams from the headquarters of Newton Jenkins, candidate of what the statutes describe as a "proposed new party," which its backers have christened as a going concern by filing their petition under the title of "The Third Party."

A Couple of Attacks.

Mr. Adams asked Emil C. Wetten, the Republican nominee, several questions such as whether he had been promised a Democratic reward for a "powder puff campaign."

Mr. Wetten, having again disappointed a group of ward committeemen once more looking for some assurance about the prospect for munitions of war, issued two statements, one criticising Clyde L. Day, an old associate of his in the corporation counsel's office, for indorsing Mayor Kelly, and the other setting up some of his ideas about what the national Republican party must do if it is to survive its present depression.

OBTAINS RELIEF UNDER 2 NAMES; GETS 3 MONTHS

Howard Lenner, 41 years old, 448 East 42d street, was sentenced to three months in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green in the Wabash avenue court for obtaining relief under false pretenses. Lenner, it was disclosed, got double relief by renting a room at 750 East 42d street under the name of Henry Baker and drawing relief under both names. The fraud was discovered when a case worker who knew him as Lenner heard him give the name of Baker in the Oakwood relief station. Investigation showed that under the name of Lenner he received relief from October, 1931, until Oct. 18, 1934, when the scheme was halted. As "Baker" he obtained aid from July, 1932, onward. The total value of the relief given him was $1,600.

COUNCIL TO GET FINANCE REPORT PROPOSAL TODAY

Mayor Kelly's proposed amendement to the city code providing for the issuance of quarterly statements on the city's financial condition was approved yesterday by an unanimous vote of the city council finance committee. It will be submitted to the council today.

The quarterly statement plan was advocated by the mayor to give Chicagoans a short, simple statement of the use being made of their tax dollars. Each one will set forth the income of the city's corporate fund and the manner in which it was spent during the quarter. They will give also a summary of the city's debts at the beginning and end of the quarters.

The ordinance amendment calls for the statements to be made on the 10th day of every third month.

PARK PAY CHECKS TO BE MAILED TO SAVE LABOR TIME

To effect a labor saving which they estimate at $28,000 a year, Chicago park district commissioners decided yesterday that the 3,000 bimonthly pay roll checks for the district be mailed to the workers. Robert J. Dunham, president of the board, said he was tired of hearing of workers taking half day vacations in order to go to a main distributing point to get their checks. The bimonthly pay roll amounts to $300,000. Stephen Forst, superintendent in charge of employment, told the board that many workers had objected to the mailing of checks on the ground that their wives did not know their exact salaries. President Dunham declared he was not concerned with the domestic affairs of the workers but with the efficiency of the park district.

$500,000 in Tax Sale Cash Ready for Claimants

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn said yesterday that an audit of funds in his office has disclosed unclaimed money estimated at $500,000 which has been on deposit there as the result of tax buyers failing to collect on their tax sale certificates after the property owners have redeemed their property. One fund has been on deposit since 1873, Mr. Flynn said. The money is kept in a separate trust fund and is available to the owner or his heirs if proper proof is presented.

LAY DEATH TO NATURAL CAUSES.

Heart disease caused the death on Monday of Albert Ellison, 46 years old, 347 North Clark street, a coroner's jury decided yesterday. The inquest was ordered because Ellison was injured in an automobile accident on March 9.

CARY GRANT'S ACTRESS WIFE WINS DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Cal., March 26.—[Special.]—Virginia Cherrill, blonde movie actress, was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce here today from Cary Grant, six foot cinema star and former leading man for Mae West.

Miss Cherrill, who once was Charles Chaplin's leading lady, accused her husband of deserting her, nagging her without cause, and refusing to accompany her to places of amusement and to the homes of friends. Last Sept. 27, seven months after their marriage, Grant said the marriage was a mistake and that he was leaving for good, the actress charged.

In a previous suit for separate maintenance Miss Cherrill accused Grant of beating her, threatening her life, choking her, calling her vile names, and using liquor to excess. She dropped that suit early this month and asked a divorce, announcing a property settlement had been effected out of court.

At the time of their marriage, Feb. 9, 1934, their names were recorded as Archibald Alec Leach and Virginia Adler.

MAYOR URGES USE OF RELIEF LABOR TO LIGHTEN TAXES

Would Buy Materials for Public Work.

A pledge to continue his efforts to turn relief labor into useful channels so as to lighten the tax load was made yesterday by Mayor Kelly at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman yesterday of neighborhood business men and chairmen of community organizations from various parts of the city.

"I told Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, that paying men for work that doesn't mean anything is distasteful to the people," said Mayor Kelly. "If we can get the government to spend more of its relief money for materials we will be able to put these men to work repairing streets, installing street lights, and putting in new sewers.

"In this way we can use relief labor to lighten the load of special assessments."

Only 4% for Materials.

Last month, according to the records, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission paid out less than 4 per cent of its work relief funds for the purchase of materials, the remainder of the materials being bought by local governments which had money available for the purpose.

The neighborhood business men formally presented the mayor with 42 billboards advertising his candidacy for election April 2.

"I knew Chicago had a great heart," the mayor said, "but I didn't know that business men who have no connection with politics would go to so much trouble to help me."

"This gift is in recognition of the coöperation you have shown to all the communities in the city," replied Leonard Fish, chairman of the meeting.

Mayor Discusses Safety.

Later the mayor attended a Rotary club luncheon in the same hotel. Nathaniel Leverone, chairman of the club's civic committee, declared that "Mayor Kelly is not the mayor of a party but of all Chicago, who is doubly welcome here because of his work done to assure safety of citizens on the streets and highways."

Mayor Kelly said everything possible is being done now to enforce the speed and other trafic laws, and that ticket fixing has been eliminated. The next thing to do is to pass the drivers' license and safety responsibility bills now pending in Springfield, he said.

ASSESSOR READY TO PUSH CHICAGO PERSONALTY TAX

County Assessor Clark said yesterday that he expected his special advisory committee, appointed ten days ago to aid him in formulating a plan to place an estimated 3 billion dollars in trust funds and securities held in Cook county on the personal property assessment rolls, would complete their study by the end of the week.

Completion of the 1934 personal property assessment has been held up pending the report of the committee on the recommendations to the assessor for classifying all such money and securities and placing them at a genuine valuation on the personal property books.

The committee headed by Col. A. A. Sprague was named by Assessor Clark after the banks had turned down his request for data on trust funds and lists of savings deposits and depositors.

He added that certain organizations, whose names he refused to make public, had served notice they would seek court action by means of taxpayers suits to compel him to assess intangible property at its full value if he failed to do so. Such action, Assistant State's Attorney Hayden Bell explained, would have little standing in court, as the assessor has the right to make his own assessment, providing there is no fraud.

MAROONS ELIMINATE HAWKS IN CUP PLAY, 1-0

GOLDEN GLOVES CHAMPS END BOXING TODAY

Coaches Face Task Picking Starters.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Two round bouts was the program yesterday at the Illinois Athletic club by which Chicago's contenders for the intercity Golden Gloves championship continued to prepare for Friday night's tests. This afternoon the boys will conclude their ring drills, as will their opponents, the New York boxers, who are battling merrily each afternoon in the Medinah club gymnasium.

Chicago's boxers, after they had finished their bouts and had been treated for a scattering of minor bruises, were more interested in the choice of the 16 boys to meet the New Yorkers than in rumors of the prowess of the rival squad. Automatically the eight Chicago champions, barring injury, qualify for the team. This certainly has not decreased their interest in getting into the best of condition. The scrap for the runner-up positions is probably the best any group of Chicago boxers ever waged and there is little difference now between the rivals.

Scales Are Light.

Yesterday's two round bouts were fought at top speed and the coaches insisted on continuous action. Condition may determine more than one contest Friday night and Chicago is determined that no match will be lost because of lack of endurance.

A check up on the club scale revealed that it is a bit light. In other words, the boxers have a fraction of a pound more to take off if they are above the limit. A new scale will be moved in today for use after today's bouts. Weight has not caused much worry, however, for only three or four boys have excess to remove.

Paul Hartnek of Creighton university and Otis Thomas, last year's Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, are engaged in a stern scrap for the right to meet New York's secondary heavyweight, Herman West, Centralia's champion, also is making a determined bid for the light heavyweight runner-up position. Two Chicago boys —Charles Wozlak of the C. Y. O. and Al Vandenbosch of the Belgian-American A. C.—are the candidates for the middleweight runner-up berth.

New York's Problem.

If Chicago's coaches are having a difficult time completing their selections, consider the problem of New York's coaches, who must select sixteen boys from a squad of thirty-eight. A tentative lineup was named yesterday, which follows:

112 pounds—George Coyle, champion, and Bernard Reitman.
118 pounds—Charles Villareale and Ray Olivo.
126 pounds—John Cabello, champion, and Angelo Bruscato.
135 pounds—Sedgwick Harvey and Dave Chatham, Metropolitan A. A. U. champion.
147 pounds—Eddie Steele and Ludwig Kubisch.
160 pounds—Bradley Lewis and Otis Johnson.
175 pounds—Phil Ragozzino and Bjarne Ekeland.
Heavyweight—James Howell, champion, and Larry Green.

Outstanding in this last are Villareale, an intercity winner over Jimmy Eliopoulos in 1931; Ragozzino, who defeated George Keenan for the welterweight title that same year and then won the international championship from France at Soldiers' field; Sedgwick Harvey, three times a New York Golden Glove champion and last year a victor over Andy Scrivani in the featherweight division; Larry Green, who lost a close decision to Max Marek in Madison Square Garden last March, and George Coyle, an usher at Radio City, who is one of the best flyweights ever developed in New York.

Little Fellows Open Card.

James Howell, a newcomer in New York amateur ranks, is a worthy successor to Bob Pastor. Like Pastor he whipped Green in the finals of the tournament to take the title. Howell is touted as a hard puncher, who is expected to give Lorenzo Pack, Chicago's champion, a knockout blow some time during the battle which will conclude Friday night's program of 16 bouts.

The first match, the secondary flyweight bout, will start at 8 o'clock Friday night. Only general admission tickets remain and the number who will see the eighth intercity bouts depends on how many of these are sold. More than 22,000 attended the Chicago Golden Gloves finals March 8 and this figure is expected to be exceeded Friday night.

2,900 TICKETS AT 50 CENTS

General admission tickets for the intercity Golden Gloves bouts between Chicago and New York at Chicago Stadium are on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and in the lobby of Tribune Tower. Only 2,900 remain. You cannot afford to delay if you want to see the best amateur boxing show America can offer.

The price is only 50 cents, tax included. The supply is sure to be exhausted before the night of the bouts. Get yours today.

THE MAYOR MEETS SOME OTHER FIGHTERS

New York's Golden Gloves team paid a visit to Mayor Kelly at the city hall yesterday and the mayor wished them luck in Friday night's intercity bouts at the Stadium. Front row, from left to right: Coach Frank Morris, Gaspare Abruzzo, Pete Garacciola, Phil Siriani, Mayor Kelly, George Coyle, and Louis Stipo. Back row: Bjarne Ekeland, Stanley Hasrato, Coach Young Otto,, John Pavolich, Tony Giello, Angelo Bruscato, Murry Kravitz, and Eugene Marini.

O. K., Otto, It's Your Story, but Are We Laughing!

New York will beat Chicago's intercity Golden Gloves boxers in the annual event to be held at Chicago Stadium Friday, probably thirteen bouts to three. That was the opinion expressed yesterday by Young Otto, born Arthur Susskind, one of the eastern coaches.

"Chicago has only three good fighters, Johnny Brown, Andy Scrivani, and Patsy Urso," said Otto, who scouted the semi-finals and finals of the Chicago tournament March 8. "Our boys will take care of the others.

"Bridges? [light heavyweight alternate who may fight in the runner-up position and is considered one of the best boxers on the team] I've seen him perform on several occasions. He's not so hot; we've got just the boy to beat him."

MALONE SOLD TO YANKEES BY ST. LOUIS CARDS

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26.—[Special.]—The significance of the visit of Branch Rickey and Manager Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals here was revealed this afternoon when Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, announced the purchase of Pitcher Pat Malone. The purchase price was not announced. Malone, now at Bradenton with the Cardinals, is scheduled to report at the Yankee camp here tomorrow.

Manager Joe McCarthy regains one of his old pitchers in the acquisition of Malone. The Yankee pilot purchased Malone from Minneapolis when he was managing the Chicago Cubs. He sees in the big right hander a welcome addition to the Yankee hurling staff.

Once the strikeout king of the Cubs and a leading pitcher on the National league staff for several seasons, Malone pitched last year for Chicago. He had a record of 14 victories and 7 defeats, striking out 112 batters in 191 innings. Last October Malone was traded to the Cardinals for Catcher Jimmy O'Dea.

New York Names Braddock No. 1 Heavyweight Challenger

New York, March 26.—(AP)—From almost total obscurity 96 hours ago, James J. Braddock, Jersey City heavyweight, was skyrocketed to the listic stratosphere today when the New York state athletic commission designated him its No. 1 contender for the championship now held by Max Baer.

The commission's edict, issued after a two hour session during which it refused to sanction Madison Square Garden's proposed title bout between Baer and Max Schmeling here in June, was tantamount to selecting the champion's opponent if Baer elects to defend the championship in this state. Ironically enough, the commission's decision comes a little more than a year after it refused to sanction a bout between Braddock and Walter Neusel, declaring Braddock was an unfit opponent.

Carnera Is Eliminated.

John R. Kilpatrick, president of the Garden corporation, faced with the alternative of holding the Baer-Schmeling fight out of the state, was made a counter proposition by the commission. It said Schmeling will be permitted to meet Baer in New York provided he'll engage in a preliminary contest against Braddock and clearly demonstrate his superiority over the Jersey veteran who boosted his stock last Friday when he decisively defeated Art Lasky in 15 rounds.

In the midst of these developments Primo Carnera was eliminated from championship contention. The giant Italian was offered a bout with Braddock, but his manager, Louis Soresi, turned it down because the Garden refused to comply with his demand that a $50,000 guaranty be posted to assure the winner a match with Baer.

"Jimmy Johnston wouldn't comply and I've been fooled once by the Garden and once is enough," Soresi said. "Johnston has a habit of serving you the meat course with one hand and giving some one else your dessert with the other. I've had enough. Carnera has signed to meet Joe Louis under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Sporting club."

Everybody Says Something.

Kilpatrick and Johnston were inclined to accept the commission's decision in comparative silence.

"I don't know what we'll do," said Kilpatrick. "As for taking the bout out of the state, I won't say we will and I won't say we won't."

"The Garden has a contract with Joe Jacobs for Schmeling to meet Baer," said John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission. "We feel Schmeling must meet and defeat Braddock to earn the right to meet Baer. If Braddock defeats Schmeling we'll merely reiterate his designation as our No. 1 contender."

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, firmly insisted the German would meet Baer or no one.

"Why should we fight Braddock first?" he roared. "He didn't display anything of a championship caliber against Lasky. If the commission is trying to drive the fight out of New York state they'll probably succeed."

ANCIL JUST LAUGHS.

Sacramento, Cal., March 26.—(AP)—Ancil Hoffman threw back his head and laughed:

"That's a big joke!"

Such was the observation of the manager of Max Baer, world's heavyweight boxing champion, when told the New York boxing commission today had named James J. Braddock of New Jersey as No. 1 challenger for Baer's crown.

"Say, I can take Buddy back there and he could knock out Braddock," said Hoffman. "Braddock wouldn't draw miles. Buddy could beat Braddock and I'll bet he could knock out Art Lasky in four rounds."

Hoffman referred to the champion's brother, Buddy Baer, and the recent fight between Braddock and Lasky, Minneapolis heavyweight.

Hoffman expressed belief the public "would not stand for a Braddock-Baer fight." The champion shared the same opinion.

Hoffman said he would accept a match with Max Schmeling outside the state of New York under the promotion of Madison Square Garden. "If the Garden wants to put on a Baer-Schmeling bout in Chicago or any place in the United States, we'll be ready."

Leafs Square Series at One Game Each.

Boston, Mass., March 26.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the Boston Bruins, 2 to 0, before 17,200 spectators tonight, thereby squaring their series in the Stanley cup hocky playoffs. Each team has won one game in the five game series.

The first two periods were scoreless, but early in the third, Charlie Conacher drove the puck into the net from a range of about 30 feet. About two minutes later, Harvey Jackson fired the second Toronto score past Goalie Thompson.

Bruins Are Shorthanded.

Three times before Conacher scored, the Bruins had been playing shorthanded against five Toronto forwards. Then in the third period, Babe Siebert, a Boston defense man, was penalized for tripping King Clancy. As Siebert headed for the penalty box, Conacher, Jackson, Primeau, Cotton, and Metz skated onto the ice.

Jackson carried the puck over the blue line and drove at the Boston goalie. The rebound went to Conacher along the right boards and Charlie fired into the net before the goalie could regain his balance.

Resume Series Thursday.

The second Toronto score was made while the Bruins were at full strength.

The series will be resumed Thursday evening in Toronto.

RANGERS WIN SERIES

MONTREAL, March 26.—(AP)—The New York Rangers advanced to the semi-final round of the National Hocky league playoffs tonight as they battled the Montreal Canadiens to a 4 to 4 tie in the second half of their two game total goal series. As a result of taking a 2 to 1 lead at New York Sunday, the Rangers won the series, 6 goals to 5.

Trailing 3 to 1 as the third period opened, the Canadiens turned on every bit of steam they had. Jack McGill whipped in a second Canadien goal inside of five minutes only to see Butch Keeling score the final Ranger tally. Undiscouraged, McGill scored unassisted before the period was half over. Just 25 seconds later Aurel Joliat took a pass from Armand Mondou for the goal that tied up the game.

The Rangers, who played a close checking game from the start, showed an even greater defense to protect their slim lead. They clung to the opposing forwards, and slammed the puck far down the ice to avert danger. Lineups:

Pirates Pound Sox Rookies; Win, 9-0; Lead in Series, 5-1

The Cubs were beaten by Seattle of the Pacific Coast league, 14 to 3, in an exhibition game at Los Angeles, Cal., yesterday. Details on page 19.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Bernardino, Cal., March 26.—The White Sox suffered another attack of complicated jitters today, so they appeared more or less feeble in their daily exhibition effort against Pittburgh's Pirates. The National leaguers hit the ball and the American leaguers tossed in some errors for good measure. The mixing of these ingredients along with a scarcity of Sox hits resulted in a 9 to 0 victory for the Pirates and their fifth in the six games staged thus far.

The first bit of damage inflicted by the victors was during Lee Stine's four inning term on the mound. The young rookie lacked control, but, despite this, got to the end of the third with only one run against his record. The fourth, however, saw him buried under three runs, part of which could be attributed to Marty Hopkins' poor attempt to reveal his shortstopping talents. What happened in the remaining innings can be attributed to misfortunes heaped on Vernon Kennedy by the enemy bats.

Lucas, Bush Are Good.

The Sox couldn't do much in the hitting line because of the presence of Charles Lucas, ex-Red, and Guy Bush, a Cub alumnus. Lucas showed the Hose so many curve balls they could record only three singles during his five inning term. Having witnessed that sort of performance, it was only natural that a fellow of Bush's temperament should try to improve on it. He didn't improve on it, but, nevertheless, was pretty fair. He consented to three hits in four innings, but nobody reached third against him. That happened once while Lucas was in action.

The playing of Hopkins at short was in the nature of an experiment. He is the only man available for utility work at the position. As it was his initial effort of the season there, his actions can be excused. Making the experiment at this time also served to give Luke Appling a vacation. He felt a bit dizzy today after being cracked on the back of the head yesterday by a thrown ball. Another absentee from the performance was Manager Dykes. He let young Marshall Mauldin play third. The kid at least unloaded a hit, which exceeded the production of some of the others.

Sox Have One Chance.

The Sox had only one chance of any consequence while Lucas was turning out his day's work. That came in the second when Washington singled with one out and Hopkins scratched a hit off Traynor's glove. It didn't mean a thing. Mauldin bounced gently to Suhr and Sewell fanned after missing a safe drive by inches along the third base line. The only other

NORTHCOTT'S OVERTIME GOAL STUNS 17,681

Accident Leads to Penalty, Defeat.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The reign of the Chicago Blackhawks as world champions and holders of the Stanley cup ended at the Stadium last night when they were defeated, 1 to 0, by the Montreal Maroons in the final game of the second place playoff series.

A crowd of 17,681, the largest of the year for the National Hocky league, looked on stunned while Baldy Northcott, Maroon forward, with the coöperation of Bob Gracie, scored the winning goal against Lorne Chabot, winner of the Vezina trophy. It should be set down immediately that M. Chabot at the time had only four workmen on the fore deck, instead of the orthodox five.

In that matter of a short handed crew lies the story of the Hawk's downfall. The two teams had battled through 60 minutes of regulation play at Montreal Saturday night, and repeated the operation for that period last night, thereby prolonging the two game total goal series into a sudden death status.

Accident Decides Game.

After about three and a half minutes of such competition, the Hawks swept in on the Maroon cage and Alex Connell, second best goalie of the year. In the confusion which followed, Lolo Couture's stick struck Dave Trottier, veteran Maroon wing, squarely on the head, and Trottier slumped to the ice. The action was entirely accidental, Lolo having his back almost fully turned to Trottier at the time, but the sweeping arc of that club sounded the Hawks' knell.

Trottier was assisted from the ice and Lolo sentenced to the penalty box on a major charge. Thirty seconds later, Northcott and Gracie moved in on Chabot for the necessary goal. The time was 4:02.

The Maroons left for New York immediately after the game, there to meet the New York Rangers, winners of the third place bracket, tomorrow night. The two will continue their battle at Montreal Saturday night, the winner to meet the victor of the Toronto-Boston series for the Stanley cup.

Maroons Speed Up.

The Maroons did not deny advance indications that they would reverse their plan of campaign of last Saturday night. Those who had witnessed the opener, in fact, couldn't recognize them, such was the speed of their attack. They were more than matched, however, swiftness being the Hawks' forte. Checking was at a minimum for the greater part of the first period by comparison with the first game, although there was plenty of it. The tempo of the game was such that it was waged to the accompaniment of a constant uproar, unlike the howls of a regular season house.

After the second lines had done with their opening chores, the star trios were sent on, the Morenz line for Chicago and the Smith trio for Montreal. The appearance of Smith was a surprise, considering the announcements in Montreal Saturday that he would not play, owing to his broken right thumb. By the time Hooley arrived, however, he found his defensive talents more than called upon, due to the spirited attack of the Hawk line. On one of these rushes only a heroic stop by Connell's right knee prevented Morenz from scoring, and Howie nearly counted again on the rebound.

Coulter Scares Maroons.

The Maroons were sent into a panic as soon as Coulter was sent off in the final minute, for Gottselig stole the puck and was in on Connell. Shields, however, steered him off balance.

The Hawk forwards obviously had the better of the offensive action in the second period, although the Maroons' conduct, compared with that of Saturday night was amazing, so much did they open up.

Trottier broke through the Hawk defense in the tenth minute for a shot which must have scorched Chabot's toes, but March, Morenz, and Gottselig answered this with a series of rushes which nearly provoked a battle. Northcott trampled all over March in helping Connell on a close

PRELIMINARIES TO LOUIS-BROWN BOUT SCHEDULED

Wiater and Lazer Booked for Eight Rounds.

Supporting bouts to the ten round main event between Joe Louis and Natie Brown at Detroit Friday were completed yesterday. Two matches at eight rounds each will bring together Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., and Roy Lazer, Paterson, N. J., heavyweights, and Johnny Vorce, Detroit, and Harold [Dutch] Weimer, Tucson, Ariz., light heavyweights. A six round contest will involve Al Diamond, Paterson, and Gene Stanley, Mount Clemens, Mich., middleweights. Bill Treest, last year's Golden Gloves 160 pound king, will tackle Oscar Schmeling, Canton, O., in the opening encounter at six rounds.

Lazer left for Detroit yesterday. Wiater will leave Thursday morning.

Jackie Sharkey, Chicago junior lightweight, will start sparring drills today for his eight round rematch with Orville Drouillard at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . The Catholic Youth organization staf met yesterday to discuss completion of arrangements for the annual juvenile boxing tournament which will get under way at C. Y. O. center April 4. . . . Boys between the ages of 9 and 15 are eligible to compete.

Sammy Chivas, promising Detroit junior welterweight, boxed two rounds with Champion Barney Ross yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium. Ross is preparing for his twelve round junior welterweight title defense against Henry Woods at Seattle, Wash., April 9. He will board an airplane for Seattle Monday morning at 5 o'clock.

King Levinsky's coolness toward a $15,000 offer for a clash with Joe Louis at the Stadium April 12 has prompted Co-Machmakers James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis to seek James J. Braddock for the assignment. . . . Harry Dublinsky, Chuck Heffner, and Max Elling opened training yesterday at the new Madison Square gymnasium.

Bob Olin, light heavyweight champion, passed through the loop last night en route from Cleveland to San Francisco, Cal., where he will meet John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., in a ten round overweight match April 12. . . . The next show at Janesville, Wis., is scheduled for April 12 with the probability Billy Celebron, who knocked out Jim McFarland there Monday, will appear in the windup.

DISTRICT GOLF OFFICIALS ADOPT CADDY SYSTEM

A new caddy system was announced yesterday by the Chicago District Golf association for all boys who intend to caddy at clubs belonging to the association. Details of the system embody a registration and recording of conduct of all caddies while on the courses and ratings as to ability, honesty, and deportment.

Caddies who have been employed by member clubs in past seasons must get an approval from their former caddy master and new boys who wish to work at these courses must supply the association with a letter of recommendation. The purpose of the register, according to Tom Murphy, president of the Chicago Junior Golf association, will be to eliminate undesirable caddies from Chicago clubs.

Each caddy will also be given a set of rules drawn by the association and will have to stand a test on his knowledge of these rules before he is permitted to enter the courses. Caddies working at the various clubs will be assisted in organizing separate divisions of the association and will be represented by elected delegates at the central meetings, to be held in the association's main office at 14 East Jackson boulevard.

LEVINSKY MEETS BABE HUNT IN 10 ROUNDS TONIGHT

Dallas, Tex., March 26.—[Special.]—King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, and Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okla., who has toured the hinterlands with Jack Dempsey and Max Baer, will meet in a ten round bout here tonight.

"They better have an ambulance ready for this mug Hunt because I'm going to knock him clear out to those oil fields in Oklahoma," Levinsky said. "Boy, it's going to take the King to put Texas on the boxing map."

FORD, MICHIGAN CENTER, NAMED COACH AT YALE

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 26.—[Special.]—Gerald Ford of Grand Rapids, center on the 1934 Michigan football team, has been named line coach for the junior varsity at Yale, it became known today. He is the second Michigan man to be hired by Yale, Ivan Williamson having joined the New Haven staf as end coach last fall.

Ford, a letter man for three years, was picked by his teammates as the most valuable man on the team last fall.

Name Referees and Judges for Intercity Bouts

The following referees and judges have been named to determine the 16 winners in the intercity Golden Gloves bouts Friday night at the Chicago Stadium:

REFEREES.

Sam Hennessy, Detroit; George A. Barton, Minneapolis; Walter Harpt, Philadelphia, and Edward Brockman, Baltimore.

JUDGES.

William P. Kenney, Boston; L. N. Bloom, Cleveland; O. R. Benjamin, Detroit; Dr. J. A. Reilly, Kansas City; Frank N. Percival, Philadelphia, and Francis J. Flynn, Baltimore.

This same group officiated last year at Madison Square Garden when New York won by the score of 9 bouts to 7.

Lucky Sweep Tickets Held by Americans

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Keegan of Ridgefield, N. J., a widow, gasped today when informed that she was the holder of an Irish Sweepstakes ticket on Golden Miller, the favorite horse in the Grand National steeplechase to be run on Friday at Aintree, England.

By virtue of her good fortune in having her ticket drawn Mrs. Keegan stands to win $143,475 if Golden Miller comes in first; $71,737 if in second place, and $47,825 if third. In any event she is assured of approximately $3,975 just for holding a ticket on one of the forty-seven horses entered in the race.

Has Had Hard Luck.

Mrs. Keegan needs a little luck. She admitted that much. Her husband died only recently, leaving her with the care of two small children. They are in poor circumstances. She herself is not working.

Luck also smiled on Dotty Gaynor, a 24 year old bookkeeper of Manhattan. Miss Gaynor has a ticket on Thomond II., the second favorite.

One of Miss Gaynor's ambitions is to live in Brooklyn. If she wins she'll live in Brooklyn, have a nice apartment there for herself, her parents, and her two brothers.

"The first thing is to get a nice, decent place to live for all of us. Then maybe I'll travel. I'd like to travel. To go to Europe maybe."

Father Is Unemployed.

Dotty's father is a plasterer, unemployed. He's been out of work for five years. The family has been extremely hard up.

Fortune also was kind to Mrs. Ray Gold, a dark haired young Bronx housewife. She holds a ticket on Reynoldstown, quoted at 18 to 1.

A record for calm acceptance of good news was set by Mrs. Thomas Roszki, whose husband holds a ticket in the name of their 20 year old son, Joseph. The ticket is already good for about $4,000, and will be borne in the race by the stout legs of Thomond II. So it has a chance of drawing down the grand prize. But Mrs. Roszki only murmured, "What of that?" when a reporter pointed out her chances.

ST. LOUIS SKATE CLUB ADDED TO STADIUM SHOW

Members of the St. Louis, Mo., Skating club yesterday were added to the international ice carnival program which will be held at the Chicago Stadium April 7. The group, under the direction of Norval Baptie and Gladys Lamb, professional figure skating champions, is rated as one of the best in the world.

Among the members of the squad are Jeanne Schulte and Oliver Haupt, United States junior pair champions. They will perform with several foreign stars including Maxi Herber, 15 year old champion of Germany; Miss Vivi-Ann Hulton of Sweden and Miss Idi Papetz and Earl Zwack of Austria.

Stanford Coach to Lead Fight Against Center Tipoff

Stanford University, Cal., March 26.—(AP)—Bearing petitions from Pacific coast basketball coaches for elimination of the center tipoff, John Bunn, Stanford coach, will leave tomorrow to attend the National Basketball Coaches association meeting at Chicago April 3, 4 and 5. Bunn plans to conduct a vigorous campaign for the proposed rule.

Cook County Volley Ball Tourney Opens Tonight

The annual Cook county volleyball tournament will open tonight with three games at the Duncan Y. M. C. A. The Division Street Y. M. C. A. will meet the Duncan "Y" at 7 o'clock; Chicago Turners will meet the Irving Park "Y" an hour later, and at 9 o'clock the North Avenue "Y" and Oak Park will clash.

Sneed Colored Stars Meet Central Park Clothiers

The Sneed [colored] Stars-Central Park Clothiers contest features tonight's second round games in the Cook county handicap basketball tournament at Olympic gymnasium, 6148 Cermak road, Cicero.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 26.—The Cubs executed a triple play today, but otherwise did nothing except chase base hits from the bats of Seattle's sluggers. The Indians swept the two game series with a brutal flourish, the final score being Seattle, 14; Chicago, 3.

But for the triple play and generous and deliberate wandering off bases, the Indians might easily have scored 30 or 40 runs. Clay Bryant, winter choice to become the Cubs' No. 5 pitcher, and Tex [Rocking Chair] Carleton, making his Cub debut, had nothing that remotely resembled pitching skill. The Indians made 20 hits.

The triple play was launched by Freddy Lindstrom. Gyselman walked to start the second inning. Spindel sacrificed and both runners were safe on Cavarretta's late throw to second. Pillette tried to sacrifice and looped the ball to Lindstrom. Freddy trapped it and stepped on third to force Gyselman. He then threw to Cavarretta to get Pillette and Cavarretta threw to English, who tagged Spindel.

Third in Row.

It was the third straight licking the major leaguers have taken at the hands of Coast league performers and the fifth from that variety of opposition in a week. Old settlers who have been watching the Cubs out here since 1920 say they never have seen them appear half so futile as they have this spring, especially today. This afternoon they pounded out six hits, the same number as yesterday. They made one earned run, off Herman Pillette, who was a major league pitcher back in the days when Abner Doubleday was working to perfect the game.

Tomorrow, against Portland, Larry French will seek to go nine innings.

The Indians got a run in the first inning despite the fact that Bryant struck out the side. Smith singled to right and advanced to second while Klein kicked the ball around. Taylor walked, then Donovan and Bonetti fanned. Berger singled to left, scoring Smith, then Lawrence fanned.

Cubs Get One.

After executing that triple play in the first half of the second inning, the Cubs were so excited that they got a run and momentarily tied the score, aided materially by Pillette's error, in their half. Demaree walked and was forced by Cavarretta. Pillette threw the ball away trying to catch Cavarretta off first, Phil going to second, whence he scored on Hartnett's single to left. English hit into a double play.

The Indians, undaunted by the triple slaying, stepped out in the third inning for a cluster of four runs. After Smith had fanned Taylor walked. Then followed a fumble by English, a single by Bonetti, a double by Lawrence and singles by Gyselman and Spindel. The four runs were made without the aid of Spindel's single.

The Cubs got another unearned run in their half of the third. Galan doubled to right and reached third when Bonetti juggled the ball. Augie scored on Herman's fly. Klein furnished an infield out.

Indians Fall To.

The Indians waited till two were out before falling on Bryant in the fifth. Berger doubled, Lawrence walked, Gyselman singled and Spindel doubled for a total of three runs.

In the Cub fifth the National leaguers crashed through for their third hit and first earned run. Woody English knocked the ball over the left field fence.

It was in the sixth that Carleton made his Cub debut in competition. In his first inning of work the Cubs' new rocking chair addict held the Coast leaguers to five hits and five runs. He walked only two and fanned one. The inning might have gone on indefinitly if Pillette had not generously strolled down the base line, begging the Cubs to tag him. Eventually he was tagged.

Insurance Basket Title Will Be at Stake Tonight

The Chicago Insurance Basketball league championship will be at stake tonight when quintets representing the Millers National Insurance company and Kemper Insurance clash at 9 o'clock at St. Alphonsus gymnasium, Southport and Oakdale avenues. In the preliminary game at 8 o'clock the Continental Casualty Girls will oppose the American College of Physical Education five.

Ruth's Single Leads Braves to 4-3 Victory

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26.—[Special.]—The Boston Braves evened their spring series with the New York Yankees at three games each today by scoring a 4 to 3 victory. The National leaguers made all their runs in the fourth inning.

Babe Ruth smashed one of Johnny Allen's pitches for a single at the start of the inning. Allen then passed the next three batters and a base hit by Ray Thompson and a long fly by Garrity produced the four runs required to defeat the Yankees. Ruth played at first base for five innings.

Earle Combs made his first appearance in the Yankees' lineup since last July, when he was injured in St. Louis. Van Atta succeeded Allen on the mound. They yielded nine hits, while Rhem and Mangum held the Yankees to seven. Score:

Boston .....000 400 000—4 9 1
New York .....000 010 110—3 7 1

Batteries—Rhem, Mangum and Garrity; Allen, Van Atta and Dickey.

BROWNS, 4; BUFFALO, 3.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 26.—[Special.]—The St. Louis Browns scored a run in the ninth inning to defeat the Buffalo club of the International league, 4 to 3, today. It was the Browns' ninth victory in eleven games this spring. Siebert of Buffalo hit a home run in the second inning.

Buffalo .....011 000 010—3 12 3
St. Louis .....020 010 001—4 10 1

Batteries—Lisenbee, Harris, Jacobs, and Wasem; Hayes, Coffman, Andrews, and Hemsley.

REDS BLANK RED SOX.

Sarasota, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox, playing without Manager Joe Cronin and four other regulars, suffered their first shutout of the spring exhibition series today when they lost to the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 0. Gene Schott pitched seven innings for the National leaguers and during his stay on the mound only one of the Sox got beyond first base. Score:

Cincinnati .....020 001 101—5 9 1
Boston .....000 000 000—0 5 3

Batteries—Schott, Herrmann, and Lombardi; Rhodes, H. Johnson, and Smith.

DETROIT, 11; ROCHESTER, 1.

Lakeland, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers defeated the Rochester club of the International league today, 11 to 1. The Tiger recruits and reserves obtained 15 hits from three Rochester pitchers. Fred Marberry held Rochester to a single in five innings and Clyde Hatter, who relieved him, yielded only two in four frames.

Rochester .....010 000 000— 1 3 3
Detroit .....304 010 03*—11 15 1

Batteries—Berly, Cross, Macon, and Healy; Marberry, Hatter, and Reiber.

ORIOLES, 4; PHILLIES, 3.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—The Phillies encountered an old pal today and took the short end of a 4 to 3 score, their second defeat at the hands of the Baltimore Orioles and their fifth loss in ten starts. The old friend was Reg Grabowski, who was on the Phils pitching staf last season. He pitched today for the Orioles and allowed his former teammates only four hits and one run in five innings.

Baltimore .....010 200 100—4 6 0
Philadelphia .....000 010 020—3 6 1

Batteries—Grabowski, Lohrman, and Spencer, Atwood; Jorgens, Collins, and Wilson.

MONTREAL, 9; DODGERS, 8.

Orlando, Fla., March 26.—[Special.]—Hits were driven out to all parts of the local park this afternoon as the Montreal club of the International league scored a 9 to 8 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers collected 8 hits, while Montreal scored 13. Score:

Montreal .....005 100 201—9 13 1
Brooklyn .....041 001 002—8 8 1

Batteries—Friis, Appleton, Mollykangas, and Tate, Stack; Munns, Logan, and Manse.

INDIANS, 9; GIANTS, 8.

Tallahassee, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—Earl Averill's ninth inning home run climaxed a heavy hitting contest today as the Cleveland Indians scored four runs in the final frame to defeat the New York Giants, 9 to 8, before a crowd of 2,000.

Averill also drove out a double and a single in the Indians' 17 hit attack off Frank Gabler and Clydell Castleman, while Phil Weintraub contributed a triple and three singles to the Giants' 15 hit offense off Clint Brown, Thornton Lee, and Dennis Galehouse. Score:

Cleveland .....010 120 014—9 17 1

Batteries—C. Brown, Lee, Galehouse and Pytlak, George; Gabler, Castleman and Mancuso, Richards.

CARDS, 25; RED BIRDS, 18.

Avon Park, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals and the Columbus Red Birds of the American association went on a batting spree today, with the Cardinals finishing ahead, 25 to 18. Bill Hallahan started for the world champions and was pounded for 14 hits and nine runs in five innings. Ray Harrel worked four innings and was hammered for 11 hits and nine runs.

Dizzy and Paul Dean are scheduled to pitch tomorrow when the Cards meet the Detroit Tigers.

St. Louis [N.].....350 253 430—25 24 5
Columbus [A.A.]...200 340 045—18 24 3

Batteries—Hallahan, Harrell, and Davis; Cooper, Hambers, Cox, Sims, Martin, and Hollyfield.

ATHLETICS WIN, 5-4.

Birmingham, Ala., March 26.—(AP)—The Athletics rung up their third victory in three starts today, but had to go ten innings to do it. The Birmingham Barons were the victims, 5 to 4. A single by Pinky Higgins, a sacrifice by George Caster and Eric McNair's second double in a row broke the 4 to 4 deadlock. Score:

Philadelphia [A.].000 100 300 1—5 11 0
Birmingham [S.A.].202 000 000 0—4 8 0

Batteries—Caster, Wilshire and Foxx; White, Shoun, Scott and Denning, West.

PIRATES POUND SOX ROOKIES, 9-0

Errors Help Pittsburgh in Fifth Victory.

hit off Lucas was a single by Hayes after one was gone in the third. This was cleaned up hurriedly on Radcliff's double play grounder to Young at short.

One of the few hits off Bush appeared in the sixth, the first inning he worked. Radcliff produced it, but two were out at the time, so Bush had no trouble. In the seventh Mauldin singled with two out after Wright had opened the inning with a bounder which Brubaker fumbled. Caithamer, who succeeded Sewell behind the bat, then fouled to Browne. Thereafter the ex-Cub star had nothing to contend with except a single by Wright in the ninth and a double play fixed that.

Stine Is Wild, as Usual.

The first indication of Stine being without control, as usual, appeared in the second inning. He walked a couple at this stage, but good catches by Radcliff and Simmons helped to pull him out of difficulties. He had similar luck in the third, although only one scored despite three hits and a pass. The Waner boys started this with a single and pass, respectively. Herman helped the Sox by poking into a double play, but Suhr singled to center to score L. Waner. Traynor also singled and the inning ended with Lavagetto's liner to Radcliff.

The fourth inning upset that saw three Pirates scoot across the plate was precipitated by Hopkins' errors. For a starter he threw wild on Young's infield hit, putting the runner on second. Young counted when Hopkins made a two base wild heave on Padden's grounder. Padden went to third on a single by Lucas and scored on L. Waner's force of Lucas. Lloyd took third on Brother Paul's single and scored on Herman's fly to Radcliff in left.

Mr. Browne Starts Trouble.

A single by Browne and his immediate steal of second pushed open the gate for the two Pirate runs in the seventh. The hit was followed by a pass to Brubaker. They advanced on Lavagetto's sacrifice. Young bounced a fluke single over Kennedy to score Browne and nudge Brubaker to third. The latter dashed home after Washington had pulled in a long fly off Grace's bat.

Browne, understudy for Suhr at first base, exploded a homer in the eighth and it came at a very inopportune moment, so far as Kennedy was concerned. It sailed over the right center field fence after Baby Waner had gotten a double on Radcliff's bad fielding and Herman had walked. These three runs completed the day's harvest.

The Sox-Pirate show will be put on tomorrow at Yuma, Ariz. Les Tietje and Whitlow Wyatt will look after the Chicago pitching. Jim Weaver and Wayne Osborne will perform for the National leaguers.

SECOND GAMES IN A. A. F. TOURNEY CARDED TONIGHT

The second round of the A. A. F. basketball tournament will be played in two west side gyms tonight.

At the B. B. R., 1530 South Hamlin avenue, three games will be played with the Hannin-Kleins—Craig Boosters heavyweight game as the feature. The other two are 125 pound class contests.

Tonight's B. B. R. schedule:

7:30 p. m.—Hannin-Kleins vs. Craig Boosters.
8:30 p. m.—111th St. Y. M. C. A. vs. Victor Shade.

At the Chicago Boys' club, 2801 South Ridgeway avenue, two contests in the 135 pound class will be held.

Tonight's C. B. C. schedule:
7 p. m.—Pirates A. C. vs. Carlson Undertakers.
8 p. m.—Indians vs. La Follette Park.

Tomorrow night at the B. B. R. the heavyweights will start in earnest with the Morton Cab, Commune 79, and B. B. R. heavies quintet heading a three game card.

Elgin Loyalty Girls Beat Lake Zurich, 28-21

The Elgin Loyalty league girls basketball team defeated Lake Zurich, 28 to 21, last night at Crystal Lake, thereby winning the north division championship of the Northwest Suburban league. The Elgin team will play the Arcadia Girls, south division winners, for the league title Saturday night at the Immanuel Lutheran church gymnasium in Des Plaines. Ann Peterson of Elgin led the scoring last night with five baskets and four free throws.

Moriarity Beats Green in 3 Cushion Tourney, 47-36

In the all star handicap three cushion billiard tournament last night at Kieckhefer's, Joe Moriarity, defeated Bud Green, playing 42, by a 47 to 36 score, in 67 innings. High runs were: Moriarity, 4; Green, 4. Tonight Augie Kieckhefer, playing 55, meets Harry Ticks, playing 45, at 8 o'clock.

Boston Store, Baby Ruths Are Hocky Finalists

The Boston Store and Baby Ruths will meet tonight in the final western division game of the National A. A. U. hocky tournament at the Stadium and St. Cloud will oppose the Vodrazka Hornets for third place.

These pairings were brought about as the Boston Store handed the Vodrazka Hornets a 12 to 1 defeat while the Ruths defeated St. Cloud, 2 to 0, in semi-final games yesterday afternoon at the Stadium.

Establish Tourney Record.

The Boston Store established a new tournament record, beating the eight goals scored by Eveleth in the finals last year. The Boston Store scored four goals in each period and was led by George Kovin, who made five of them. Al Carlson and Ike Woods made two each, with the remaining goals divided between Ach Teevin, Bill Nord, and Everet Heliste. The goal for the losers was scored by Tony White in th second period.

The winners, finding themselves without a goalie due to the loss of Frank Deleo, placed Manny Cotlow in the nets. He played well.

St. Cloud, which had played on three consecutive days, found a fresh Baby Ruth team too much to handle and the Ruths obtained revenge for a 3 to 2 defeat by the visitors in the tournament last year. Art Samec scored midway in the first period and Albert Soumi counted early in the second.

St. Cloud found the Ruths two men short within a few seconds late in the third period, but fine goal tending by Jock Riddell held the Minnesota club at bay.

Baby Ruths Favorites.

The Baby Ruths are odds on favorites to win the title and meet the Olympic club of Boston, eastern sectional winners, in a two game series, total goals to count, in the the first game at Madison Square Garden, March 31, and the return game at the Stadium April 3. Summaries:

up try, and the latter resented it forcibly, only to be challenged by Shields. All three cooled off quickly, however, and no penalty was assessed.

Rodden Goes Down.

Later Shields drove Thompson into the ice in front of the Maroon net and was sent off. The Hawks then proceeded to work on Connell as they had at no time before, the attack resulting in a mishap to Referee Rodden. Coulter started to take the puck goalward, but was checked soundly into the boards by Robinson. The two smashed into Rodden, knocking him to the ice. The veteran was obviously stunned, requiring the aid of the Hawk trainer, and came up with an ailing right knee.

The third period wasn't two stirring minutes old before Blinco was hurried off for checking Romnes and Smith made such a verbal to-do about the sentence that Referee Goodman personally escorted him to the penalty box on a misconduct charge, thus depriving the Maroons of the best hook checking skater in the league.

Even though Blinco and Smith were in the box simultaneously for a minute, the Hawks could not prevail upon Connell, Shields, and Conacher to break down. After Blinco was freed, the Chicagoans maintained the assault, but found it difficult with the Maroons breaking through, particularly Wentworth, who twice made Chabot jump.

After the ten minute mark, both teams, naturally a trifle wearied by the steady pace, slowed down noticeably stressing more cautious play, even to golfing the puck. With two minutes to go, however, Romnes, Thompson, and Couture each fired a pair of blistering shots at Connell only to have either he or the Maroon defense men intervene.

Shortly after Couture was given the major penalty, Trottier was led downstairs, and the winning goal banged in behind Chabot.

SIMSES LEAD AT BRIDGE BY 530

Culbertson Team Gains in Evening's Play.

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Ely Culbertson regained lost ground tonight, trailing P. Hal Sims by only 530 points when a recess was taken in their 150 rubber contract bridge match at the end of the 12th rubber.

Culbertson, beset by club member troubles and the free use by Sims and Mrs. Sims of endearing names, scored 1,010 points on the 10th rubber, 2,040 on the 11th, and 1,150 on the 12th for a total of 4,200.

Sims had been leading by 4,730 points at the end of the ninth rubber.

Culbertson suggested "Tootsie" to the Simses as the tops in affectionate address.

He found time to announce there was "nothing derogatory to Oswald Jacoby in Jacoby's being voted out of the Crockford club "by virtue of section 8 of the by-laws."

Logan Squares Will Open Practice This Week-End

John J. Callahan, manager of the Logan Square baseball team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, announced today that the Squares would hold practice drills next Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

GAR WOOD HITS PORPOISE IN TEST OF SPEED BOAT

Propeller Is Broken in Collision with Fish.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 26.—(AP)—Gar Wood roared down Biscayne bay for a mile today in Miss America X, and came back with the forecast he would smash his own world water speed record of 124 miles an hour.

"We'll go faster here," he said as he stepped ashore from a patrol boat after the trial spin in Miss America X. had been suddenly cut short when its port propeller shaft snapped in an encounter with a school of porpoise.

Wood said he had no difficulty controling the boat after striking the porpoise. He estimated his speed before racing into them as "115, maybe 120, possibly 125 miles an hour."

Wood Is Satisfied.

He expressed himself as highly gratified with Miss America's performance in her first run in salt water, the buoyancy of which Wood hopes will add miles to his trim craft's speed.

Wood said he believed the 38 foot speed boat would be ready for another test tomorrow, but his veteran racing mate, Orlin Johnson, vetoed this after the four-engined hydroplane had been pulled from the water.

"It may take one day, and it might take several," Johnson said. "It depends entirely upon whether we will be able to replace the shaft and wheel without sliding back the port engine."

Ready Next Week.

Accepting the mishap with the porpoises as high adventure, Wood said "it was fun and we probably did them more damage than they did us. When I looked back I could see three or four of them jumping out of the water."

Miss America did not strike the school at the full force of the trial run, as Wood had cut the throttle materially as the boat went into a slight curve in Biscayne bay.

Wood thought he would be ready to send Miss America through her best paces for Otis Porter, the official timer, next week.

Three Horses Withdrawn from Lincolnshire Race

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LINCOLN, England, March 26.—The field in the Lincolnshire handicap was reduced to thirty-four today with the withdrawal of three horses from the race, which will be run tomorrow. The horses scratched are Hopetown, Sublime Prince, and Fair Abbess.

Perhaps this question isn't as silly as it sounds—

WHY should a ten cent cigar cost twice as much as a five cent cigar?

Primarily it is because you cannot buy the quality tobaccos used in El Producto and sell the cigar for less. It takes the finest Havana, the choicest Shade, the pick of all crop districts to blend that mild and distinctive character that gives such real enjoyment.

Quality tobaccos cost more. But Quality does not stop with the purchase of the choicest tobaccos. Care in workmanship to produce a cigar that stays lit, no matter how slowly you smoke; absolute uniformity; sizes to suit your fancy—all are Quality factors in real enjoyment that are costly to produce.

But the result is worth it—El Producto will prove it, especially when you pick the size that suits your fancy, whether it be the slender, streamlined shape or the full-bodied smoke of a perfecto.

FLYER COLLINS' OWN DREAM OF DEATH IS TOLD

Writes "Last Testament" Before Crash.

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—This is the testament of Jimmy Collins, noted test pilot, written "playfully" for his old friend, Archer Winsten, New York newspaper man, for use if and when the testator "got bumped off."

It is, as he himself phrased it, "the word of my life, and my death. The dream word that breathed into my nostrils the breath of life, and destroyed me too."

The body of Jimmy Collins was found on Friday in Pinelawn cemetery, near Farmingdale, L. I., beneath the wreckage of the Grumman ship he had tested for the navy. That body was broken, mangled, twisted, in a 10,000 foot crash.

Goes to Test Plane.

Last October Collins went to Buffalo to test a new Curtiss bomber-fighter for the navy. Before he left he took dinner with his friend, Winsten, who conducts a column for the New York Post. Winsten wrote a column about Collins and his spectacular job, begged the flyer to do a guest column for him on his return, telling of the Buffalo feat.

Collins now is quoted as saying:

"I got to thinking it over and thought maybe I wouldn't come back from Buffalo because it was a dangerous job, and then poor Archer would be out of a column . . . so I playfully wrote one for him in case I did get bumped off. Thoughtful of me, don't you think? . . . I never got bumped off. Too bad, too, because it would have been a scoop for Arch. . . ."

Last Friday's job was to have been Jimmy's last as a test pilot. He took it because he needed the money for his wife and children. Soon he was to have started on a writer's career.

Jimmy had begun a series of air adventure sketches in The Chicago Tribune and New York News.

His Testament.

Jimmy's testament, written last October and now made publis, is:

"The next words you read will be those of James H. Collins, and not 'as told to,' although you might say 'ghost written':

"I am dead.

"How can I say that?

"Do you remember an old, old story? I shall tell you just the beginning of it: 'In the beginning was the word, and the word was God. . . .' That's enough for you to see what I mean.

"It is by the word that I can say that.

"Not by the spoken word. I cannot say to you by the spoken word, 'I am dead.'

"But there is not only a spoken word. There is also the written word. It has different dimensions in space and time.

"It is by the written word that I can say to you, 'I am dead.'

"Dream Word" His Life.

"But there is not only the spoken and the written word. There is also the formless, unbreathed word of mood and dream and passion. This is the word that must have been the spirit of God that brooded over the face of the deep in the beginning. It is the word of life and death.

"It was the word of my life, and my death. The dream word that breathed into my nostrils the breath of life, and destroyed me, too.

"I had a dream. Always I had a dream. I cannot tell you what that dream was. I can only tell you that flying was one of its symbols. Even when I was very young that was true. Even as long as I can remember.

"When I became older it became even more true.

"So deep a dream, so great a passion, could not be denied.

"Finally I did fly.

The Glory of Youth.

"'Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth, when the evil days come not . . .' part of the same old story.

"I remembered the dream of the days of the youth of my flying, that burst of glory, and how the world and my youth itself shone with the radiance of it.

"It was my creator. It created life for me, for 'man shall not live by bread alone.' Man cannot. Only his dreams and his vision sustain him.

"But the evil days drew nigh. The glow died down and the colors of the earth showed up. Ambition, money. Love and cares and worry. Curious how strong the strength of weakness is, in women and their children, when you can see your own deep dreams, unworded, shining in their eyes. I grew older, too, and troublous times beset the world.

"Finally there came a time when I would rather eat than fly, and money was a precious thing.

Then Down—to Death.

"Yes, money was a precious thing, and they offered me money, and there was still a small glow of the deep, strong dream.

"The ship was beautiful. Its silver wings glistened in the sun. Its motor was a strong song that lifted it to the heights. And then . . . down. Down out of the blue heights we hurtled—straight down—faster—faster and faster—testing our strength by diving.

"Fear? Yes, I had grown older. The fear of daring and courage, but tempered too with some of the strong power of the old dream now, too.

"Down. A roar of flashing steel and a streak of glinting. . . . O yes, O yes, now. . . . Breaking wings; too frail. . . . The wings. . . . The dream. . . . The evil days.

"The cold but vibrant fuselage was the last thing to feel my warm and living flesh. The long, loud, diving roar of the motor, rising to the awful crashing crescendo of its impact with the earth, was my death song.

"I am dead now."

Death of Janitor Puts Gary Into Mourning

A period of mourning was proclaimed unexpectedly yesterday in Gary on the authority of Tony Mazure, 20 years old, day custodian of the county building. Tony's friend, John Glowiszyn, 55 years old, night janitor at the building, died Monday night and Tony set the county building flag half staf yesterday. Later the custodian of the adjoining city hall followed Tony's example and put its flag at half staf.

CHICAGO WOMAN DOCTOR, ISABEL MACMILLAN, DIES

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—Dr. Isabel Taylor MacMillan, for many years associated with the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, died today of a heart ailment. She formerly lived in Chicago.

Born at Williamstown, N. Y., on May 20, 1862, Dr. MacMillan was the daughter of Hiram and Delia Taft Taylor and a descendant of families prominent in the American revolution. In 1878 her family moved to Oswego, N. Y., where Dr. MacMillan lived for a number of years.

In 1889 she was graduated from the women's medical college of Northwestern university and then served her interneship at Rush hospital in Chicago, later practicing in that city. While in Chicago Dr. MacMillan was active in many social and civic organizations and with the women's suffrage movement. In 1894 she was married to the late Newton MacMillan, an editor of the Chicago Evening Post. Later she came to New York when Mr. MacMillan joined the old New York Herald.

Dr. MacMillan is survived by two sisters, the Misses Jane Bliss Taylor and Grace Taylor.

MRS. JENNIE JUST DIES; PROMINENT IN W. C. T. U. WORK

Mrs. Jennie Just, 82 years old, 411 Hickory street, Waukegan, prominent worker in the W. C. T. U., died in the Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan after a brief illness.

Mrs. Just, who had lived in Lake county since 1868, was the widow of Christian J. Just, who died in 1923. Surviving are a son, Frank H. Just of Libertyville, editor and publisher of the Waukegan News-Sun, and a daughter, Mrs. James Woodman of Waukegan.

Before and during prohibition Mrs. Just was closely identified with state and local work for the W. C. T. U. She was a former state corresponding secretary and past president of the Waukegan and Lake county unions. The Waukegan union recently set aside $500 in honor of Mrs. Just to be used in promoting education against the evils of alcohol.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Congregational church at Waukegan.

MRS. MARGARET M'LACHLAN DIES AT BILOXI, MISS.

Mrs. Margaret McLachlan, 5555 Sheridan road, mother of William M. Dewey, managing director of the Edgewater Beach hotel, died last night in the Edgewater Gulf hotel at Biloxi, Miss. She had been ill of heart disease for more than a week.

Mrs. McLachlan was 80 years old. She was the sister of the late John J. Corbett, builder of the Edgewater Beach hotel and many other Chicago structures. Her second husband, J. W. McLachlan of Rockford, died several years ago.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Twice in the last month Dorothy Page, radio beauty, has flown to Hollywood to make screen tests. Within the next fortnight she will fly west once more—and this time she will buy no return ticket. Between shows yesterday at the Oriental theater, where she is appearing, a telegram from Universal was delivered offering her the lead in a musical picture at a salary that made her gasp.

Less than three years ago Dorothy Page won an amateur contest in Detroit conducted by Paul Whiteman. She got her first big radio break singing with Seymour Simons' orchestra at the Blackhawk and over W-G-N. Last year she left Simons' orchestra to be featured in Jan Garber's Supper club at NBC. Lately she has also been starred on the "Headin' South" program and appearing with the Gold Coasters orchestra at the Drake hotel. She also won a national contest as radio's most beautiful girl. And now she will try to make good in Hollywood.

After three years with NBC the College inn, it is reported, will switch over to CBS within a few weeks. Art Jarrett is currently providing the music there, but George Olsen will return there next fall. . . . Max Baer and his brother Buddy will be Al Jolson's guests on his first Château show on April 6.

Mayor Kelly will make his final radio appeal for reelection from 10:15 to 10:45 tomorrow evening. The mayor's speech will be broadcast through W-G-N, WENR, WMAQ, WIND, and WCFL.

Bernie Cummins, orchestra leader, is seriously ill with a throat abscess in New York City. . . . Noah Beery will be the headliner on Rudy Vallee's Varieties tomorrow evening. . . . Bob Becker's dog chats have been renewed. On Sunday, April 7, his NBC shows move to 4:45 p. m., but his W-G-N period remains 6:30 p. m.

Ted Weems, who is rounding out a solid year at the Palmer house and on W-G-N, and Al Fuller, the hotel's advertising director, have signed to do a series of short stories for a national magazine. The contract grew out of the "Uncle Ned" series of letters, purporting to be from Ted to his uncle, published recently.

Ray Perkins, now pilot of the National Amateur hour on CBS, who was on the air with Weems for the Palmer house last season, read the letters and saw short story possibilities in them. He took them to Fulton Oursler, editor of Liberty, his brother-in-law, who liked them.

The stories, based on incidents in Weems' long career as an orchestra leader, will bear his by-line, though Fuller will do the actual writing. Fuller, a former newspaperman, is also a playwright. His play, "Remote Control," was produced on Broadway a few seasons back.

ELLA G. SHIELDS DEAD; PIONEER WOMAN LAWYER

Mrs. Ella Glenn Shields, 81 years old, a daughter of Archibald A. Glenn, who was acting lieutenant governor of Illinois from 1875 to 1877, died yesterday at her home, 4502 North Paulina street, after a long illness.

Mrs. Shields was admitted to the bar in Kansas nearly fifty years ago and later was elected to the legislature of that state. Thirty years ago she moved from her home in Wichita to Chicago. She was at one time a librarian at the Newberry library.

Surviving Mrs. Shields, who was the widow of William P. Shields, is one son, William G. Shields. Funeral services will be held at 1732 Wilson avenue at 8 p. m. today. Burial will be in Wichita.

Christopher Morgan Dies; Veteran of World War

Christopher Lyston Morgan, 46 years old, 269 Laurel avenue, Highland Park, for several years secretary of the Exmoor Country club, died at his home early yesterday after a long illness. Until he was taken ill last May, Mr. Morgan was a departmental manager in a brokerage house. He served as a captain in the world war. Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today in Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park. The body will be sent to his birthplace, Mystic, Conn., for burial.

"Moist-Throat" Method
STOPPED COUGH in 1 DAY!

"My cough was so bad," writes Marjorie Sheerin, Brooklyn. "I called a doctor. He said to take Pertussin. Next morning my cough was gone!"

WHEN you catch cold, thousands of tiny moisture glands in your throat clog; their normal secretions thicken. Throat dries. Sticky mucus collects. Tickling starts—then you cough. PERTUSSIN quickens the throat's natural moisture flow. Infected phlegm is loosened and raised. Relief—so quickly! Get a bottle.

PUT 200 MILLION OF NEW BONDS OUT THIS WEEK

Total to Be Largest in Four Years.

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Offerings of new bonds this week will establish a four year high with additional securities being prepared for the market.

The total will be in the neighborhood of $150,000,000 with prospective offerings boosting the aggregate over the $200,000,000 mark. The last week over that point ended April 10, 1931, when $294,373,000 in new bonds came onto the market. Various municipal issues, which have been coming onto the market regularly in small amounts for some weeks, are expected to be offered as usual this week to swell the total.

Although only a small portion of the total represented funds not used for the retirement of outstanding securities, the aggregate used in the refunding operations is regarded as gratifying.

Principal New Offerings.

New offerings this week include Pacific Gas and Electric, $45,000,000; Swift and company, $43,000,000; Port of New York Authority, $34,300,000; Chicago Union Station, $16,000,000, and Lehigh and New England, $6,500,000.

The offering was announced tonight by Salomon Brothers & Hutzler of the Swift & Co. $43,000,000 issue to be used in refinancing operations.

The obligations are first mortgage sinking fund 3¾ per cent bonds dated May 15, 1935, and due May 15, 1950. Net proceeds of the issue are to be used in redeeming $20,246,600 in first mortgage sinking fund 5 per cent gold bonds, due July 1, 1944, and $23,703,500 in ten-year 5 per cent gold notes, due Sept. 1, 1940. Additional funds needed for the redemption will be provided from the general fund of the issuer, it was announced.

The total long term debt of Swift & Co. was given in the prospectus at $45,810,810, which includes the two issues to be refunded.

$68,000,000 Utility Issue.

Preparations are being made to float an issue of refunding bonds, probably of about $68,000,000, for Southern California Edison company. A registration statement is expected to be filed shortly with the Securities and Exchange commission. The company announced today a syndicate will be formed for the purchase and distribution of its refunding mortgage bonds on a basis that would show a substantial reduction in interest charges. Southern California Edison's funded debt totals $137,908,000, of which $13,360,000 matures in 1939 and $55,000,000 in 1951.

In addition, bond market sources report preparations by various organizations being made to issue upward of $300,000,000 in refunding bonds to reduce interest payments, and it is stated the reception accorded the current offerings will determine the speed with which the pending issues are brought onto the market.

Offer New Railroad Issue.

Public offering of a new issue of $945,000 Litchfield and Madison Railway company first mortgage 5 per cent sinking fund bonds, due 1959, was made today at 99¾, to yield over 5 per cent. These bonds were issued to repay a loan of $800,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation made last November to provide funds for paying off a previous issue of $945,000 at maturity.

A syndicate will offer shortly $1,585,000 Greenbrier, Cheat and Elk Railroad company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, 1944, at 96, to yield 5.55 per cent. The road is leased to the Western Maryland Railway company and is operated as part of that system.

The Norfolk and Western railway directors have voted to call the road's $35,000,000 divisional first lien and general mortgage 4s, due July 1, 1944, for redemption July 1, 1935. The bonds are redeemable at 105 and accrued interest.

Redemption will be made in part from treasury funds and in part from bank loans, without the issuance of new securities. Since the coupon on the retired issue is so low it is anticipated that the bank loans will be repaid through sale of investments held by the Norfolk and Western, reducing the annual fixed charges.

Funds from redemption of these bonds will be available for re-investment, it was pointed out in bond market quarters.

Wrigley Declares Six Monthly Dividends of 25c

Directors of the William Wrigley Jr. company yesterday declared six regular monthly dividends of 25 cents each, payable May 1, June 1, July 1, Aug. 1, Sept. 2, and Oct. 1, to stockholders of record on the 20th of each preceding month. At the annual meeting all directors and officers were reëlected.

Chrysler Reports 15,696 Units Delivered in Week

Retail deliveries of Chrysler-made passenger cars and trucks totaled 15,696 units for the week ended March 23, which was 6.5 per cent above the previous week and 27.3 per cent above the corresponding week of 1934.

Fear Turmoil in All Money on End of Gold

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The gyrations of principal currencies in foreign exchange transactions yesterday suggested the confusion that will exist when and if the remaining gold standard nations abandon gold and throw international money ratios into complete turmoil.

American dollars, British pounds, and French francs were practically unchanged for the day in terms of each other, indicating no flight of capital from Paris to London or New York, from London to Paris or New York, or from New York to Paris or London.

The Belgian belga, however, registered a sharp loss of nearly 1 cent on the day's transactions and at one time had crashed to about 3 cents below Monday's close in terms of American dollars. The belga also showed corresponding losses against the pound and the franc. This was interpreted as signifying a severe flight from the belga—a movement of capital from Brussels.

Whether this fleeing capital was moving to Paris, London, New York, or all three, however, was not ascertainable from the figures because of the steadiness of the franc, the pound, and the dollar in terms of each other.

Simultaneously there was a big boom in bar silver in markets throughout the world. This was believed to be the result of buying by owners of capital seeking to hedge against currency depreciation, but whether the hedgers were American, French, British, or Belgian was not readily apparent.

To date it has been possible to measure the value of a nongold currency by comparing it with a gold currency, but if the remaining gold bloc nations leave the gold standard international currency ratios will be as difficult for the ordinary citizen to correlate as the moving pistons of a sixteen cylinder gasoline motor.

It is difficult to understand how business men can be encouraged to make foreign transactions in a world currency system operating in so many dimensions that only an Einstein could grasp it.

New Securities Law Confuses Bond Market.

Confusion, however, is not limited to foreign exchange. There's plenty of it in the bond business these days, thanks to the new securities legislation, which was supposed to have opened the dark corners of the investment business to the broad sunlight of frankness and open communication of information.

The "truth in securities" act tells issuers and distributors of bonds that they must tell all or nothing about any security offering. Dissemination of any shred of misinformation or omission of a pertinent fact exposes them to personal liability in case any investor subsequently sustains a loss. The result has been a decision to say nothing at all.

The head of one important bond house says that even in offering new securities to banks and insurance companies his firm has made it a rule simply to announce that they have bonds of a certain kind issued by a certain company to sell, supplying no information.

Thus it is left to the prospective purchaser to get his information from the issuing company's statement to the securities and exchange commission, supplemented by whatever else he can find out on his own.

Even intraoffice memoranda from one partner to another are barred because of the fear that at some future date some governmental snooping agency may confiscate the office files and read into the personal notes from Partner Bill to Partner Henry some dire meaning not intended by the writer. An office wisecrack might mean an indictment.

"Sh-h-h-h," whispered an official of one firm yesterday when asked about a bond offering to be made by one of America's leading corporations. "We've made it a rule not even to mention that company's name in this office."

"Well, you're selling these bonds, aren't you?" the inquirer asked.

"Yes, but we're not talking about them."

COTTON MILLS ALLOWED TO CUT ACTIVITY 25 PCT.

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—Faced with a serious crisis in the cotton textile industry that was regarded as threatening national recovery, the national industrial recovery board today authorized certain branches of the industry to reduce hours of machine operation by no more than 25 per cent and to reduce by no more than 25 per cent machines operating in these groups or divisions.

The groups affected, now on a forty hour week for employés, will go on a curtailed week, but not below thirty hours, while the use of productive machinery, now on an eighty hour basis of two shifts, will go down to no lower than sixty hours. The emergency period is for twelve weeks.

Foreign Trade Narrows Gain Over Year Ago

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.] — Foreign trade in February again showed an increase over 1934, but a sharp drop in both exports and imports from the January totals narrowed the gap. February exports amounted to $163,006,000, compared with $162,729,000 in February, 1934, the commerce department announced today, but compared unfavorably with a total of $176,223,000 in January.

Imports in February totalled $152,537,000, compared with $132,753,000 in February, 1934, but fell off from the January figures of $166,993,000. The decrease from January in each case was greater than seasonal. The excess of exports over imports in February was $10,469,000, compared with $29,976,000 in February, 1934, and $9,230,000 in January, 1935.

Farm Products Decline Most.

"A continuation in the divergent trends of agricultural and nonagricultural exports in reflected in the February statistics," the department said. "Exports of meats and fats grains, feedstuffs, raw cotton, and tobacco, showed relatively large declines in quantity, as compared with the preceding month, while exports of manufactured articles as a whole were only slightly smaller.

"Although seasonal influences were in part responsible for the smaller volume of agricultural exports, comparisons of the January and February statistics with the corresponding months of 1934 indicate that other influences were at work."

Exports of finished manufactures declined in February from January, but in comparison with the corresponding month of 1934, all of the leading manufactured articles, except cotton manufactures, gasoline, and lubricating oil, advanced.

Gold Imports Heavy.

Gold imports in February were $122,817,000, compared with exports of $46,000. In 1934 February imports were $452,622,000, compared with exports of $51,000. For the first two months of this year gold imports were $272,573,000, compared with exports of $409,000. In the first two months of 1934 imports were $454,570,000, compared with exports of $4,765,000.

Silver imports in February, 1935, were $16,351,000, compared with exports of $1,661,000. In February, 1934, silver imports were $2,128,000, compared with exports of $734,000. Imports of silver for the first two months of 1935 were $35,437,000, compared with exports of $2,909,000. Imports in the first two months of 1934 were $5,721,000, compared with exports of $1,592,000.

URGES RAILS ASK ROOSEVELT TO KEEP PROMISES

Luther M. Walter, Chicago transportation authority, in a talk before the Trafic club at the Palmer house yesterday urged railroad men and trafic interests to call on President Roosevelt to keep his pre-inauguration transportation pledges. Walter proposed a coördinated transportation control and said this only can be secured through action by the President in urging congress to pass the necessary legislation. He said waterway and highway users should be placed on a cost basis comparable to that of the railroads. He declared patrons of the two first named services be charged for use of highways and waterways.

Walter urged the position of federal railroad coördinator, now held by Joseph B. Eastman, be allowed to lapse when the act providing for it expires on June 15. The speaker was vehement in demanding the railroads be kept out of the hands of politicians, the result of government ownership.

STEEL INDUSTRY TELLS FAULTS OF WAGNER LABOR DISPUTES BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 26.—The giant steel industry today threw its weight against the Wagner labor disputes bill, which would put government sanction on outside labor organizations as against company unions.

Three big steel companies, United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, and Republic Steel, filed statements with the senate labor committee opposing the bill on the grounds that it would give "unreasonable" powers to the government and disrupt existing harmonious relationships.

Charles S. Traer, vice president of the Acme Steel company, Chicago, was among the steel executives protesting against the Wagner measure. He lodged two objections against the bill. He said that it assumed the interests of labor and management to be "antagonistic rather than mutual," and that it was aimed at "destroying or greatly crippling employé representation plans" as now set up by workers in many plants.

Attacking the bill as "class legislation," designed to help labor organizations, the United States Steel company filed a brief statement which read: "The rights of an employé to bargain with his employer and to be free to join with other employés in concerted action to improve his conditions are fully recognized by us and our subsidiaries, but legislation directed to strengthening labor organizations as such is class legislation which has the interest of the employés only remotely, if at all, as an aim."

Martin Murphy, employé representative of Republic Steel, said: "As chairman of the general body of employé representatives representing 6,000 workers in Youngstown, I am opposed to any legislation which would interfere with our present satisfactory method of collective bargaining."

Workers from other plants echoed Murphy's protest.

TRIAL OF THREE DETROIT BANK OFFICIALS STARTS

Detroit, March 26.—(AP)—Trial of three of the thirty-four bankers indicted as a result of Michigan's banking troubles of 1933 began in rapid-fire order in federal court today, with the first witness on the stand less than six hours after selection of a jury was started.

The government will seek to show that Herbert L. Chittenden, John Ballantyne, and John H. Hart—all former officers of the First National Bank-Detroit—made false reports of the bank's condition to the controller of currency. The three defendants were described variously as men who used the bank's funds in a concealed stock speculation and as conscientious bankers who "had given their life's blood" in an effort to save their bank from loss as government and defense made their opening statements.

A defense contention that the First Wayne National bank, created Dec. 31, 1931, by a merger of the Peoples Wayne County bank and the First National Bank-Detroit, had not received a certificate of membership in the federal reserve system at the time the government charges one of the two offenses cited in the indictment occurred was overruled by Judge Ernest A. O'Brien.

Judge O'Brien made his ruling after John H. Martin, assistant federal reserve agent, the first government witness, testified the bank had exercised its rights as a member immediately after the merger.

Utilities Rates Ickes Test for Yardstick Loan

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—Reserving to himself the right to make a final decision on whether New York City shall construct its own municipal power plant with PWA funds or accept rate reductions offered by the Consolidated Gas company, Secretary Ickes made clear today that PWA would not lend money for municipal power plants unless it was demonstrated that municipal rates would be lower than those offered by private companies.

Mayor La Guardia arranged with President Roosevelt several months ago for a $15,000,000 PWA loan with which to construct a municipal plant in New York. Ickes, however, expressed complete ignorance as to the nature of La Guardia's conference with President Roosevelt about the New York power situation here last week. The secretary said he could not explain why New York City had not handed in an application for a loan.

Possible to Get Money.

He added that, although no further PWA funds were at present available for any purpose, it was "possible" money could be made available for a New York power plant through revocation of allotments made for projects in other parts of the country.

In discussing Mayor La Guardia's claim that he had come here last week to talk with the President about a clause in a bill drafted by PWA, which made necessary a public referendum for a bond issue on the power plant, Ickes remarked:

"PWA didn't ask any referendum for a bond issue. The bill we drafted had no such provision."

"They have the funds available," was all the secretary would say in reply to a question as to whether the treasury would proceed to build a federal power plant in New York City.

Treasury officials said yesterday that they would consider further an offer of the Consolidated Gas company to reduce rates about 35 per cent before proceedings with construction of a federal plant.

1,814 Projects Submitted.

PWA state engineers have submitted to Ickes 1,814 publicly financed plant projects costing $591,558,059 that could be built from the $900,000,000 made available for public works by the state works resolution.

The PWA legal staf has in addition offered to state legislatures three model measures allowing municipalities to create power districts for distribution of power at reduced cost, public corporations to build and operate state utility plants, and coöperatives to be organized for the purpose of carrying out rural electrification projects.

PWA has already allocated more than $200,000,000 for publicly owned power systems ranging from projects the size of Boulder dam to small projects in minor towns.

The federal power commission reported today in connection with a proposed allotment of $100,000,000 in relief funds for rural electrification that more than 5,000,000 farm homes are without electric facilities.

C. B. NOLTE MADE PRESIDENT OF CRANE COMPANY

J. W. Berryman Is Elected Chairman.

C. B. Nolte, for the last six years president of R. W. Hunt & Co., yesterday was elected president of the Crane company to succeed John W. Berryman, who was named chairman.

At the annual meeting of stockholders, which preceded election of the new officers, Berryman said he had reached "a very old age" and was turning over, at the suggestion of directors, his position to an "extremely young man. I don't think he is 50 years old yet," Berryman added.

Something of a family fight developed at the election of the new board, which was reduced from thirteen to nine. In the regular slate offered the name of A. F. Gartz Jr., a grandson of R. T. Crane, was dropped, while H. P. Bishop, secretary of the company, was named. Valentine Crane, a son of Herbert Crane, nominated Gartz, who was elected in place of Bishop.

List New Board.

The new board consists of Berryman, Cornelius Crane, son of R. T. Crane Jr.; P. T. Kelly, vice president; Dr. F. R. Lillie, a brother-in-law of the late R. T. Crane Jr.; Mark W. Lowell, a second vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; C. B. Nolte; E. A. Russell, son-in-law of R. T. Crane Sr., C. A. G. Wayman, vice president, and Gartz.

Those who were dropped are E. M. Ashcraft Jr., attorney; C. R. Crane II., a son of Herbert Crane; W. Evensen, treasurer; D. G. Park, vice president, and H. W. Seymour, vice president.

Membership of the executive committee was reduced from nine to five, the new committee consisting of Berryman, Kelly, Lowell, Nolte and Russell.

Directors canceled 3,721 shares of preferred stock and 30,919 shares of common stock held in the concern's treasury. Following the election the company issued a statement which said Nolte has been in close touch with the company for several years.

Formerly With Engineering Firm.

Nolte has been connected with R. W. Hunt & Co., internationally known engineering firm, for twenty-six years. He was made president in 1929 and prior to that was vice president and general manager. He is 49 years old.

Nolte will be succeeded as president of the Hunt company by James C. Ogden, a vice president, and connected with the concern for more than thirty-five years.

About thirty persons attended the annual meeting, which passed off quietly save for the contest over Gartz's election. Berryman, who has been connected with the company since 1892, told stockholders the outlook for 1935 was encouraging.

"We feel this company and the country as a whole is going uphill," he said. "You can't keep 120,000,000 people down all the time. We feel that we would go up just as well without the AAA's and other alphabetical divisions of the New Deal."

In telling of the coming election of Nolte Berryman said there is one thing you can't overcome—that is old age. "I was young myself once," he said with a smile. He added that the position of chairman of the board is a new one and he didn't know what its duties will demand of him.

WESTERN ROADS TO LAUNCH HUGE AD CAMPAIGN

Harry Guy Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, announced yesterday the western roads had appropriated $450,000 to be spent in advertising modernized passenger service. Increased speeds, air conditioning, cleanliness and safety will be dramatized in the campaign, Taylor said.

"We plan to carry our message to the traveling public through the best medium we know," he said, "the advertising columns of newspaper in key cities of the west. The first copy will appear about April 15."

Taylor is to direct the campaign, in association with H. W. Siddall, chairman of the Transcontinental Passenger association, and E. H. McReynolds, assistant to the president of the Missouri Pacific system.

Bendix Shows Sharp Upturn in 1934 Profit

Bendix Aviation corporation yesterday reported a sharp rise in sales and earnings for 1934, with business this year continuing on an upward curve.

VINCENT BENDIX.

Consolidated net income was $1,903,120, equal to 90 cents a share, compared with $1,242,891, or 59 cents a share, during 1933. In addition, the company netted approximately $316,000 as its share of income from nonconsolidated foreign and domestic subsidiaries. In 1933 this figure was $384,548.

Gross profit from sales and royalties amounted to $7,565,283, while selling and other expenses aggregated $5,404,147 to produce a net profit of $2,161,136 from operations. The respective figures for 1933 were $6,113,069, $4,737,927, and $1,375,142, or an increase in operating profit of $785,994, or 57.2 per cent.

Income Tax Up $107,000.

Other income of $206,961 and deductions of $127,521 for interest and taxes were shown in addition to provision of $336,756 for federal income tax. In 1933 these three amounts were $323,221, $226,444, and $229,028.

"Our volume of business in the first two months of 1935 shows a considerable increase over the same period in 1934," said Vincent Bendix, president of the corporation. "During February we manufactured more automobile brakes and carburetors than in any previous month in our history.

"Your corporation is in a strong position to take advantage of improving business conditions. During February we employed a greater average number of workers than during any monthly period in the history of the company.

Work to Expand Business.

"We are in a strong financial position, enjoying a large volume of business, and, while your management is pursuing a conservative policy, we are also endeavoring to be creative and constructive so as to promote the expansion of your business in the future." Considerable space in the report is devoted to a description of the automobile and aviation products of the company and their status.

Current assets at the year end of $13,596,628 included $7,232,312 in cash, federal securities, and other high grade paper—an increase of 44.8 per cent for the year. Current liabilities were $1,858,539, a ratio of 7.3 to 1. At the close of 1933 current assets were $10,540,876 and current liabilities $1,500,796.

RUBBER FUTURES RISE AS EXPORT QUOTAS ARE CUT

LONDON, March 26.—(AP)—The international rubber regulation committee, modifying its decision of Feb. 26 regarding quotas, now has fixed the basic quotas for April, May, and June at 70 per cent and the remainder of the year at 65 per cent of the exportable quota.

On Feb. 26 the committee fixed the percentage of basic quotas for April, May and June at 75 and for July, August, and September at 70 per cent of the exportable quota arranged when the rubber restriction scheme came into force in June, 1934. The announcement of the cut in exports caused a sharp jump of ⅞ pence to 6⅛ pence a pound in raw rubber.

Gain Sharp in New York.

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Rubber futures pushed up 1.3 cents a pound in the commodity exchange today, the sharpest gain for that staple in some time. The May delivery reached 11.80 cents a pound.

NEW CABINET FAILS TO HALT CRASH OF BELGA

Falls to All Time Low of 19.16c; Rallies.

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—Establishment of a new Belgian cabinet headed by Paul Van Zeeland, governor of the National bank, failed to halt another collapse in Belgium currency in the international money markets today.

The belga crashed to an all time low figure of 19.16 cents in foreign markets this morning before the opening in New York. It later rallied to 21 cents in foreign markets, off 1½ cents. After the opening of trading here it advanced to close at 21.48 cents, a loss of .85 cents for the day.

Franc and Pound Quiet.

The French franc and British pound were relatively quiet in terms of American funds during the belga's wild gyrations. The franc advanced an eighth of a cent then fell back to close unchanged at 6.59⅛ cents. Sterling opened unchanged then lost an eighth of a cent to close at $4.79⅜.

Meanwhile silver prices advanced sharply in the New York and London markets. Silver reached 61¼ cents an ounce, the highest quotation since Aug. 26, 1928, and 1¼ cents above yesterday's price.

Brokers attributed the advance to a combination of world developments, foremost among which is the United States silver purchase policy.

In London the price rose a full pence to 28⅞ pence, the best quotation since May 24, 1928.

Call Silver Parley April 5.

The advance in silver coincided with announcement that a national conference of silver representatives will convene in Washington April 5 and 6. Advocates of further use of silver for monetary purposes are sponsoring the meeting.

Formation of the Van Zeeland cabinet is expected to lead to formal depreciation of the belga. It is not known what form the new government's depreciation will take, but few observers expect a return to the former status. That there is a heavy flight of capital despite exchange restrictions is taken for granted, and it has given rise both to charges of negligence in letting the market get out of hand and ugly accusations that certain influential quarters had been permitted to get out from under before definite action was taken. In any case, it is agreed the new government has no time to lose if it doesn't want to see the present flight turn into panic.

Evidently moving to keep a firm hand on the pound sterling through the current crisis in the gold bloc, the Bank of England fixed its buying price for gold in the London bullion market today at 145 shillings 7 pence, equivalent to $34.81 on the basis of $4.78¼ for sterling. This compared with 145 shillings 7½ pence yesterday, which was equal to $34.75 on a dollar basis.

The federal reserve bank announced today gold imports of $2,095,400, all of which came from Canada. There were no exports and no net change in the stock of gold held under earmark for foreign account.

Ethyl Gasoline Co. Plans Newspaper 'Ad' Campaign

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Ethyl Gasoline corporation today announced it would make extensive use of newspapers in its 1935 advertising campaign. Wider use of newspaper space is characterized by the corporation as "a distinct departure from past campaigns."

LET THE POSTMAN BRING YOUR PAY CHECK

THINK how much fun it will be when you don't have to be at the store, the office or the factory at nine o'clock every morning. Sleep another hour if you care to. You can depend on the postman to bring you a check every month.

That's what thousands of Chicago people all around you have been doing for the past twenty years. Doctors, lawyers, school teachers, merchants, businessmen everywhere—people who find it difficult to accumulate money on their own initiative.

The Fidelity Plan protects you against these two great hazards—first, reaching advanced age without income, second, an untimely death before you have completed your financial objective.

During 1934 Fidelity paid its contract holders $3,577,276.86. Since its organization in 1911 it has paid in maturities and cash accommodations more than $33,500,000. In the past five years its resources have increased 23.5% and are now nearly $25,000,000.

New York, March 26.—[Special.]—United States government obligations moved uniformly higher in moderate trading today on the New York Stock exchange as interest increased in the conversion of the called fourth liberty 4½s into the new treasury 2⅞s. Domestic corporate and foreign loans followed an irregular tread.

The federal list enjoyed the largest turnover in several days. Several of the more active treasury issues got up as much as 6-32, but the advances elsewhere were around 2-32, and some ended unchanged. The new treasury 2⅞s of 1955 were especially active and reached 101.3 before encountering some profit taking and easing to 101.1, up 3-32 on the day.

Secondary Rails Lower.

Secondary railroad issues had another sinking spell, due to poor earnings reports for February, continued adverse weather conditions in the agricultural sections of the midwest, and unconfirmed receivership rumors.

Heaviest losers were obligations of the Baltimore and Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, St. Paul, Chicago and North Western, Erie, Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, Southern Railway, Katy, and Nickel Plate, most of which were 1 to 2 or more points lower. Such high priced bonds as Santa Fe 5s and Pennsylvania general 5s also were inclined to sag.

Utilities Are Irregular.

In the utility and industrial section a more even tone prevailed. Columbia Gas 5s and Chile Copper 5s were higher, but losses were shown by North American Edison 5½s and Youngstown Sheet and Tube 5s.

A brisk advance in some of the South and Central American bonds featured the foreign section. German government issues were a bit soggy, but private obligations of German corporations showed some improvement, as did Italian and Polish government bonds.

Transfers aggregated $11,728,000, par value, compared with $8,279,000 on Monday.

International Life and Trust.

Investors' Guide: I hold five shares of capital stock of International Life and Trust company. Are the certificates worth holding?—R. L. A.

Answer: According to information received from the Illinois department of insurance, the name of International Life and Trust company was changed to International Life and Annuity company. Its business was reinsured several times in the last ten years and is now being managed by Lincoln National Life Insurance company, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The International Life and Annuity had on deposit with the department of insurance $100,368 of securities (face value). Although during each successive reinsurance these securities were transferred to the reinsuring company on the books, they remained in the hands of the insurance department.

Last year a petition was filed in the federal court asking for an order determining that the securities belong to the receiver for Northern States Life Insurance company (which had reinsured the company before it itself went into receivership), and that they should be turned over to him.

Final briefs on the case were filed during the first week of March of this year.

"Whether there is any value to the stock of International Life and Annuity," according to the Illinois insurance department, "depends on whether or not the court will decide that the securities or any part thereof now on deposit with this department belong to International Life and Annuity company."

Cleveland Union Stock Yards.

Investors' Guide: I have been given 120 common shares in Cleveland Union Stock Yards in Cleveland. Will you please give me information regarding same?—W. L.

Answer: Cleveland Union Stock Yards company is a two million dollar corporation owning seventy-four acres of property in Cleveland used for stock yards purposes. Gross revenues have followed a downward trend since 1931 and net income for the last three years was well under that reported for the four years through 1931. The four year record of earnings follows:

Yr. ended Oct. 31	Gross revenues.	Net income.	Inc. per share.
1934	$251,000	$ 58,000	$0.75
1933	279,000	74,000	.96
1932	291,000	55,000	.71
1931	333,000	101,000	1.31

On Oct. 31, 1934, current assets, including cash of $163,000, totaled $194,000, and current liabilities were $28,000. Capitalization consisted of 77,096 shares of no par stock. The stock currently pays dividends of 25 cents a quarter. It is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

OPERATING NET OF 32 RAILROADS DECLINES 12.4%

Total for February Falls to $11,391,000.

Net operating income of the first thirty-two railroads to report for February showed a decline of 12.4 per cent from the corresponding month of last year. The total for these roads was $11,391,000, against $12,299,000 a year ago.

The Illinois Central system yesterday reported that net operating income for February totaled $903,109, against $1,141,737 a year ago, while gross revenues for the period amounted to $7,385,533, compared with $6,945,144. For the first two months of this year the system had net operating income of $1,487,949, compared with $2,034,807 in the corresponding period of last year, and gross revenues of $15,004,630, against $13,935,194.

Deficit Reduced.

The Milwaukee road reported a net operating deficit of $32,790 for February, against a deficit of $196,407 in the preceding month and a net operating income of $264,090 in the corresponding month of 1934. Gross operating revenues for the month amounted to $6,295,968, against $6,208,437 a year ago.

During the first two months of the year the road sustained a net operating loss of $229,197, compared with net operating income of $687,802 in the corresponding period of 1934, while gross revenues for the period totaled $13,014,038, against $13,019,790.

Burlington Loss Greater.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy showed a February deficit of $546,358 after charges, compared with a net profit of $160,773 in February last year. Gross income amounted to $5,603,438, against $5,797,894. For the first two months of the year the road had net loss of $1,014,374 after charges, compared with net income of $365,910 in the corresponding period of last year.

Other roads reporting net operating incomes for February with comparative figures of a year ago were: Great Northern $79,906, against $156,300; Northern Pacific net operating deficit of $88,961, against net operating income of $133,642; Chicago and Eastern Illinois $64,836, against a net operating deficit of $36,826; Southern railway $842,049, against $1,337,523; Denver and Rio Grande Western $78,018, against $80,525, and New York Central Lines $2,064,213, against $1,365,873.

Trafic Gain Predicted.

Freight trafic generally improved last week over the preceding week. The rise was attributed to heavier shipments of bituminous coal because of a threatened national mine strike. Following are loadings reported so far with comparative figures of the preceding week and the corresponding week of last year:

It is believed that the total for the week will approach that of the corresponding week of 1934 when 608,462 cars were loaded.

SHORTER TRAINS TOO COSTLY, RAIL CHIEF TESTIFIES

Operation of freight trains less than one half mile long in Illinois would increase operating expenses to the point where a financially embarrassing situation for some railroads might result, it was declared yesterday by Charles M. Thomson, trustee of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway, in a hearing before the Illinois Commerce commission.

Thomson, a former member of the Appellate court, estimated that the operating expenses of the railway he represented would be boosted by $125,000 annually if they had to shorten the length of their freight trains.

The commerce commission is pursuing an inquiry on the feasibility of reducing the size of the trains pursuant to a general assembly resolution. The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in the hearing urged the reduction on the ground that the long trains are responsible for many accidents to railroad employés.

Doubt Gen. Wood to Confer with Roosevelt in Florida

Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., is not expected to confer with President Roosevelt in Florida concerning a position in the administration of the 5 billion public works fund of the administration, it was said at his office here yesterday. Gen. Wood is expected to return here Monday after visiting company stores in the south and southwest. It was added the trip will take him toward Texas rather than Florida. Gen. Wood has been mentioned prominently as a business advisory member of an executive board or as head of a separate advisory committee on expenditure of the huge fund.

Hudson Motor Co. Schedule at Highest Level of Year

Production schedules of the Hudson Motor Car company for the current week call for an output of 2,746 cars, the largest for any week of the current year, A. E. Barit, vice president and general manager of the company, announced yesterday. Production for March will be 33 per cent above the February figure, when 7,500 cars were shipped from the factory, he said. To handle the increased production the company has returned approximately 1,000 employés to the pay roll, making a total of 10,000 men now employed by the company.

AUTO PRODUCTION BEST SINCE 1929, SURVEY FINDS

Industrial Activity Lags During February.

Washington, D. C., March 26.—[Special.]—Automobile production promises for the first quarter of the year to be the largest for any similar period since 1929, the federal reserve board said today. In most other industries, however, slumps were noted. During February industrial production increased by less than the usual seasonal amount, following sharp advances in December and January. The board's index, which makes allowance for seasonal variations, declined from 91 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in January to 89 per cent in February, the statement said.

Steel Activity Contra Seasonal.

Steel mill activity increased during early February, but later in the month and in the first three weeks of March activity declined, contrary to the seasonal tendency.

Lumber production remained at a low level. Textile mill activity in February declined. In the meat packing industry output continued to drop.

Wholesale prices of many leading commodities showed little change in February and declined in early March; prices of live stock and meats, however, advanced further in February and continued at relatively high levels during the first three weeks of March.

"Factory employment increased between the middle of January and the middle of February by more than the usual seasonal amount, reflecting substantial increases in working forces in the automobile, machinery, iron and steel, and wearing apparel industries and smaller increases in many other lines," the report said.

Employment Trend Subnormal.

"At tobacco factories employment showed less than the usual seasonal growth. Pay rolls at manufacturing establishments increased considerably in February. In non-manufacturing industries employment and pay rolls showed little change.

"Total value of construction contracts awarded from Jan. 1 to March 15 was smaller than in the corresponding period last year. The value of contracts awarded for residential building showed a slight increase over the low level of a year ago.

"Daily average revenue freight car loadings showed a seasonal increase in February and little change in the first half of March. Department store sales increased in February, a month when there is usually little change, and the combined total for the first two months of the year was larger than a year ago by five per cent."

TRADE IN PROVISIONS SLOW WITH NARROW PRICE RANGE

Trade in provisions was relatively slow yesterday. Lard futures held within a range of 5 cents and closed 2½ cents higher to 2½ cents lower, the latter on September. Bellies closed 15 to 25 cents higher, scattered buying disclosing a lack of pressure. Cash lard closed at $13.07; loose, $13.10; leaf, $13.12, and bellies at $16.37 per 100 pounds. Prices follow:

J. M. (100%) NICHOLS JEERS AT U. S. THREAT TO SEND HIM TO JAIL

J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, said in Pasadena, Cal., yesterday that he would consider it a mark of distinction if he were jailed for his refusal to affiliate his bank with the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation .

Mr. Nichols' statement was made in reply to published reports that federal banking authorities were considering action against him for his failure to comply with the law requiring all national banks to participate in the deposit insurance corporation.

Nichols has refused to pay assessments to the corporation or to display his membership emblem. Under the law Nichols can be fined $100 a day for failing to display the signs and is liable to a fine and jail sentence for refusing to insure his bank's deposits.

"Officials at Washington have intimated that I may go to jail," Nichols said in a statement. "Well, now, it is just fine to be the only banker in the history of the world jailed for operating a bank which out of its own resources and without outside help could pay every depositor in full and do so within twenty-four hours' time. It would not only be an honor but a real mark of distinction."

"Public sentiment," Nichols added, "is stronger than any mere band of politicians. History is repeating itself.

"Case after case can be shown where high government officials have overstepped the laws common sense and common decency, thereby bringing disaster to themselves and their parties, but nowhere can one find a case of a banker being jailed for the proper protection of his depositors."

EARLY DECLINE IN HOGS ERASED; CLOSE IS STEADY

Unexpected buying came into the hog market yesterday, erasing early losses of 5 to 10 cents and enabling the market to close unchanged from Monday's average. Shipments from Chicago were the largest since March 4. This demand took more than 20 per cent of the fresh receipts.

The improved undertone was attributed to a better balance between pork prices and the live cost of hogs which was effected within the last few days. Reductions of 5 cents per pound in the price of some cuts of fresh pork in the last week accelerated the movement into retail channels.

Packers paid $11.35 for top grades of 229 to 255 pound butcher hogs, processing tax included, while the average for the day was $11.15.

Cattle receipts were light, but the drop in supplies was counterbalanced by discouraging reports from an inert beef trade and a reported break of 50 to 75 cents in the Canadian prices. Trading here was slow and prices steady. The top was $13.70 and the bulk of the crop changed hands at $7.75 to $13.25. Canadian cattle here are quoted as high as $12.50, but the bulk lately has been selling at $9 to $11.50.

Lambs were steady to strong and in places brought a little more money than on Monday. Shippers and city butchers paid up to $8.35.

FULL PUBLICITY ON CLOSED BANK FEES DEMANDED

Washington, D. C., March 26.—(AP)—A positive stand for full publicity about bank receivership and the fees paid to the attorneys was taken at a house banking and currency committee hearing today by Representative Prentiss M. Brown [Dem., Mich.], a member of the committee.

The representative said he was informed reliably that Robert Marks, attorney for the receiver of the First National bank of Detroit had, or was about to present, a bill for $250,000 for his services in handling receiverships in the last two years.

Brown's remarks were made in connection with the hearing on the bill to transfer bank receiverships from the administration of the controler of the currency to the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. He addressed his remarks to the committee and to J. F. T. O'Connor, controler, who was the witness.

Brown denounced the lack of publicity on fees in receivership cases. O'Connor said it was not the policy of his office to make public attorney's fees because he did not want to "make newspaper headlines."

DROUTH AND U. S. PROGRAM REDUCE PACKERS' OUTPUT

February Lowest Month in Reserve Bank Records.

Because of drouth conditions last summer and the government's cattle buying program, the shortage of live stock brought packing house production in the United States during February to the lowest level for any month on the Chicago Federal Reserve bank's records, which have been maintained since January, 1921, that institution announced yesterday.

The bank's survey on meat packing production and distribution for February shows that commercial production—excluding government processing—was 19½ per cent under January, 26 per cent below a year ago and 30½ per cent lower than the 1925-'34 seasonal average.

Sales Tonnage Light.

Sales tonnage also was exceptionally light in February, being 20½ per cent under the preceding month, 23 per cent less than in February, 1934, and 20 per cent below the 1925-'34 seasonal average. Since the shortage in meat supplies caused prices to rise further during the month the total value of sales billed to domestic and foreign customers was only ½ per cent below January but 26½ per cent above a year ago and within 9 per cent of the seasonal average for the month.

Inventories of packing house commodities showed a non-seasonal decline during February until on March 1 they were 35,005,000 pounds below the beginning of February, 57,238,000 pounds below the corresponding date of 1934 and 15,245,000 pounds under the 1930-'34 average for March 1.

Decline in Employment.

Pay rolls in the industry for the closing week of February remained under a year ago and showed a recession from January of 9 per cent in the number of employés, 7½ per cent in hours worked and 8 per cent in wage payments.

The bank's report on employment conditions in the seventh district shows that employment and pay rolls had larger than seasonal gains during February with the former reaching the highest level since October, 1930, and the latter the highest point since May, 1931. The number of employés increased 4½ per cent over January and pay rolls rose 8½ per cent, compared with average gains of only 1 and 3 per cent, respectively, during the ten year period.

Creamery butter production in the seventh federal reserve district declined 5 per cent during February from January and to a level 4 per cent under a year ago and 6½ per cent below the 1925-'34 average for the month, the bank reported.

TELLS OF URGING FIGHT AGAINST UTILITY BILL

Washington, D. C., March 26.—(AP)—A utility holding company president today told a house committee he had advised stockholders to join the American Federation of Utility Investors opposing the Rayburn-Wheeler bill, which would put public utility holding companies out of business.

Near the end of a day of testimony before the interstate commerce committee, Representative Bulwinkle [Dem., N. C.] asked James F. Fogarty of the North American company about a letter he wrote stockholders when dividends were distributed March 1.

"I recommended they join the federation," quiet spoken Fogarty replied promptly. "As I understand it, the organization is entirely to protect investors' interests."

"Financial catastrophe" and "results seriously retarding recovery" were predicted by the North American president should the pending measure be enacted. He foresaw losses of 133 million dollars by common stock holders in his company and shrinkage of all utility stocks. He said the Securities and Exchange commission already had the power to fake care of so-called abuses that had been charged against the utilities and might be given more specific powers to use when state regulation did not apply.

TO MEN WHO DON'T ANSWER ADS

You want a clean, honest position that will insure you a fair return for your work. I sincerely believe you will be glad you investigated this opportunity.

If you meet our requirements of NEAT APPEARANCE, INDUSTRIOUS nature, 25 to 50 years of age, we will set you up in a little business in your own neighborhood, merchandising a household hygienic unit—WITHOUT ONE CENT INVESTMENT on your part. You won't get rich—BUT YOU SHOULD NET FROM $38 TO $70 A WEEK on our advanced comm. and cash bonus plan.

By this time next week one of your friends may have the franchise to your locality, so don't put this off. INVESTIGATE this PLAN—IT COSTS YOU NOTHING but your time and it may be just what you have been looking for.

APPLY FOR INTERVIEW
Wednesday, 11 a. m. only, or 3 p. m. only. Rm. 1007 Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr.

There's an old story—that many a man who could make $7,500 a year or more never gets into that class because he has an inferiority complex. In other words, he's scared out.

There's a good moral to that story. And here's a case in point. I have an opening right now for two or three good men in electrical unit business with unlimited opportunity. But can't afford to offer this place to any fellow who would be scared to death if he found he was making a percentage rate of $7,500 a year.

The money is here to be made. Others are making it. If you feel that your ability is below average or you will always be in the rut of low-bracket earnings, save your time.

If, on the other hand, you wouldn't mind stepping into the real money class, I'll be glad to give you an interview—10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Mr. Jones, Rm. 618, 203 N. Wabash-av.

Without investment, the right man can make as large income yearly as most business men make with a $25,000 investment plus the concentration of their time and energies. It is true that all mechanical and electrical units and service do not offer such splendid opportunities, but vigorous men with business sense work up a genuine and profitable clientele in this line. The commissions would be as large for you at the start as the older men receive.

If you will call today, March 27, at the desk of the Ridgeview Hotel, 901 Maple-av., Evanston, and ask for Mr. Fred Ellis, and if you are a North Shore resident, I shall be glad to go into details with you. Come at 10 a. m. only.

"1001" Reasons

YOU WILL ENJOY LUXURY AT

The Bryn Mawr Apt. Hotel

At Bryn Mawr and Kenmore-ave. [5600 N.]. ONE REASON—HARMONY.

During the past 3 years most of us have experienced many disappointments. To keep on fighting requires strength—constructive thinking—considerable rest and sleep—the right kind of environment—HARMONY, in other words.

Of the 400 people, who are now living at the BRYN MAWR, most of them are here because they know they are surrounded by "their kind of people"—men and women who are trying to get somewhere—who enjoy life—who get a good grin on their sense of humor and hang on to it—who entertain—but who know what the management means when it says, "moderation in all things."

At the BRYN MAWR your neighbors are right—the prices are right—and, in size and furnishings the apts. are right.

U.S. War Dept (Artillary)

Dear Sirs, I am writing to you to see if you might have an old team of artillary horses, that are to old to be of any use, that you could give away. You see my Dad has a farm here of 300 acres, with a big mortgage on, and we are farming this with a Fairall, and have only one team of old mares, one grey and one black. I am 13 yrs this coming June and my brother Roger will be 11. This spring I and us boys should like to help our Dad do some farm work this year. We have about 40 head of cattle and some pigs and sheep.

My Dad says he can not afford to buy any horses so I thought I would try and see if I could not help him some way.

Now we live 13 miles north east of Yankton S.D. and if we could get any horse in eastern S.D. or western Iowa maybe we could get some one to bring them here in a truck.

We will have about 150 acres to plow this spring and will have about 90 acres in small grain.

Hoping to hear from you I remain Yours truly Leroy Johnson

My Dads name Dolin R.F.D. No 4 Sherley J Johnson S.D.
